M'GUIRE BALKS AT GRAFT LIST

Asserts at Inquiry That He Never Gave Contractors' Names to Hennessy.

DID HOLD A CONFERENCE

Hennessy Flatly Disputes and Says He Wrote Names at Dictation.

MADE SOME COLLECTIONS

Syracuse Man Acknowledges Receiving Contributions—Disowns Telegram Received by Hennessy.

George H. McGuire of Syracuse, and John A. Hennessy, who had named McGuire as the man who had told him about the levies made on State contractors in recent Democratic campaigns, contradicted each other yesterday under oath in the John Doe inquiry before Chief Magistrate McAdoo. District Attorney Whitman, when the hearing was adjourned at 6 o'clock, apparently was satisfied that his investigation into the barge canal and highway grafting charges had made a good start.

In fact, it would not be at all strange if the smooth-running machinery of the John Doe inquiry should stop within ten days while the District Attorney asks for indictments. An application for a special panel of Grand Jurors was made by Mr. Whitman during the day, and it was requested that the Grand Jury sit for the December term of the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court.

Mr. McGuire, who is a brother of James K. McGuire, a former Mayor and Democratic leader of Syracuse, was called ostensibly to tell what he knew about campaign contributions, which were not accounted for, made, as John A. Hennessy charged, by 43 canal and highway contractors.

In the course of his testimony, Mr. McGuire told of an unreported campaign contribution of $500 handed to William Sulzer by him in a Syracuse hotel on the day after he was nominated for Governor. McGuire also told of a gift of $2,500 which he said he handed to John A. Hennessy for Sulzer to help him out of his money troubles. It was presented after the impeachment trial had been ordered, but before it had begun. According to Hennessy, this sum of $2,500 went to pay part of the expenses of the Hennessy investigation, and was contributed by McGuire for that specific purpose.

The first gift of $500, McGuire was forced to admit on the stand, was like other contributions which furnished foundation for the impeachment charges against Sulzer. It was made at a time when McGuire was very friendly with Sulzer. McGuire showed by his testimony that his old friendship with Sulzer no longer existed. The testimony about the $500 contribution, consequently, was given with little hesitation. In fact, Mr. McGuire seemed glad to tell about it.

McGuire seemed less anxious to tell about the $2,500 contribution. It was the testimony about this gift, in fact, which got him into deep water and caused Hennessy to contradict him. It would appear, according to Hennessy's testimony, that McGuire publicly in the last campaign was supporting the regular Democratic organization in Onondaga County, but that secretly he was aiding the Sulzer faction to break Murphy's power up-State. The intimation that he was "double-crossing," as it was called, his own party managers caused McGuire to deny vigorously that he had contributed $2,500 for any other purpose except to relieve Sulzer's necessities.

McGuire in the course of his testimony contradicted Hennessy about the list of contractors which Hennessy asserted McGuire had given to him at a conference held in the Hotel Utica in Utica. McGuire admitted that the conference had been held and corroborated Hennessy as to time, place, and date, but denied that he had given Hennessy any information about contractors who had subscribed to Democratic State and county election funds. Hennessy, he said, had given him the names of forty-three contractors and had asked him what he knew about campaign contributions made by them. He never had any intention, he insisted, of giving Hennessy any information, even if that information would help Sulzer.

It was while he was denying that he had supplied Sulzer with his anti-Tammany ammunition that McGuire was forced to admit to Mr. Whitman that he did know of contractors who had paid money of which no accounting was made to the Secretary of State. Mr. Whitman had a hard time in getting this information, but before the examination ended McGuire had mentioned six contractors who had handed money to him for campaign purposes. McGuire explained that he was willing to give District Attorney Whitman all the information at his command but that he saw no reason for telling Hennessy anything.

Hennessy Surprises Whitman.

The climax of the testimony given at the inquiry yesterday by John A. Hennessy came near the close of the session when he produced a telegram dated Oct. 27, 1913, bearing the letter "M" as a signature. This telegram covered two Western Union blanks. Hennessy drew it from his pocket in a careless way and it was obvious that the telegram was a surprise even to District Attorney Whitman and his assistant, John Kirkland Clark. Hennessy swore that it was his belief that the telegram was sent by George H. McGuire three days before the beginning of the John Doe inquiry, and he produced it, he explained, to show that he was in McGuire's confidence up to the time when McGuire became involved publicly in the scandal.

The telegram was received at 235 West 116th Street, Manhattan, at 6 P. M. on Oct. 27, and was addressed to Hennessy in care of the Fusion Campaign Committee, Lexington Casino, 116th Street and Lenox Avenue. It read:

Syracuse Depot, Oct. 27, 1913.

John A. Hennessy: Election here looks close because of big Bull Moose vote. Important to make in speech to-night reference to William H. Kelley. When Everett Fowler came here in 1911 and 1912 he made his headquarters in Kelley's office, and Kelley helped him hold up and shake down contractors on State work.

In the McLean statement filed with Secretary of State, Kelley's name appeared as putting up $8,000, but he didn't put up eight cents of his own money. He also monopolized road repair work, and has big road contract, upon which several important supplementary agreements have been allowed through Peck and Reel.

Local papers will copy what you say in speech. You will know what to say for effect in local city election. Should be done immediately. M.

McCOMBS ILL, MAY NOT WED

News of Engagement and Intended Wedding To-day Received Only Yesterday.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 7.—Inquiry at the Berkeley this morning reveals the fact that William F. McCombs is ill, and the doctor in attendance is doubtful whether Mr. McCombs will be able to marry to-day Miss Dorothy Williams of Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The Washington friends of Col. John R. Williams, U. S. A., and Mrs. Williams, were informed by cable from London to-day of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Williams, and William F. McCombs, of New York, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee. The wedding, according to the same information, will take place in London, probably to-morrow.

Miss Williams made her début three years ago and at once became a belle. She is now with her parents in London, where Col. Williams arrived with his eldest daughter, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, two weeks ago. Mrs. Williams and the bride-elect have been in Paris for months. They went abroad in August to join the youngest daughter of the family, who has been at school in France for several years.

President Wilson was surprised when he was told to-day that Mr. McCombs was to be married. It was all news to him, he said. Nothing has been heard from Mr. McCombs at the White House lately and it is not known with any certainty whether he will now accept the post of Ambassador to France. This place has been held open for him.

Miss Dorothy Williams, like her elder sister, Mrs. Leiter, was educated at the Visitation Convent in Georgetown. Later she went to a convent in Paris. She is an extremely graceful girl.

Mr. McCombs is 36 years old, a native of Arkansas, and a graduate of Princeton in the class of '98.

MAY TIE UP TAXI SERVICE.

Chauffeurs Voting on an Offer Rejection of Which Means a Strike.

A general strike of taxicab chauffeurs may be declared to-day as a result of a general meeting of the chauffeurs and their helpers which began at 2 o'clock this morning at 165 East Fifty-fourth Street and was still in progress when this edition of THE TIMES was printed. The chauffeurs demand a ten-hour day. At present they are compelled to work twelve hours. The meeting was called to consider a compromise offer made by all but two of the taxicab companies on Wednesday, but among the earliest arrivals at the meeting place the talk indicated no disposition to make concessions.

The men who struck against the Haverty Taxicab Company and the Renault Taxi Service Company contrary to the orders of the union were still out yesterday. Both the companies are awaiting developments, and have not filled the places of the strikers. These two firms were not represented in the compromise offer, which is an eleven-hour work day, with 25 cents an hour for overtime and the alternative of being allowed time off in the regular working hours.

Joseph Glynn, Secretary of the union, said last evening that he hoped for an amicable settlement.

MORTGAGE 2,343 YEARS OLD

Similar in Essentials to Proposed Illinois Central $120,000,000 Issue.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—It was recently announced by President Charles W. Markham that the Illinois Central contemplated the execution of a mortgage for $120,000,000 for betterments and to repair flood damage, and now he has on his desk, as a guide in the preparation of the necessary documents, a translation of the oldest real estate mortgage in the world, dating back 2,343 years—a first mortgage on an orchard in Babylon, given to secure a loan made by the Marashu family of bankers, which in its day financed all the big deals of Babylon, including those of the King.

A photograph of the tablets bearing the mortgage, with the translation, was received by President Markham, accompanied by a note from S. W. Straus, a Chicago banker, as "an appropriate companion" to the $120,000,000 mortgage, one of the high points of modern financing. The tablets were found in 1893 in the ruins of Nippur, one of the old cities of Babylon.

There was nothing on the tablets to indicate whether the mortgage had been paid. The mortgage was given in the thirty-fourth year of the reign of King Artaxerxes I. by Bel Bullitsu and Sha Nabu Shu, sons of Kiebti, to Bey Nadin Shun, son of Marashu. If it hasn't been redeemed, there is an enormous amount of accrued interest on the principal, which was thirty bushels of dates, for which the mortgagors pledged their orchard, both "cultivated and uncultivated."

BROKER'S CAR KILLS A GIRL.

Child Ran in Front of J. K. Rice's Auto in New Brunswick, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 6.—While playing in the roadway in Albany Street with other children here this evening ten-year-old Norah Wheatly, daughter of a local jeweler, was struck and mortally hurt by a limousine car owned by J. Kearny Rice, Jr., of the brokerage firm of J. K. Rice & Co. of 36 Wall Street, New York City. In the car with the chauffeur at the time were Mr. Rice and his wife, who had come to the railroad station as usual to meet her husband and take him to their home in Highland Park.

Mr. Rice picked up the little girl, put her in the automobile and hurried with her to St. Peter's Hospital, but she died a few minutes after arriving there.

According to Mr. Rice, the automobile was going at only a moderate rate of speed at the time of the accident, and the girl ran squarely in front of the car. Nevertheless, the chauffeur, De Witt Bishop, was placed under arrest on a technical charge of homicide. He was released last night on $3,000 bail, which was furnished by his employer.

Miss Agnes Berry, soprano, last two seasons with Chicago Grand Opera Company, will sing in the Della Robbia Room of the Vanderbilt Hotel at next Sunday evening's concert. Dinner de Luxe at $2.50 each. Tables may now be reserved.—Adv.

HOPE TO ABOLISH TAMMANY UTTERLY

Those Who Plan to Reorganize Democracy Would Wipe Out Even Old Machine's Name.

LEADERS TO MEET SOON

Metz, Discussing Tammany and Murphy, Says There Should Be a Change.

The very name of Tammany will be eliminated from among the names of political organizations in this city if those in the incoming Mitchel Administration who are to undertake the task of redeeming the Democratic organization in the town have their way.

"Within a few days," a prominent Democrat said yesterday, "Democrats who were instrumental in bringing about the recent Fusion victory and who were active in the preliminary conferences of the Citizens' Committee of One Hundred will confer. At this conference the best method of upbuilding a new Democratic organization in this city will be discussed. Friends of Mr. Mitchel who will be active in the movement have given up the idea of reforming Tammany from within. They want to smash Tammany from without. Only tentative plans nave been discussed so far, and these in the most informal way. We haven't finished counting the majorities of the Fusion candidates as yet.

The onslaught on the Murphy forces will be made simultaneously in four of the five boroughs of the city if one of the plans suggested is carried out. In Queens the Democratic County organization under the leadership of Borough President Connolly, which is regarded as being more or less in sympathy with the Mitchel brand of Democracy, will be left to strengthen itself so as to resist in the future the onslaughts of Joseph Cassidy, faction leader and former associate of Tammany leader Charles F. Murphy.

Those who plan to reorganize the Democratic Party in the city have been assured that in their task they will have the full support of the Federal Administration. The attitude of Gov. Glynn until yesterday was unknown. He has told friends that as Governor it is his intention to keep to the middle of the road so far as factional strife is concerned, but he has asserted that as a Democrat he is heartily interested in anything that will strengthen his party and restore it to the good graces of the voters. In the distribution of patronage he is not expected to give any aid or comfort to Tammany Hall.

One plan which has been suggested in connection with the prospective fight on Tammany is that in each Assembly District some Democrat who has been active in the Fusion movement and is known to be in sympathy with the ideals of the independent Democrats who are preparing to build up a new organization, should be recognized as the dispenser of all patronage to be allotted to the district through the incoming Mitchel administration. This method of starving Tammany into submission was applied with a good deal of success by ex-Mayor McClellan when he made his fight on the Tammany leadership. Out of fifteen districts where this process was inaugurated during the McClellan administration, seven were lost to Tammany in the primary elections that followed.

James J. Martin, who in the days of Croker was the Tammany leader of the Twenty-seventh District, and Maurice Featherson, who abdicated the leadership in the Twentieth Assembly District out of disgust with Murphy's methods, are looked upon by those in charge of the reorganization as well equipped to give advice because they are familiar with all Tammany's methods.

Congressman Herman A. Metz, who was Tammany's candidate for Controller and who ran more than 20,000 votes ahead of Edward E. McCall, the Mayoralty candidate, before sailing for Europe yesterday on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie made the significant statement that in his opinion "there ought to be a change." Mr. Metz lives in Brooklyn.

In some circles the name of Mr. Metz was mentioned yesterday as that of the man who was better equipped than anybody to undertake the reorganization of the Democratic forces in the City of New York. He is popular with the organization and appeals to the independent element in the party as well. He has shown courage and skill as an organizer.

"Murphy has come to be a bugaboo to frighten away many of the voters," said Mr. Metz yesterday. "That is, 'Murphy and Tammany' has come to be a war cry of all elements assailing the regular Democratic organization. I have no personal grudge against Mr. Murphy, but I believe there ought to be a change.

"We are not all crooks and thieves and grafters at Tammany Hall, as some New York newspapers seem to want to make out we are. There seems to be a feeling that Tammany Hall is an ogre and a bugaboo and steps ought to be taken in an educational way to dispel this idea.

"Charles F. Murphy," went on Mr. Metz, "never asked me for anything and he never asked me to do anything. This same bunch of reformers that beat us on Tuesday has been working up sentiment for some time past against Tammany Hall by use of the words 'thieves,' 'crooks,' and 'grafters.' Tammany Hall must organize an educational campaign to show that Tammany Hall is as honest as any other political body in the United States."

Public Service Commissioner John V. S. Williams, Alonzo McLaughlin, son of the late Hugh McLaughlin, the Democratic leader in Kings, and John A. Hennessy, who lives in that borough, were mentioned yesterday as men with whom John H. McCooey, Mr. Murphy's lieutenant in Brooklyn, might have to reckon in his attempt to retain his leadership over the Democratic organization of Kings.

Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy, after a brief visit to Tammany Hall yesterday forenoon, went to his country estate at Good Ground, where it was said the Tammany chieftain would stay over the week-end. Contrary to the custom of former years, Mr. Murphy will not go to either Hot Springs, Va., or Mount Clemens, Mich., to recuperate after the strenuous labors of the campaign.

Bert Hanson, Chairman of the executive committee of the Anti-Tammany Jeffersonian Alliance, which had a column of its own on the ballot, said yesterday that the organization would be kept in existence as an independent fighting force for good government.

"At a meeting of our executive committee this afternoon," said Mr. Hanson, "it was decided to make the organization permanent; though it is possible that the name of the organization may be changed. The alliance was formed and the present name adopted merely for the purpose of the campaign, eight or ten independent Democratic organizations uniting in the movement. The fact that more than 25,000 votes were cast under the emblem of the rooster has convinced the members of the executive committee that the organization should be continued and enlarged. The details of the organization were referred to the committee on plan and scope, which is to meet early next week."

Detectives Pounce on von Rosenberg, Working as a Steward on Steamship.

Constantine von Rosenberg, alias "Count von Rosenberg," was arrested on board the United Fruit steamship Zacapa by Pinkerton detectives and Detective Lieuts. Oliver and Watson from the Central Office yesterday afternoon. He is said to have passed forged checks on banks, hotel keepers, and merchants in many cities of the United States.

The detectives got the clue that the man they wanted was on the steamer by watching Carl Spencer, who had acted as private secretary to the "Count" in New York, and following him to the company's pier at the foot of Wall Street. As the Zacapa was moving into her berth Spencer was seen to wave to a steward looking over the side who answered the description of von Rosenberg.

When the gangway was lowered Oliver and Watson boarded the steamer and after a search they found their man hidden under a settee in the smoking room on the promenade deck. After he had been hauled out into the light he said that his name was Carlos Cardenos, and that he had been to sea all his life and had never been a Count. After changing his clothes he was taken away by the detectives and locked up at Police Headquarters.

The specific charge on which von Rosenberg was arrested is for passing a forged check for $600 on Thomas Cook & Son and obtaining six $100 travelers' checks.

$15,000 Forgery Failed.

In addition to this the detectives say that on May 9 a well dressed man approached a messenger boy in Wall Street, handed him a check for $15,000, drawn on a downtown bank, and directed him to go to the bank and have it certified. The name of "Bond & Goodwin, Brokers," was signed to the check. The bank refused to certify it because the number was written in pen and ink and was not on the firm's regular blanks. The bank notified the Pinkertons and the boy received a dummy package, supposed to contain the $15,000, but when he got to Wall Street the man had fled. The detectives identified him as von Rosenberg.

Several days after the attempt was made to defraud the downtown bank, an uptown hotel reported to the bank that it had accepted one of the bank's checks for $35, and the man who left it had departed immediately after. Pinkerton's investigated and learned that a man who said he was Carl Spencer, the secretary of Ricardo Niquero, had registered at the hotel and was assigned to a handsome suite. Several days later Mr. Niquero appeared. It was von Rosenberg, it is alleged, and he had a number of prominent auto dealers visit him on the pretext of wishing to purchase several cars for his Cuban estate. The bank advised the hotel that the check was a forgery.

Trail in Many Cities.

The bogus Count and his secretary were traced to the Grand Central Station, where they cashed one of the travelers' checks received from Cook & Son, it is said, and then left for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Detroit, Chicago, Winnipeg, and Montreal, where all trace of the pair was lost. Von Rosenberg was next heard of at Watertown, N. Y., where he bought silk shirts at $5 each and silk caps for $3, paying bills with certified checks and getting the change in cash. He also bought an overcoat for $34 and paid for it with a check for $74, which was also a forgery, it is believed.

From Watertown von Rosenberg went to Alexandria Bay, Thousand Islands, where he put up at the best hotel, hired a motor boat, and cashed checks. He registered there as Constantino, the well-known Spanish operatic tenor, and asked the clerk not to let the guests know of his presence, because they would want him to sing. After he had been there a few days one of the clerks told the supposed singer that he was musical and played the oboe, and asked if he might hear the "famous Constantino." Rosenberg asked the clerk to bring the oboe to his room that night, and said he would sing for him. The clerk kept the appointment, but the "singer" had fled, and was next heard from at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel in Atlantic City, where he ran up a bill for several hundred dollars and disappeared, it is alleged.

The Pinkertons had notified every bank and hotel in the country in the meantime, furnishing them with a photograph of von Rosenberg, and when he registered at the New Bingham Hotel, Philadelphia, as Gregoretti, the noted baritone, the manager aroused his suspicion by asking too pointed questions and the "Count" left, without his baggage, a suitcase containing an old pair of shoes, a brick wrapped in paper, several whisky bottles, several pieces of wood, and a bundle of newspaper items concerning Gregoretti's accomplishments.

The detectives say they also discovered that von Rosenberg had posed as secretary to the President of Cuba along South Street in this city, and had taken small sums of money from firemen and sailors and petty officers as fees for engaging them for the President's steam yacht.

Von Rosenberg is 5 feet 4 inches tall, of stout build, with black hair and mustache, and looks to be about 38 years old. He was born in Austria. He is well educated, speaks six languages, and for several years was a sugar chemist in Havana, Cuba, at a salary of $6,000 a year. He is said to have served a prison term in Louisiana for swindling a jeweler.

When questioned at Police Headquarters last night by Second Deputy Commissioner Dougherty, von Rosenberg admitted having been arrested a year ago for forgery as Count Rosenberg, but said that "the trouble" had all been "straightened out." The present charge against him was a mistake, he said. He also said that he had worked for Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith on plantations near Santiago, Cuba.

KILLED BY A TAXICAB.

Man Run Over While Crossing the Street.

An unidentified man, about 55 years old, while attempting to cross Second Street late last night, was struck and killed by a taxicab owned by the New Harlem Casino Taxicab Company.

At the time of the accident John Bower, the chauffeur of the cab, told the police that he was going at a moderate speed. He was not arrested.

3,000 STATE TROOPS HOLD INDIANAPOLIS

Indiana's Entire Military Force Ordered Into Capital City to Put an End to Rioting.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 6.—Gov. Ralston to-day ordered the entire National Guard force of Indiana to mobilize in this city as the result of the street car strike riots, and to-night 3,000 guardsmen are here. Long before nightfall troop trains began arriving in the outskirts of the city, and under cover of darkness the soldiers marched into town taking up quarters in various localities. Before morning nearly all the State forces will be here. It was the largest body of troops mobilized in Indiana since the militia was reorganized under the Federal plan.

The men are under heavy marching equipment, and have plenty of ammunition.

They are ready to take charge of the situation, but martial law will not be declared until the next outbreak seems to warrant it, which may come to-morrow, when the company attempts to begin operating its cars.

Gov. Ralston announced late to-night that he was withholding the proclamation of martial law in hope that the strikers and the street railway company would be able to come to terms during the night. Judge Thomas Duncan and Charles Murphy of the Indiana Public Utilities Commission asked the officials of the street car company to-night to submit the trouble to arbitration. The company agreed to receive a committee of its own employes, providing that the charter of the car men's union was canceled and the leaders of the strike left the city. None of the strike leaders would express an opinion as to what the strikers would do in regard to the company's proposals.

The military force consists of three regiments of infantry, three batteries of artillery, equipped with modern rapid-fire field guns, hospital and signal corps. The troops are in command of Brig. Gen. W. F. McKee. One regiment marched to the State Capitol building in the heart of the city to-night, and quartered there. It will be available on short notice in the event of trouble. The remainder of the force was distributed among the various armories. Not a soldier will be allowed to go on the streets until the call for action comes. Some of the troops reached the outskirts of the city early in the afternoon, where they were held until to-night, when the occupation was made complete.

The union labor element brought all possible influence to bear upon the Governor to-day to prevent the use of troops. Soon after noon 5,000 union men at the call of the strike leader, J. J. Thorpe, went to the State House to protest to the Governor. The Executive addressed the crowd, saying that under existing conditions he saw no other way to maintain order than by placing the soldiery on guard, but he promised that at the next session of the Legislature he would use all his efforts to have a compulsory arbitration law passed.

Later 200 women, members of the Garment Workers' Union, went to the Governor and urged him to dismiss the troops and call a special session of the Legislature to pass such a law, but Gov. Ralston replied that such a course was not advisable. Strong influences also were brought to bear on President Todd of the traction company to induce him to agree to arbitration, but he stood firm, declaring that before the strike his employes were contented, and that there was nothing to arbitrate. He said that only a few of the men had joined the union, and that force had been used to accomplish this.

Late to-night it seemed that there would be only one result, and that would involve more bloodshed. Business is practically at a standstill. A further disturbing feature is the threat that if the troops are used, sympathetic strikes will be declared by the teamsters and the employes of the public utility plants. This situation has aroused the gravest apprehension among the residents of the city.

The company made no effort to move the cars to-day, but probably will attempt it to-morrow. The plan is to put a squad of soldiers on every car, and any resistance on the part of citizens will result in prompt arrest, by military order.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Postmaster General Burleson to-day asked Postmaster Springsteen at Indianapolis to put in a temporary automobile mail service while the street car strike hindered ordinary carriage of the mails.

PRESIDENT FOR MALONE.

His Appointment as Collector, However, Depends on O'Gorman.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo have already taken up the matter of selecting a successor to Mayor-elect John Purroy Mitchel as Collector of the Port of New York.

It is understood their conference improved the chance that Dudley Field Malone, now Third Assistant Secretary of State, will be appointed. In fact there is excellent authority for the statement that it was practically determined that unless some unforeseen circumstances occurred, the nomination of Mr. Malone would be sent to the Senate.

The appointment of Mr. Malone would be contingent, however, on the consent of his father-in-law, Senator James A. O'Gorman, of New York. It would not be acceptable to New York Democratic leaders connected with Tammany Hall. How Senator O'Gorman stands on the subject is not known. On account of their family relationship Mr. O'Gorman had declined to recommend Mr. Malone for any Federal office.

REV. MR. PRIDDY FOUND.

Stamford Pastor in Chicago Hospital Victim of Mental Collapse.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Nov. 6.—The mystery of the whereabouts of the Rev. Claude H. Priddy, pastor of the Stamford Methodist Church, has been solved by a telegram sent by the Rev. E. M. Wylie, from Chicago, announcing that Mr. Priddy is in a sanitarium there. The name of the sanitarium was not given and the telegram disclosed no further information except that Mr. Priddy was a nervous wreck.

From a close friend of Mr. Priddy it was learned that the clergyman is believed to be in a very serious mental condition, and utmost relief is felt over his safe arrival in Chicago. Mrs. Priddy left here to-night to join her husband.

Mr. Priddy's resignation from the pastorate of the Stamford Methodist Church and his departure were entirely unexpected. He had recently been invited by the official board of the church to remain another year, and had expressed pleasure over the invitation.

GEN. DIAZ STABBED IN HAVANA PARK

Five Mexicans Inflict Two Wounds in His Neck and Shoot One of Themselves.

AN UMBRELLA FOR DEFENSE

Diaz Used It Valiantly, Although He Had a Revolver in His Pocket—General Arrested with Others.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Nov. 6.—Gen. Felix Diaz, recently candidate for President of Mexico, was attacked by five Mexicans and stabbed to-night while he was listening to a band concert in the fashionable Malecon. He was not seriously injured.

Gen. Diaz was seated in a park seat in the Malacon at 10 o'clock with a fellow-refugee, Cecilio Ocon, and Luis Malba, manager of the street car lines of Mexico City, when five Mexicans appeared behind him with canes and knives.

Diaz was stabbed twice in the neck, but the wounds were not deep. He sprang up quickly and began beating off his assailants with an umbrella, while his companions took up park chairs and joined in the defense.

Suddenly one of the assailants shot at Gen. Diaz point blank, but the pistol was knocked aside, the shot striking one of the assailant's companions.

The police then rushed up and succeeded in arresting three of the Mexicans. All were placed in coaches and taken to the Emergency Hospital, where Gen. Diaz's wounds were dressed. The wounds of the assailant, who had been shot, were likewise dressed.

The knife with which Gen. Diaz was stabbed was a short penknife and not dangerous unless the blade was poisoned, as has been hinted, although the suspicion is probably unfounded.

Besides two stab wounds in the neck, Diaz received various bruises from canes, one on the arm being very severe.

The attack occurred when a throng of the fashionable people of Havana were listening to the concert. The thousands of persons were panic-stricken and rushed pell mell in every direction, several being hurt by colliding with iron chairs in their attempt to get away.

The wounded assailant's name is Guerrero Mendez. He was shot through the right leg, and apparently the ball glanced upward into the abdomen. His condition is thought serious.

Gen. Diaz and Malba are held under arrest. Mendez accuses Diaz of shooting him, while Malba is charged with carrying a revolver without a license.

Harry Berliner, a travelling salesman for a New York wholesale house, probably saved Diaz's life. He was sitting near Diaz when he heard a woman scream. He jumped up and saw Mendez with a knife stabbing at Diaz. Thereupon he threw himself against Mendez when the latter was aiming another blow. Berliner is also held by the police for his part in the affray.

Late to-night the police station where the prisoners were held was filled with Mexicans, including Emeterio de la Garza, who came here originally to urge Diaz not to go to Vera Cruz.

The night Judge, who must decide whether Gen. Diaz shall be sent to jail or admitted to bail, did not arrive at the police station until a late hour. It will probably be daylight before a decision will be made.

A Mexican woman, who some persons say is a Huerta spy, says she saw Gen. Diaz draw a revolver and shoot, but the police seized his revolver and found that it had not been discharged. A second revolver also was found with all the chambers loaded, while the one producing the wound was not found. It was a small .22 weapon.

GEN. DIAZ'S CAREER.

Won Reputation for Cruelty as Head of Mexico City Police.

Gen. Felix Diaz was born forty-six years ago in the State of Oaxaca, in the south of Mexico. He entered the Military Academy of Chapultepec in 1883 and was commissioned a Lieutenant of Engineers in 1889. His first military service was on the Geographical Commission which prepared the great military map of Mexico.

At the time of the Spanish-American war Diaz became Colonel of the General Staff of the Mexican Army, and later was twice elected to Congress from Vera Cruz. He had become a formidable political figure by 1902, and was then regarded as the most likely successor to his uncle, President Porfirio Diaz, who made him Inspector General of the Police in the City of Mexico in 1905.

As the Madero régime in Mexico neared its close Gen. Diaz automatically became the leader of the discontented men in the regular army, and in October, 1912, temporarily made himself the master of Vera Cruz. This revolt proved to be a fiasco, and he was placed under arrest and imprisoned. His arrest was followed by an uprising, during which the prison was stormed and Diaz freed.

By the terms of his compact with Provisional President Huerta Gen. Diaz announced himself as a candidate for the next Presidency of Mexico, and at once strongly intrenched himself at the Hacienda del Christo at Atzcapotzalco, about twenty miles from Mexico City.

Dispatches from Vera Cruz dated Oct. 28 brought the news that Gen. Diaz, in accordance with his own request, was under the protection of the United States. He had been taken aboard the gunboat Wheeling soon after midnight and later was transferred to Rear Admiral Fletcher's flagship, the Louisiana.

At 10 o'clock the previous evening, it was stated, Gen. Diaz, accompanied by his two confidential advisers, Cecielo Ocom and José Sandoval, crawled across the roof of the German Hotel in Vera Cruz to the American Consulate, adjoining, and asked W. W. Canada, the American Representative, for protection. Mr. Canada had him transferred to the Wheeling, the only American warship inside the harbor.

Later Gen. Diaz was put aboard the steamer Esperanza, which reached Havana Monday last.

GUN SINKS BOAT, TWO DIE.

Charge of Shot Blows a Hole in Hunters' Skiff on Cuba Lake.

CUBA, N. Y., Nov. 6.—The accidental discharge of a shotgun caused the drowning of John Coates, 70 years old, of Wellsville, and Lloyd Gardner, 29 years old, of Hornell in Cuba Lake, to-day. The men were fishing and hunting from a boat when the charge of heavy shot tore a hole in the bottom of the craft and it sank. Neither man could swim.

Five men have been drowned in the lake within a few months.

TAFT HAS $150,000 BONDS.

Ex-President Files List with Connecticut State Treasurer.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 6.—Ex-President William H. Taft holds securities valued at $150,000, according to lists filed with the State Treasurer in response to the demand that Government, State, municipal, and miscellaneous bonds subject to a State tax, and therefore exempt from local taxation, be registered. This list is wholly outside the Federal income tax registration. The State receives a 2 per cent. tax on this list of securities.

Gov. Baldwin's list indicates that he possesses bonds valued at $94,875. Daniel Veades, Treasurer of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, filed a list totaling $1,500,000.

DR. A. D. WHITE IS 81 TO-DAY

Venerable Educator and Diplomat Still in Splendid Health.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Dr. Andrew D. White, first President of Cornell University and ex-Ambassador to Germany and Russia, will observe his eighty-first birthday at his home on East Avenue, the Cornell campus, to-morrow. Dr. White is in splendid health, and may be seen almost any day walking briskly on the campus, as well as downtown. His health has been good for years, although he finds it wise to spend most of his Winters abroad in a warmer climate. He has just returned from a business trip to New York City.

There will be no special celebration of the birthday, although Dr. White will receive a number of his intimate friends. In spite of his age the venerable statesman still keeps up his literary activities.

SEEK $10,000 IN TWO DAYS.

Madison Avenue Church Needs That Sum to Obtain $100,000.

Unless the Madison Avenue Baptist Church at Thirty-first Street obtains $10,000 between now and Sunday it stands to lose $100,000, and the difficulty is real, because most of the men who can usually be counted upon to help in financing this congregation have already given generously in the present campaign for an endowment fund.

The rich Baptist who pledged $100,000 to the fund made as his condition the stipulation that the entire fund should be brought to $300,000 by Nov. 9. This giver has a reputation for abiding rigidly by these conditions, which he invariably attaches to his gifts. Yesterday the fund had reached $200,000. Every point is being strained to obtain the rest within the brief time left. If the money is obtained there will be a celebration in the church on Sunday.

The Madison Avenue Baptist Church was established in 1848, when the Murray Hill district had different surroundings than those which hem it in to-day. The pastor is the Rev. Charles A. Eaton.

CANAL NEEDS $36,394,000.

Completion Will Cost This, Goethals Estimates—Appropriation Likely.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Col. Goethals and the other engineer officers in the Canal Zone have estimated that about $36,394,000 will be required to put the finishing touches on the Panama Canal, and it is thought that the House Committee on Appropriations will recommend an appropriation for that amount in the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill next session. The members of the committee will sail on Saturday from New York on the Cristobal for a final inspection of the canal.

Most of the money is needed for the completion of terminals, the erection of machine shops, docks, and coal pits. The latter will be concrete cellars below the sea level, to prevent the coal from disintegrating in the open air.

The authorized cost of the canal was $375,200,000. Already $338,806,861.58 has been appropriated. The army engineers do not believe that all of the balance will be spent.

LIQUOR AS A MOOSE ISSUE.

Illinois Progressives May Take In Anti-Saloon League.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—If plans now under consideration by the leaders of the Progressive Party in Illinois mature, the Bull Moosers will take over the Anti-Saloon League movement in this State and make it one of the issues in the next State platform.

Raymond Robins and Mrs. Antoinette Funk, now believe that the consolidation of the anti-saloon issue with the "social justice" propaganda is inevitable.

The Moose leaders in Illinois fear that unless they take over the anti-saloon fight the great women vote in the down-State districts of the commonwealth might be lost to them.

LIND ON THE WAY TO MEXICO CITY

No Explanation of His Sudden Departure from Vera Cruz for the Capital.

ELECTION RETURNS DELAYED

Huerta May Not Announce the Results Until the Middle of December.

NO THREATS TO HUERTA

Friendly Persuasion the Keynote of the Instructions Given American Charge.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 6.—John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative, accompanied by Capt. William A. Burnside, the American Military Attaché, left the city hurriedly to-night, taking the train for Mexico City.

Outside of his departure the situation here is unchanged. Rebel activity in the neighborhood is on the increase.

The French warship Condé is expected here daily.

One hundred and eighteen boxes of silver pesos, each valued at about $3,000, forwarded here by Hugo Scherer & Co., bankers of Mexico City, for shipment on the steamer Mexico, were seized by Government officials to-day, but were afterward released on the receipt of orders from Gen. Huerta. They were consigned to Brown Brothers & Co. of New York.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 6.—There is much speculation here to-night concerning the sudden departure from Vera Cruz of John Lind and Capt. Burnside for this city. No statement regarding it was available at the American Embassy to-night, Mr. O'Shaughnessy not having been notified. It is generally believed, however, that this is the precursor of serious developments.

The international situation remained unchanged to-day, pending action from Washington, which is expected to make the next move. Intense interest exists in official and political circles over the developments in the situation which are believed to be inevitable in the next few days.

Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé, said to-night:

"I have presented nothing in writing to the Mexican Government; neither have I officially or unofficially made any demands upon it in the name of the United States."

A Cabinet meeting took place this afternoon. It lasted from 3:30 to 9 o'clock.

It is understood here that Gen. Huerta will not reach a decision regarding the Presidential elections until the middle of December.

It is not expected that Congress will act on the Presidential elections immediately. Probably considerable time will be expended in considering the results of the elections, and a decision will not be reached until absolutely necessary.

Politicians believe that this decision will be that the elections were null and void and that Congress then will adjourn without calling for new elections until the next session in April.

Considerable adverse comment has been caused by Huerta's decree suspending specie payments of banknotes.

The Chamber of Commerce met this afternoon but refused to make any statement for publication. It is understood, however, from reliable sources that they decided to enter a protest against Huerta's action, which they consider is merely intended to mask the practical bankruptcy of banks whose reserves for guaranteeing bills have been exhausted.

The bank managers admit that they asked for the measure to be passed, as financial conditions have resulted in heavy abnormal drafts upon their reserves. It was estimated by one financial authority to-day that only one bank in the country had more than a 10 per cent. reserve intact.

The first indication of the probable results of the decree is seen in a great shortage of change, as the smallest bills now are 5 pesos. It is believed that 1 and 2 pesos bills will be issued.

The new stipulations that the reserves must be retained intact have practically had no effect on Exchange quotations, although this is expected during the next few days. There was some talk to-day that the Government possibly would enact a decree making free the coinage of half pesos pieces in an attempt to relieve the shortage in small change. Many factories were unable to pay their hands to-day because of the lack of small change. Specie is selling at high rates in consequence, as the banks positively refused to change any bills, thus greatly handicapping business.

Enlisting Women, It Is Said.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 6.—More than 2,500 persons are reported to have been added to the army by conscription since the beginning of the week. It is said that not even women are exempt, many having been forced to become "soldaderas."

URGING HUERTA; NO THREATS.

Friendly Persuasion the Keynote of O'Shaughnessy's Instructions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Having failed to bring about the retirement of President Huerta by so-called proposals amounting to demands, the United States Government is now engaged in an effort to persuade Gen. Huerta that he owes it to his own self-respect as well as to the interests of his country to make good his solemn assurances not to remain in the Presidential office. This is the basic principle of the present exchanges now being conducted in Mexico City between Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé d'Affaires, and Señor Moheno, the Mexican Foreign Minister.

It was admitted at the White House to-day that instructions embodying the views of President Wilson had been sent to Mr. O'Shaughnessy, and that he was now engaged in carrying them out. No further information on the subject was forthcoming from that quarter, but it was learned on authority that cannot be questioned that a policy of persuasion and not of direct threats was being followed by the American Chargé.

The preliminary to the present negotiations was a pointed inquiry as to when Gen. Huerta was to be expected to fulfill his promise that he would not retain the Presidential office, even if declared elected as a result of the elections of Oct. 26. The response to this inquiry was not illuminating, and the current efforts to persuade Huerta to step down and out were then begun.

No definite response to his inquiries and arguments has been obtained by Mr. O'Shaughnessy, so far as the State Department knows. Reports that Gen. Huerta has absolutely declined to concur in the suggestions of the United States are not borne out by Mr. O'Shaughnessy's telegraphic reports. The understanding is that Mr. O'Shaughnessy is making some progress in his endeavor, at least to the extent that Gen. Huerta has not shown the defiant attitude attributed to him.

It is now clear that there has been no "ultimatum" delivered by the United States to the Mexican Government. The instructions sent to Mr. O'Shaughnessy, on which he is proceeding, were very much to the point as to the character of the representations he should make to the Mexican Government in regard to the strong desire of the United States that neither President Huerta nor any of the other leading candidates in the recent abortive elections should assume the Presidency, but it is understood that they could not be construed as threatening. Rather they were of a fairly friendly argumentative character, suggesting an opening through which Gen. Huerta could relinquish the Presidency with no discredit to himself.

Lifting the Embargo Not Favored.

Enough was learned to-day in official circles to justify the conclusion that the Administration has not taken kindly to the suggestion that the Mexican revolutionists be permitted to receive arms, ammunition, and other munitions of war without restriction from across the American border. It has been asserted with much positiveness in the past few days that this course would be adopted by the Administration if President Huerta continued to remain in office. Investigation shows that this conclusion was based upon a very strong sentiment in the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and among a large number of members of both houses of Congress that the United States should virtually take sides with the revolutionists through adopting this policy of lifting the embargo against the exportation of war supplies to certain parts of Mexico. But the idea has not been encouraged by the principal officers of the Administration, although they have discussed it. From present appearances the President and his advisors will not sanction this procedure.

There have been direct intimations from high officials that President Wilson had a clear idea as to what his policy toward Mexico would be if Gen. Huerta continued to remain in office; but it is doubtful, judged by what was learned to-day, that the President would be willing for the present to adopt any very drastic course.

It is not going too far to say, however, that the idea of ultimate intervention as the only solution of the Mexican problem lies in the back of the heads of those officials most concerned. This statement is made with all due regard to the knowledge that President Wilson is opposed to armed intervention. To attempt to amplify it would probably result in giving it greater emphasis than it deserves at this time. A measure of reassurance of the President's attitude for the time being came from the White House to-day in the statement that he had no intention of sending any message to Congress concerning the Mexican situation.

The report that the French Government has received a request from President Huerta that it offer its services as mediator in the Mexican troubles turns out to be a canard. No action on such a request has been taken by France.

Nor is it true—and this is stated on White House authority—that Dr. William Bayard Hale has gone to the State of Sonora to treat with Gen. Carranza, the head of the Constitutionalist forces. The present whereabouts of Dr. Hale are not known to President Wilson.

For a week or more there has been a report circulated in Washington that Secretary Bryan had sent a special representative to see Gen. Carranza and ascertain the number and condition of the revolutionists, and the rumor of Dr. Hale's mission to Sonora probably arose from this. It is now said that a former newspaper writer of prominence has gone to visit Carranza on behalf of the Government; but this report is inconsistent with the refusal of the Administration to have any official or semi-official communication with the revolutionary forces.

There will be a formal Cabinet meeting to-morrow, the first for a long time. No certainty exists that the Mexican situation will be considered with the intention of determining a course of action unless information is received over night that Gen. Huerta has rejected flatly the persuasive suggestions of this Government.

The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations had a meeting to-day at which the Mexican situation was discussed informally. The sentiment in the committee is strongly in favor of lifting the embargo on the shipment of arms to the revolutionists as a first step toward driving Huerta from power.

HUERTA WORRIES BRITISH.

Disastrous Effects Expected to Follow His Currency Decree.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 7.—The financial editor of The Daily Mail, commenting in this morning's issue upon Gen. Huerta's decree practically suspending specie payment says:

"If the decree means that Huerta intends to force increased paper currency on the country it is fraught with disastrous possibilities. Such paper currency, not being immediately convertible into coin, would inevitably depreciate in value and drive gold and silver money out of circulation; for nobody would pay his debts in good gold and silver with a world-wide value when he could legally satisfy them in paper.

"This would disorganize foreign trade and send commodities up to famine prices, the depreciated currency possessing so much less purchasing power.

"Moreover, it would seriously affect British and other railway companies operating in Mexico, which would be forced to receive payments in depreciated currency, while interest and dividends due to bondholders and stockholders would have to be met in gold."

REBELS KILL AN AMERICAN.

Mining Superintendent Robbed and Mutilated at Mapimi, Durango.

EAGLE PASS, Texas, Nov. 6.—R. Weiniger, Assistant Superintendent of the Penoles Mining Company at Mapimi, State of Durango, Mexico, was robbed and then killed at the direction of a Constitutionalist leader, and after the murder his fingers were cut off so that the rebel commander might obtain valuable rings the American wore.

This information was brought to Eagle Pass to-night by Ernest Muller, an official of the mining company, who, with other refugees, reached the border after an overland journey of eighteen days.

The refugees who arrived to-night were escorted to the boundary by a relief expedition sent to Mapimi two months ago. They were the last of the American residents to quit the mining settlement.

LIFT THE EMBARGO, CARRANZA'S PLEA

Rebel Leader Is Confident of Victory if He Can Purchase Arms Freely.

HE OPPOSES A BLOCKADE

Thinks It Would Mean Intervention, Which Would Be "a Great Mistake."

Give Arms, Says Carranza, and I Will Defeat Huerta

By Telegraph to the Editor of The New York Times.

NOGALES, Ariz., Nov. 6.—Referring to your message of to-day, I declare that all I have asked of the United States Government—since I consider such a request just—is the free importation of munitions of war for both parties.

If this is granted, I think that I shall be able, within three months, to defeat the army of Huerta and restore peace in Mexico.

I would not accept for any reason or under any conditions the cooperation of the United States Government for fighting Huerta until he is driven from the post which he has usurped. V. CARRANZA, Commander-in-Chief of the Constitutionalist Army.

Special to The New York Times.

NOGALES, Ariz., Nov. 6.—In an authorized interview with The New York Times representative, Gen. Venustiano Carranza to-day expressed his confidence in the speedy victory of the Constitutionalists in the event of the United States permitting the exportation of munitions of war to Mexico.

The rebel leader says he has good news from the front, as large quantities of arms, ammunition, and even artillery have been captured at various times from the Federals. With the right to buy freely in the American market he says he could promptly equip 10,000 more men in the Northern States and march upon Mexico City.

The people throughout the republic, he says, are enthusiastic for the Constitutionalist cause and ready for service. He asserts that he controls the States of Durango, Tepic, Tamaulipas, Nuevo Leon, Sonora, Sinaloa, Chihuahua, and Coahuila, while the Federals hold only the cities of Guaymas, Mazatlan, Culiacan, Juarez, Chihuahua, and Saltillo. Eight other States, he says, are mostly in the Constitutionalists' hands, and they have more or less footing in every State, even that of Mexico.

Gen. Carranza expects the United States to lift the embargo on arms and does not look for a blockade of Mexican ports. He would welcome this for his own sake, but fears it would lead to actual armed intervention, which would be unnecessary and a great mistake.

The United States, he thinks, would have an enormous task in forcing peace upon Mexico; it would be much simpler to lift the embargo and let Mexican patriotism settle its own struggle for constitutional liberty.

With or without this help on the part of the United States, he says, the struggle will never cease until Huerta and his Cientifico associates are eliminated.

Dr. William Bayard Hale, supposed to be acting as President Wilson's representative, is not here, but is expected. It is generally believed that Carranza is awaiting his coming. Dr. Hale is said to be on his way to Nogales, traveling under the name of Hall. He was at Tucson on Tuesday.

Gen. Lucio Blanco of Tamaulipas and Gen. Santos Coy of Nuevo Leon have just arrived here to confer with Gen. Carranza. They traveled incognito through the United States from Brownsville to escape arrest by Mexican Federals. Gen. Blanco is looked upon as one of the strong men of the Constitutionalist cause.

Special to The New York Times.

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 6.—Dr. William Bayard Hale, who has been reported as an agent of President Wilson, empowered to treat with the Mexican Constitutionalists, arrived here a week ago to-day and registered at a hotel as William Hall of New York. He left here Tuesday morning by automobile, but rebel agents say he is still in the city, though they refuse to reveal his whereabouts. His baggage is in the railway station check room, with instructions to hold it. The hotel clerks identified a picture of Dr. Hale as that of the man who registered.

The rebel agents say that everything depends upon the negotiations now under way between Dr. Hale and Gen. Carranza.

FIGHTING AT CHIHUAHUA.

Rebels Under Villa Attack Again—Cut Off Water Supply.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 6.—After being repulsed by the Federal forces at Chihuahua last evening, Gen. Francisco Villa and his rebel army returned to Chihuahua and renewed the attack this afternoon, according to dispatches reaching here to-night. The battle continued late into the night, with neither side having any advantage. The fighting so far has been confined chiefly to the outskirts of the city.

Villa, according to junta reports, is in control of the reservoir, and his troops have cut off the city's water supply.

The Chihuahua smelter, a Guggenheim property, has been closed by orders of Gen. Salvador Mercade, who is commanding the army of defense at Chihuahua, and nearly all of the 4,000 native laborers of the plant have been drafted into the Federal service to assist in the defense of the town.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 6.—A second attack on Monterey, the capital of Nuevo Leon, Mexico, has been begun by a strong force of rebels, according to a dispatch received at Constitutionalist headquarters at Matamoras to-day. This information was carried to Ramones, 49 miles from Monterey, by a scouting party which approached within a few miles of the capital and heard the cannonading.

The dispatch added that the attacking forces were being led by Pancho Villa, whose troops were assisted by those under Gen. Pablo Gonzales, who led the first attack on Monterey. Gonzales, after failing in his assault upon the city, retreated to the town of Montemorelos, pursued by Government troops under Gen. Pena. Unable to cut off the rebel retreat, the Federals returned to Monterey.

NEW THAW REQUISITION

Filed in New Hampshire to Correct Error—Decision To-morrow.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 6.—W. H. Lewis, an assistant in the office of William Travers Jerome, arrived in Concord at 10:30 o'clock to-night with a new set of extradition papers in the Harry K. Thaw case. The papers, the third set filed in this case by New York State, were delivered to Bernard Jacobs, Mr. Jerome's New Hampshire assistant, who filed them at the office of the Secretary of State before midnight.

The filing of a third set was made necessary through an error probably made in Gov. Glynn's office. In the requisition filed Oct. 12 it was stated that Thaw had committed a crime in the County of Dutchess, while the indictment annexed alleged a crime committed in New York County. The new requisition is exactly the same as the last previous one except that the word "New York" is substituted for "Dutchess." This typographical error was noted by Judge William M. Chase in the last brief filed with Gov. Felker by the Thaw side.

Gov. Felker says he will not delay the decision in the Thaw case until next Tuesday, as he had intended, but will make it Saturday morning.

CHANGE MONEY BILL ON VANDERLIP LINES

Senators' Amendments, Due to Republican Votes, Rouse Wilson Men's Hostility.

TANGLE WORSE THAN EVER

Bill Lets Public Hold Bank Stock—Board Elects Most Directors—Gold Redemption Only.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—With Administration Senators redoubling their efforts to protect the Owen-Glass bill by a show of force in caucus, the Committee on Banking and Currency adopted three amendments to-day, all tending to make the bill more than ever like the Vanderlip proposal for a central bank. As a result, Mr. Kern of Indiana, the majority leader of the Senate, telegraphed all absent Democrats, urging their immediate return to Washington. For fear that recalcitrant partisans might bolt a caucus, it is expected that an informal conference will be called first in an effort to straighten the worst situation that has yet confronted the bill in the Senate.

By a vote of 7 to 5 the committee decided to allow the public to subscribe to the capital stock of the regional reserve banks, giving them sixty days to do so, the banks being compelled to take only what was left.

Senators Reed and Hitchcock, Democrats, joined the five Republicans voting for the resolution, over the protests of Senators Owen, Pomerene, Shafroth, Hollis, and O'Gorman, the remaining Democrats. The provision in the House bill to compel national banks to subscribe 10 per cent. of their capital to the new system, under penalty of losing their charters, was eliminated by this amendment, which was one of the proposals of the Vanderlip plan.

By an identical vote the central bank idea was further engrafted on the bill by giving the Federal Reserve Board the right to appoint a majority of five out of the nine Directors of the regional banks.

By a vote of 8 to 4, the proposed new currency was made redeemable solely in gold, instead of in gold and lawful money, a change earnestly advocated by Mr. Vanderlip and by practically every banker that testified before the committee.

The one victory for the Administration was a vote of 8 to 4 retaining the House provision for notes on the credit of the Government instead of making the new currency consist of banknotes which the Government in some sort indorsed.

O'Gorman Opposes Amendments.

An interesting feature of the votes was that Mr. O'Gorman of New York, who has been among the active insurgents, voted against all the adopted amendments, except that eliminating lawful money from the notes' redemption. Mr. Hitchcock of Nebraska, Mr. Reed of Missouri, and all the Republicans supported the popular subscription amendment and that increasing the authority of the Central Board. All the Democrats, and Mr. Crawford of South Dakota, voted to retain the House provision for Treasury notes.

Another change made in the bill to-day that is expected in some measure to placate the banks makes the capital stock of all the regional banks equal 6 per cent. of the capital and surplus of the national banks of the country, instead of fixing it at 20 per cent. of the capitalization of the member banks. It is estimated that this will make the aggregate capitalization of the proposed system about $106,000,000, or about equal to the paid-in capital required by the House bill, though the remaining 10 per cent. of capitalization, which, under the House measure, remained a liability against member banks, was dropped altogether. One-third of the capital provided in to-day's amendment must be paid up at once, another third at the end of the first month, and the remaining third a month later.

All the amendments adopted to-day are distasteful to President Wilson except possibly that changing the mode of estimating the amount of capital stock. They are equally distasteful to Chairman Owen and the bare majority of the Democratic members who side with him. These Administration members, who make a minority of the whole committee, show no intention of accepting the amended bill for the sake of harmony, so that a report on the general principles already agreed to would find the committee divided and a majority of the Democratic members opposing the report.

It is still problematical how the situation can be improved by party action. The feeling among the Democratic leaders seems this evening to be that a binding caucus is out of the question and would simply result in accentuating differences within the party. But it is hoped that a free exchange of views in conference may serve to show in general terms what sort of a bill the party in the Senate wants, so that the Democrats of the committee may be guided in their future course.

Hostile to Republican Changes.

Senators friendly to the Administration were outspoken to-day in predicting that a bill amended largely by Republican votes would not be able to command party support in the Senate. Some weeks ago Senator Tillman of South Carolina advised the President to "run a freight train over the recalcitrant Democrats," and that seems to be the view to-night of the extreme Wilson wing of the party.

"There is no reason to suppose that the Democrats on the floor of the Senate will support a bill that did not have the support of a majority of the Democrats in committee," said Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who handled the Tariff bill through the Summer. He intimated that a caucus or conference would be held, though he did not commit himself in its favor.

"I do not propose to vote for a currency bill that is five-sixths Republican," said Senator Vardaman of Mississippi, another Democrat.

"The Republicans have adopted every amendment they proposed in committee with a single exception," said Chairman Owen this afternoon. "Those amendments were distasteful to a majority of the committee, and the grouping of them all in the bill on which the final report must be made will not please us any more. There can be no unanimous report for the amendments the committee has adopted."

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, the Democratic whip, was another advocate of party action coercing the committee. Mr. Owen seemed to think a party caucus would seek either to direct the Democrats of the committee to take certain action regarding the bill or would else decide on a motion in the Senate discharging the committee from further consideration. The latter course would bring the bill to the floor of the Senate, while directions to the committee members might be disregarded, at least by Mr. Hitchcock, who has the sweeping support of his constituents in the fight he is making.

It does not seem now that bringing the bill to the floor of the Senate, unless all Democrats are bound in advance, would in the least improve the chances of the House bill. On particular amendments the Democrats would lose their majority in the Senate just as they have done in committee, and the only difference would be that in the open Senate party discipline might make itself felt a little more strongly.

When the committee adjourned there was pending a proposal advanced by Senator Crawford to allow the regional banks to do a general commercial banking business. The amendments adopted, with Senator Crawford's amendment, Chairman Owen said, would "alter the entire theory of the bill."

"We started out," he added, "to write a bill which would provide a bank of banks, with the power of rediscount and of issue, and which would mobilize the banking reserves. Now we have shifted about to a public-owned, Government controlled bank, and it is proposed to let it do a general banking business in competition with the 25,000 banks throughout the country."

FEAR CURRENCY FILIBUSTER.

Republicans May Seize Upon Premature Seating of Lee as Pretext.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—There is a strong possibility that the complications that may arise in the Senate over the seating of Senator-elect Baird Lee of Maryland, if attempted before the Maryland Legislature meets in January, will cause a Republican filibuster in behalf of Senator Jackson of Maryland that will delay the action of the Senate on the Administration Currency bill.

Senator Jackson was appointed by Gov. Goldsborough on Nov. 29 of last year, before the constitutional amendment for direct election of Senators was ratified, and was given credentials to serve until the meeting of the Maryland Legislature in January. Should Gov. Goldsborough hold back the credentials of Senator-elect Lee until the State Legislature meets in January there could be no contest over his right to take his seat at that time in the United States Senate.

But Senator Jackson feels that he is entitled to and can legally serve until after the Legislature meets, and any attempt to present Senator Lee's credentials before that time is expected to start a contest. Nothing would be more convenient for filibustering purposes in the Senate against the Currency bill than the precipitation of a constitutional question over the right of Senator Lee to his seat before the Legislature of his State meets.

An interesting development of the situation to-day was the fact that the pay of Senator Jackson, his clerk, and stenographer has been stopped, beginning with Tuesday, the day that Senator-elect Lee was elected in the Maryland primaries. It has been the custom in the Senate, whenever a Senator has been appointed by a Governor, to fill out an unexpired term until the meeting of a State Legislature, for the financial officers of the Senate to start the pay of the Senator thus chosen by the Legislature from the day he was so elected. This has been the practice for years, and it has been followed in the case of Senator Lee, who, while not sworn, will draw pay from Nov. 5 unless the Senate should order otherwise.

Letters were to-day sent by the financial officer of the Senate to Senator Jackson and his clerk, notifying them that, unless the Senate orders otherwise, they will receive no more pay.

SCHIFF SOUNDS A WARNING.

Conditions Will Grow Difficult if Currency Reform Is Delayed.

Jacob H. Schiff sounded a warning at yesterday's meeting of the Chamber of Commerce against delay in passing the currency bill.

"If the pending bill to adjust the currency system is not enacted within a short time—not necessarily at the present session—the results may be serious," he said. "If the measure is not properly amended and we get away from the goal which is now in sight we will get into very difficult conditions in this country.

"I think a great mistake is being made, especially in the East, in maintaining an attitude that if we can't get what we want in currency legislation we would rather have no change. The pending bill is based upon the report of the Monetary Commission, and so much of it is good that to say that it is all bad is not statesmanship but partisanship."

Mr. Schiff was asked at his office later in the day to state what serious conditions were likely to appear if the currency bill should be held back. In reply he wrote out this statement:

"The difficulty I foresee, unless a proper currency bill be enacted, will be a great disappointment and discouragement of the people, particularly in the agricultural regions. A curtailment of commercial credits may result, and difficulties arise in the obtainment of real estate loans."

Mr. Schiff spoke of the currency bill at the meeting in seconding a motion made by A. Barton Hepburn that the President of the Chamber appoint a committee of three members whose duty shall be to obtain as far as possible, by conferring with Congress, the amendments to the bill which were recommended by the Chamber of Commerce at a recent special meeting. The motion was carried. The committee will be made up of business men.

in the courtroom during McGuire's testimony, and kept his eyes fastened on the witness. McGuire, however, never met his gaze. When Hennessy was called to the stand, McGuire retired to an anteroom, where Eugene D. Wood, ex-lobbyist, was awaiting his turn to testify. McGuire, therefore, had not seen the telegram produced, and Mr. Whitman recalled him to ask him whether he had sent the telegram. McGuire read the telegram hastily, and denied that he or any representative had had anything to do with it.

"I didn't sign that telegram," he said. "It bears the letter 'M.'"

McGuire Confers with Whitman.

McGuire appeared at the Criminal Court Building during the morning and again during the early afternoon. He had two conferences with Mr. Whitman before he took the stand at 3:20 P. M. Hennessy also had a conference with Mr. Whitman before the session began, and so did Wood. It is expected that Wood will be called when the inquiry is resumed next Tuesday afternoon. A process server handed a subpoena to Wood calling for his appearance at that time. It was said that in conferences with Mr. Whitman only partially had he corroborated Hennessy's story about the alleged Murphy-Brady and the McCall-Plunkitt conferences about a Supreme Court nomination in the Hoffman House in 1902.

Whitman Questions McGuire.

When McGuire was called to the witness stand he said he was 36 years old. He was, he said, in the general insurance corporate bonding business, under the name of McGuire & Co., Inc., Syracuse. His two brothers, James K. McGuire, for six years Mayor of Syracuse, and Charles M. McGuire, he explained, were associated with him, but were not active in the management of the business. He himself, he said, was general manager and treasurer of the concern and responsible for its acts. He was agent, he said, for some fifty insurance companies, but the United States Fidelity and Guarantee Company of Baltimore got most of his business.

"What is the nature of your business?" Mr. Whitman asked.

"We furnish bonds, liability insurance, etc.," said Mr. McGuire. "We bond contractors for contracts for State buildings, municipal sewers and street pavements, and for contracts on the State barge canal and State highways. We have written a large number of bonds on the barge canal contracts."

The United States Fidelity and Guarantee Company of Baltimore, Mr. McGuire said through his office, did two-thirds of the barge canal bonding business and also a large amount of bonding for contractors doing work on the State highways. His company, McGuire said, had more of this business than all his competitors combined.

"Do you know John A. Hennessy?" Mr. Whitman asked.

"Yes, Sir. I met him first in Albany shortly after Jan. 1, last."

"Did you have a conversation with him in January?"

"I don't recall."

"Do you recall the first conversation you had?" persisted Mr. Whitman. The witness hesitated a long time before he answered: "No, I had several but I can't remember when or where the first one was."

"Do you know William Sulzer?" Mr. Whitman asked.

"Yes, I saw him first when he sought the nomination as Governor."

"Did you see him in a Syracuse hotel during the convention last Fall?"

Handed $500 to Sulzer.

Mr. McGuire said that he had met Sulzer both before and after his nomination and that he had congratulated him on the nomination. When Mr. Whitman asked as to his further dealings with Sulzer, McGuire hesitated again. Then he said he would rather not answer the question. Chief Magistrate McAdoo directed him to answer, and the witness said:

"I saw him in his room at the Hotel Onondaga the morning of the day following his nomination. I congratulated him and told him I wanted to see him elected. I offered a contribution. He was very confident of his election. He said a contribution would be acceptable, and I went and got the contribution, which I gave him."

"What was it?" asked Mr. Whitman.

"Five hundred dollars," said the witness unhesitatingly.

"In what form was it paid?"

"In bills."

"Were you alone?"

"Yes, in the bathroom. That was the day after he was nominated."

"Did you see him between that time and his inauguration as Governor?"

"Yes, I saw him in Washington at the New Willard Hotel, and I had a conversation with him there."

"Did you talk about the bonding business?" asked Mr. Whitman.

"Yes, I told him how our business worked, but at Washington he told me he wanted me for his private secretary. He had investigated me, he said. I was desirable, he said, because I knew about the up-State counties, but he had found out, he added, that the salary was not enough for me, and that he had decided he wouldn't ask me to accept.

"I told him I could not have afforded to take the place, and that I was glad he didn't ask me. I told him my business was prosperous, and took me all over the State, and that I didn't want to give it up for a political job. I told him I would be just as friendly to him as if I were on the pay roll."

"Were you ever on the pay roll?" Mr. Whitman asked.

"No, I never held or sought public office. I recently declined an Internal Revenue position in the Twenty-first Federal District embracing twenty counties up-State. The tender was made by the Wilson Administration."

"Did you inform Sulzer of your receipts from contractors?"

"Well, after his inauguration I saw Sulzer in Albany, and he asked me what I made. He was of the opinion that I made much more out of contractors than I really did."

Mention of many trips to Albany prompted Mr. Whitman to inquire the nature of his business there and McGuire explained that Albany was the centre of the up-State contracting business and that he had to go there to get his share of the business. It was there, he said, that bids on public work were opened and it was to his advantage, he said, to visit the lowest bidder immediately.

When he was asked about subsequent conversations with Sulzer, McGuire said:

"I saw Sulzer many times before his inauguration. He sent me a box from Washington containing a bust of himself. He asked me to place it in the Public Library of Syracuse or in the Democratic Club. I presented the bust—"

The courtroom was in laughter and Mr. Whitman called a halt.

"Was there any talk between you and Gov. Sulzer about contract bonds?" Mr. Whitman continued.

"Yes, I told him the nature of my business and he understood it," said the witness. "That is why he made me a member of the Highway Board, an honorary board serving without pay. It was at his request that I became Secretary of the Board."

When the District Attorney broached the subject of his visits to Sulzer after the impeachment resolution had been passed the witness hesitated.

"Is that a part of this investigation?" he asked.

"It is," replied Chief Magistrate McAdoo, "and I direct you to answer."

"In the latter part of August I was in Albany to solicit business from the lowest bidder on the highway contract which was to be opened," the witness began. "That day Sulzer telephoned me at my hotel and asked me to come to his house at 9 o'clock that night. That was before his trial. I went and the butler admitted me. There was no one in the hall, but soon the butler returned and asked me to step into the room at the right. That was the Governor's study. The Governor was in that room.

Sulzer Asked for $2,500.

"The Governor was greatly disturbed. There was a high pile of newspapers before him. He commented upon the headlines and editorials, and called my attention to some which were favorable to him. He asked me if I had any good news. I told him I had nothing of importance that would be of any service to him. He said that his friends had been leaving him. He needed money, and needed it right away. He asked me for money. 'How much do you want me to give?' I asked. He said he wanted $2,500."

"He talked as if he depended on me as a friend. He said he was in great distress. He said John A. Hennessy was after him for money. I told him $2,500 was a large sum for me to give, but he urged me again and again and asked me whether I had a check in my pocket. This was on a Monday, I believe, in the last week of August. I told him I had no check, but would go home to Syracuse and bring back the money on Wednesday. He said that would not do because he needed it right away. He said Hennessy wanted it right away. He said if he got out of trouble, he would give me the money back out of the contingent fund. He said he'd get a blank check, and stepped out of the door."

Here Mr. McGuire gave a description of the interior of the Executive Mansion, and Assistant District Attorney Clark made a pencil sketch of the parlor floor from the description.

"I followed him out," continued the witness, "intending to leave the house. I got my hat. 'Wait,' said Gov. Sulzer. 'I want you to sign this check.' At the end of the hall there was a man and the Governor asked that man to get him some blank checks. I think the man was Mr. Frankenstein. I'm not sure of the name, but I know it was Gov. Sulzer's former law partner here in New York. He was a small-set man. Frankenstein brought the blank check and the Governor asked me to sign it. I told him I had no account on which I could draw $2,500. I explained that I would have to go to the bank because I had a joint account which required two signatures. I told him I would go to Syracuse to get the money and bring it to Albany on the next day. He said: 'When you get the money, go to The Tub and give it to John A. Hennessy.'"

"Did you leave for Syracuse?" Mr. Whitman asked.

"No, business prevented me," replied the witness. "It was on the following Wednesday night that I paid my bill at the Hotel Ten Eyck nad took my bag to go home. There was an Albany call for me at the desk. The girl got the number, and Gov. Sulzer answered the telephone. The Governor said, 'George, have you got that?' I said, 'No, I haven't been home yet because I've been detained. I'll go home to-night and be back to-morrow.' Then the Governor said, 'Don't fail me; I need it.'"

Mr. Whitman pressed McGuire for a continuation of the narrative, and he went on:

Drew Money in Bills.

"I went to the First National Bank of Syracuse the next day and drew a check payable to cash for $2,500. I drew on the account of myself and my brother. I presented the check to the teller, and he gave me $2,500 in bills. I put the bills in a bank envelope, and then went to the telegraph office and wired John A. Hennessy to meet me at The Tub at 7:15 o'clock."

"Had you any conversation with Hennessy about the $2,500?" interrupted Mr Whitman.

"No," said the witness. Continuing he said: "I left Syracuse at 4:30 P. M. on the Empire State Express and reached Albany at 7 o'clock and met Mr. Hennessy on the steps of The Tub. He knew me. He took me into the hotel sitting room. There were chairs and we both sat down. I handed the envelope to Hennessy. 'That's the money the Governor told me to give you,' I said. He received the bills and put them into his pocket. 'Be sure and tell him I gave you the money,' I added, 'because he wants it to-night.'"

"Did you have a conversation with Hennessy in Utica in September?" asked Mr. Whitman, following up the Hennessy statement to that effect made at the first session of the "John Doe" inquiry.

"Yes, Sir, on Friday afternoon, Sept. 12, Gov. Sulzer called me at my office at Syracuse on long-distance telephone. The operator rang my bell at my desk. Then the Governor came to the phone. 'George,' he said, 'I want you to go to Utica to-night and meet Hennessy there in the hotel as a favor to me.' I told him I would ask you.' He set the time for 9 o'clock. Later I received a telegram from the Governor which said, 'Time of appointment 8 P. M., instead of 9, place Hotel Utica.' I went to the Hotel Utica and saw Hennessy there."

McGuire said he and Hennessy went to his room and smoked. Hennessy told him, he said, that Gov. Sulzer had directed him several weeks before to go up to Erie County and take part in the primaries. According to McGuire, Hennessy told him at that time that it was Gov. Sulzer who had directed him to make charges against Norman E. Mack, former National Democratic Committee Chairman, for not having accounted for campaign contributions.

"Mr. Hennessy said to me that he would make the charges against Mack if they could be backed up," said McGuire. "He told me that Sulzer had told him to go ahead and make them and that he (Sulzer) would stand behind him. Hennessy said that Sulzer had given him the names of three or four men who had contributed whose contributions were not recorded. Mr. Hennessy told me that he had made the charges in Buffalo and that they had caused a lot of excitement."

"Mr. Hennessy said that he was now in trouble," continued the witness, not once glancing toward Mr. Hennessy, who had his eyes fixed on him. "Mr. Hennessy said that Mr. Mack had denied the charges; that Mack had agreed to come before him and testify; that he feared he did not have the necessary information to prove his case. He said he was afraid Mack would sue him and recover for slander. He said that Sulzer had referred him to me, and that the Governor had said I knew all the contractors throughout the State. Hennessy said that he had been told that such and such contractors had made contributions. He asked me what I knew about it."

Denies Giving Names.

Mr. Hennessy eyed the witness with particular sharpness while some of the names of the contractors concerning whom he said Hennessy had made inquiries were mentioned. At first McGuire told Mr. Whitman that he gave no information whatever to Mr. Hennessy. He had never talked to any contractors, he said, about contributions. He had never given any names to Mr. Hennessy. The only contributions he knew about, he finally acknowledged, were those he had collected himself in 1910 or 1911. When Mr. Whitman asked him why he had made collections for the Democratic Party he said that he was interested in his party and desired to do something for it.

The contractors named by McGuire as having handed money to him for campaign purposes were Patrick Murray of Buffalo, Scott Brothers of Rome, N. Y., the Kinser Construction Company of Chicago, Ludington Brothers of Rochester, Larkin & Sangster of Seneca Falls, and M. A. Talbott of Rome. The highest contribution, he said, was $500, and the lowest $50.

Mr. Whitman wanted to know from the witness why he had refused to give information to Hennessy when at the same time he was desirous of helping Sulzer out of his difficulties. The witness said that he was willing to tell the District Attorney everything, but that he saw no reason why he should tell Hennessy a single thing. Mr. Whitman asked him if he thought it was a mere coincidence that all of the contractors whom he had named as contributors should appear on the list which Hennessy said had been given to him by McGuire. McGuire said that it must be a coincidence.

James K. McGuire, his brother, the witness said, was associated with the Barber Asphalt Company prior to 1910. He had never known that the Barber Asphalt Company was a campaign contributor, he said. There was no connection, he said, between the size of the contribution and the size of a contract, and his own bonding business, he wanted it understood, was just as prosperous during the Hughes Administration as during the Dix and Sulzer Administrations.

When Mr. Hennessy was called to the stand he told for the first time how a number of New York and up-State citizens had leagued together to pay for the Hennessy investigation. Geo. W. Perkins, he said, was one of five men who had volunteered to pay all expenses. Mr. Hennessy said that he had opposed this plan and wanted a group of twenty contributors. He had started, he said, to make up this group and a number of checks were sent to Henry L. Stoddard, editor of The Evening Mail, as treasurer of this special fund. He named Jacob H. Schiff, Henry P. Burgard of Buffalo, and Joseph Murphy of Troy as contributors of $1,000 each. Others interested in this investigation fund, he said, were Herman Ridder, Herbert H. Lehman, Geo. Foster Peabody, Henry Morgenthau, and Thomas Mott Osborne.

The $2,500 received from McGuire, Hennessy said, was sent to Mr. Stoddard. He produced a checkbook which, he said, would show that the $2,500 had been deposited in his bank and checked out to Henry L. Stoddard the following day.

"Mr. McGuire is inaccurate," said Mr. Hennessy, "when he says that he didn't discuss the matter of the $2,500 with me. Mr. McGuire, like Mr. Burgard, wanted to defeat Murphy. He knew all the time the money was not for the Governor, but for me. He didn't want it known that he was going to contribute, but he wanted these things about the contractors to come out, so that Murphy would be defeated in Bufalo; that's why he wouldn't give me a check, only cash. I told McGuire that Mr. Stoddard wanted a list of the contractors who had contributed, but McGuire said 'No.' I sent a note to Mr. Stoddard with my check, and, of course, this correspondence can be subpoenaed.

"There is no doubt what the money was wanted for; it was intended to defeat the Democratic machine. Two thousand dollars of that money went to the Burns Detective Agency. They worked for me on the highways."

"As for the list of contractors," continued Mr. Hennessy, waving a batch of papers in his hands, "I wrote the names down as McGuire gave them to me. They were given to me by him and by nobody else. And I can prove it."

It was here that Mr. Hennessy produced the telegram and then McGuire was recalled.

Mr. Whitman asked McGuire whether he had supported the Progressives or the Republicans in Syracuse. McGuire said that he had contributed $750 to the Democratic County Committee of Onondaga, and that he had also assisted the Democratic Mayor. He did not directly deny having supported other parties. McGuire was directed to appear again as a witness at 2:30 next Tuesday afternoon.

SULZER'S VERSION.

Says McGuire Gave Him $350, Which Went for Printing.

William Sulzer, in reference to the testimony given by George H. McGuire at the John Doe inquiry, said last night:

"George H. McGuire gave me $350 the day after I was nominated for Governor, not $500, and this sum was a part of the $5,000 I gave to John H. Delaney the first part of October, 1912, to pay for the printing of the Democratic State Committee, but Delaney kept this money and has never denied it. This $5,000 embraced the first money I received as a candidate and about which so much has been said.

"Subsequently I gave Delaney the $10,000 Alan Ryan sent me, and Delaney gave this money to Murphy. Mr. Murphy told me afterward that he had received it. The detectaphone proved it.

"The testimony on my trial showed that I received about $27,000 as donations and contributions during the time I was a candidate for Governor. Of this amount $15,000 went to Delaney and Murphy, as I have indicated, and the other $12,000 went to the Sulzer Campaign Committee, of which Delaney, Sarecky, Horgan, and others were members. Instead of making money as a candidate for Governor, I lost money: and besides, I was swindled right and left by men I trusted and who betrayed me. So much for that.

"When the Legislature refused to give me the usual appropriations for investigations I began to uncover millions of dollars of graft throughout the State. The expenses of course, had to be borne by citizens interested in the good work. Several of my friends at my suggestion, gave my investigator, Mr. Hennessy, money to pay for this work, McGuire among them—and so far as that is concerned I gave Mr. Hennessy $2,500 out of my own pocket.

"These people were really lending money to the State to pay the legitimate expenses of these important investigations, the result of which speak for themselves.

"No doubt the State will reimburse these people at the proper time. If these investigations had not been stopped by the grafters and their political friends our work for honest government would now be far advanced. My removal from the Governorship was decreed when I refused to call off Hennessy."

Hennessy's Aid Reconsiders His Refusal to Produce Highway Findings.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 6.—John Martin, the former aid to John A. Hennessy in the highway graft investigations, who said that he had found no evidences of graft, and then failed to produce his field notes, as requested by Hennessy, told Commissioner John N. Carlisle today that when Mr. Hennessy returned to Albany on Monday he would produce the notes.

Martin, who told Mr. Hennessy on Wednesday afternoon that he would bring his notebooks to Mr. Hennessy that afternoon, and then failed to appear, explained yesterday that the notes were made before he was connected with the Highway Department and were his personal property. No engineer, he said, ever gave up his field notes after making a report, retaining them so that if afterward any question arose as to the correctness of the report, he could substantiate his assertions.

BRITISH GOODS BEST, NORTHCLIFFE SAYS

But Not Properly Pushed—Speech at Banquet of Advertising Men in London.

PUBLICITY A VERY OLD ART

Science Now Developing It — Idea That It Is Only a Means of Puffing the Pinchbeck Has Disappeared.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Presiding to-night at the banquet of the National Advertising Society, Lord Northcliffe delivered an interesting speech on the "amazing development of advertising."

Describing publicity as "an old, old art," Lord Northcliffe said:

"When Rameses sent men throughout Egypt stamping his mark on national monuments, he was a very early exemplar of one of the worst uses of publicity—personal notoriety, a form of it from which even to-day we do not appear to be free. When William the Norman put up castles throughout England he was publishing the fact of power. The church bell calling attention to the service within, the muezzin summoning the faithful at eventide to the mosque, the regimental march throughout a district, and the stationing of recruiting officers in market places—all are ancient forms of publicity.

"No less stirring than the wireless publicity accorded to the heroes of the Titanic were the garlanded coaches of the last century, carrying from village to village and town to town the news of our victory and our great loss at Trafalgar and the thrill of Waterloo.

"Just as science is improving agriculture, so is science developing publicity. King Charles's advertisement for his lost dog, one of the earliest English announcements, has been developed into newspaper advertising in which specialists—writers, and artists of the highest talents—are engaged.

"Publicity is not perfect. Its methods run riot, but it is improving, is gaining the responsibility that comes with power.

"The idea that advertising is merely a method of puffing the pinchbeck and the catchpenny has, I think, long passed. Only the best ideas, the best manufactures, will stand the test of advertising.

"We English have been slower and staider than most other peoples in developing advertising. We have avoided the pitfalls of pioneers, and I am not sorry, therefore, for our lateness, though it is time that we bestirred ourselves. All civilized people know that whatever we make in this little British workshop is the best. Our reputation throughout the world is that our goods are sold less cleverly than those of others, pushed less vigorously, less attractively packed, but that they are the best.

"That fact is our real national stock in trade. Our goods are so excellent that now, alas! they are imitated everywhere—dishonestly, ruthlessly. Only publicity can check that evil."

Lord Northcliffe, referring to the clever use the Canadian and Australian Governments have made of advertising to attract immigrants, suggested that the British Government might follow their example, at any rate in some departments. He thought the difficulty of recruiting for the army might be overcome by an alert advertising campaign in the press.

There was a notable gathering at the banquet of representatives of the principal advertising interests of the world. J. L. Garvin, editor of The Pall Mall Gazette, made a speech in which he paid a high tribute to Lord Northcliffe as an organizer. He said Lord Northcliffe's career was "nothing less than prodigious, unparalleled, one of the most remarkable examples of sheer creative and constructive genius in the modern world." He was proof that facts were stranger than fairy tales. He had become the youngest peer created in the history of Parliament and the proprietor of The Times. This was a tale of real life that "knocked Dick Whittington into a civic cocked hat."

PEER MAY GO TO ANTARCTIC.

Anxious to Join Stackhouse Expedition, Which Starts Next Year.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Commander Robert C. Evans, Honorary Secretary of the British Antarctic Expedition of 1914, which is to be under the command of J. Foster, Stackhouse and will continue the work of Capt. Robert F. Scott, has issued an appeal for public support. In it he says:

"Nothing touches the heart more nearly in Scott's immortal journals than the sense of disappointment at his finding the footprints of another before him at the pole, but in the splendid courage of their death, those men have left us a finer legacy than the planting of the flag.

"They lighted a lamp which shall never go out, and at this moment the glow of it is shining upon the men who are preparing to go out to the antarctic next Summer."

Commander Evans adds that Capt. Scott, before setting out on his last expedition, urged Mr. Stackhouse to undertake the duty of commanding a scientific expedition to King Edward VII. Land.

A peer wishes to become a member of the expedition. Commander Evans refuses to give his name, but says he is a wealthy man and very anxious to go.

MARCONI RIVALS CAN TRY.

Second Wireless Station in British Imperial Chain to be Built.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Postmaster General Samuel announces that he is prepared to consider applications to tender for the construction of the second of the three high-power wireless stations of the Imperial chain, from any wireless company, syndicate or contractors who, by means of practical demonstration, can satisfy him of the efficiency of their system. The three stations referred to are those in India, South Africa, and at Singapore.

Under the new Marconi contract power is given to the Postmaster General to cancel the agreement in respect to these stations with the view to the introduction of some other than the Marconi system. There is a proviso, however, that in regard to these stations the Postmaster General must not give any preference to any company or contractor over the Marconi Company if the latter show to his satisfaction that they can provide the Marconi system with equal efficiency and economy.

HINDUS BURY GOLD.

Government of India Trying to Provide a Safe Banking System.

CALCUTTA, Nov. 6.—The continued failure of banks in India is causing much alarm, and the Government is contemplating legislation restricting the use of the term "bank" in this country. The Government has no intention of imposing irksome restrictions on solid banking institutions conducted by either foreign or domestic concerns.

Some of the clauses of the new measure, approved by the Marquis of Crewe, Secretary of State for India, bear striking resemblances to many of the provisions of the Currency bill now before Congress in Washington, and it is believed that the Indian Government has availed itself of information furnished as the result of the Senatorial hearing on banking and currency.

India also has banking problems peculiar to herself. The Indian public is slowly substituting for the time-honored custom of burying its gold the more lucrative practice of making bank deposits, bearing interest. The Government considers that this practice should not only continue unchecked, but should be encouraged by legislation which will make the deposits as safe as possible.

For years the world's supply of silver has been appreciably lowered by the Indians' habit of burying their savings, but the abundance of this metal has rendered this practice comparatively harmless as far as the rest of the world is concerned.

Lately, however, with increased prosperity, the East Indians have begun to bury gold, with alarming results on the world's gold supply. Hence the anxiety of the Government to give India an irreproachable banking system.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—The Chamber of Deputies to-day adopted a resolution suggesting that the Government confer the decoration of the Legion of Honor on the organizers of the conference last Spring, when members of the American Commission on Agricultural Organization, Co-operation and Rural Credits visited France to study the systems in operation here in company with the members of a French commission appointed for the purpose.

It is generally assumed here that the Americans as well as the French organizers will receive the decoration.

The resolution was moved by the Socialist Deputy Marius Deveze.

BANQUET IN HIS HONOR

Message from Wilson Read at London Gathering—Bryce Refers to Importance of Canada's Interests.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—A large and distinguished gathering welcomed the Right Hon. James Bryce, recently Ambassador at Washington, at a dinner given in his honor by the Pilgrims tonight.

The American Ambassador, Walter H. Page, read messages from President Wilson, Joseph H. Choate, ex-Ambassador at London, and others. President Wilson's message was as follows:

Few men have done more than James Bryce in strengthening the ties of friendship and brotherhood which unite England and America, and have been the cause of common aspiration and high example to the whole world.

The President of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, Charles C. Moore, cabled:

I still hope that the British and American flags will wave together at San Francisco in 1915.

Mr. Bryce began his speech by expressing the belief that the Panama question would be solved in a manner satisfactory to both countries. That belief, he said, was based on his conviction of the high rectitude and elevated sense of honor and international justice possessed by President Wilson.

A large part of Mr. Bryce's speech was devoted indirectly and directly to replying to criticisms made by the Conservative papers of his work as Ambassador. He emphasized the idea that the British Ambassador to the United States has to deal with problems between Canada and the United States, for, he said, Canada's interests were as important to the Empire as were England's. He then made a direct reply to these criticisms, saying that he would not have noticed them, except for the important principle involved.

An Ambassador to a foreign country, he said, acted merely as the agent of his Government and carried out the instructions of his Government. The critics acted in ignorance, because the only persons who knew what the Ambassador was saying or doing were the officials of his Foreign Office and himself. The danger was that criticisms of an Ambassador by the press of his own country had the effect of weakening his status and prestige with the country to which he was accredited.

Amused by Criticisms.

He himself, Mr. Bryce went on, had once been criticised for being absent from Washington. The criticism amused him, but he hoped that the bad precedent would not be set of criticising servants of the Crown when they were absent upon business abroad, thereby injuring the public service itself.

After thanking the Pilgrims for their welcome back to him in England, Mr. Bryce said that when he resigned his place in the Cabinet more than six years ago and went to the United States in order to try to settle a number of long outstanding questions, he foresaw a laborious and difficult task. But everybody had made him feel as home in America. He had been treated like one of their own citizens, indeed better, for he had escaped the criticism which in all modern countries was so liberally bestowed upon public men. He had negotiated with three Presidents and four Secretaries of State, with all of whom his relations had been most cordial. Of none of those Secretaries of State he ought specially to refer, because Mr. Root was in office when he reached Washington, and it was with Mr. Root that he negotiated most of the twelve or thirteen treaties which had been concluded between the two countries in the years 1907-12.

"When I, Mr. Root and I," Mr. Bryce continued, "began to make treaties, the first thing we did was to make friends with one another; and friendship is a great aid to business. I found in Mr. Root not only a brilliant intellect, but what is even better and perhaps more rare, an eminently fair mind, capable of seeing both sides to every question and a sincere love of peace. Mr. Root exemplified in practice the dictum he had once delivered, that there is no international controversy that cannot be honorably settled if both parties wish to settle it. Here the good will of the two nations was behind the negotiations; and it was our good fortune to settle all the questions that had been outstanding between us, and among these that old and thorny controversy over the North Atlantic fisheries, which had more than once threatened their good relations.

"Most of these questions related to Canada. I have always felt that it is the duty of an Ambassador to regard and maintain the interests of Canada and the other Dominions no less than of Great Britain. Most of my work was concerned with Canada, and I should be ungrateful were I not to tell you of the unceasing and invaluable cooperation of Lord Grey, who was Governor General. His successor, the Duke of Connaught, kindly extended to me during the last year of my stay like counsel and aid; while from the two successive Prime Ministers, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Borden I had constant confidence which it is a pleasure to acknowledge.

"Returning hither from America, I have two things to say to the British Pilgrims, gathered here as friends of the American people. One is that you must not take too seriously the lurid pictures of American life drawn in some organs of the European press. In Washington, I used to be struck by the dark view which the press news from England conveyed of British events and conditions, a view which I knew to be misleading. Here the same thing happens. Cable messages and the vivid pens of correspondents inevitably heighten the color. Unlike stocks, news would be better for being watered when crossing the sea.

Anglo-American Friendship.

"My other message is to assure you that the friendship you entertain for the people of the United States is reciprocated by them far more universally and far more heartily than ever before. There is a friendship of Governments and a friendship of nations. The former may shift with the shifting of material interests or be affected by the relations of each power with other powers, but the latter rests on solid and permanent foundations. With our two peoples it is based on community of speech, of literature, of institutions, of beliefs, of traditions from the past, of ideals for the future. In all these things the British and American peoples are closer than any two other peoples can be. Nature and history have meant them to be friends.

"Next year we are planning to celebrate the completion of a century of unbroken peace between Great Britain and the United States. For our two peoples the celebration has a special significance. But it is much to be desired that other peoples also should be associated with it, and that both by our example and by our worldwide influence we may together try to reduce the apprehensions that trouble the rest of other nations, and endeavor to draw more and more of them into a general league of peace."

In introducing Mr. Bryce Ambassador Page, who presided, paid a high tribute to him as Ambassador, as interpreter of the nation and its institutions, and as man. He said that Mr. Bryce served during the time of three American Presidents, and all three had expressed to himself (Mr. Page) the high opinion and sincere esteem in which they held Mr. Bryce. When Mr. Bryce came home he came with the sincere regret of the President and the people of America, a regret which in no way conflicted with the equally hearty welcome accorded to his successor, who now so ably represented the British Government at Washington.

"I welcome him home," Mr. Page said, "as the Ambassador Emeritus to the American people. All his blushing honors have been nobly won."

The American Ambassador then spoke of Mr. Bryce's great popularity in every State all of which he had visited. The only honors America could confer were academic, and Mr. Bryce had more of these from American colleges than even "that least quiet academician who is now harvesting a crop of such honors in South America."

The more prominent guests present at the dinner included Sir John Cockburn, Lord Saye and Sele, Viscount Morley, Thomas Mackenzie, High Commissioner for New Zealand; Col. Sir Percy Girouard, Lord Cowdray, Nell Primrose, M. P.; Sir William Mather, Charles F. Adams, Myron T. Herrick, American Ambassador at Paris; the Earl of Aberdeen, Viscount Deerhurst, Lord Fairfax, John L. Griffiths, United States Consul General in London; Sir Thomas Holdich, Sir Alexander Henderson, Lord Justice Kennedy, Sir H. H. Cozens-Hardy, Irwin Laughlin, Secretary of the American Embassy; Lord Southwark, Sir William Osler, Sir Percy Sanderson, Sir Edgar Speyer, Sir Jeremiah Colman, C. D. Seligman, Sir George Wyatt Truscott, and Sir Joseph White Todd.

NICARAGUAN PLOT TO KILL.

Conspirators Intended to Assassinate President, Ministers, and Deputies.

MANAGUA, Nov. 6.—The frustrated plot to assassinate President Diaz and all his Cabinet Ministers on Oct. 29 was laid by the conspirators with remarkable care, according to details published here to-day.

The plotters, it appears, were members of the Liberal Party and they had divided themselves into three groups. The first of these was charged with the work of killing the President and two Cabinet Ministers while they were driving together in a carriage in Managua; the second was to assassinate Vice-President Solorzano and the Minister of Foreign Affairs; and the third was to throw dynamite bombs among the members of the Chamber of Deputies while they were gathered in session on the afternoon of Oct. 29.

The discovery of the conspirators while they were holding a meeting to arrange the final details of the plot was purely accidental. Nearly all of those connected with the affair have been lodged in jail.

RUSSIA WILL ACCEPT NO RITUAL PROTESTS

Informs United States It Will Not Receive Advice on Murder Trial at Kieff.

CHURCH PROTEST REJECTED

Plea of Greer, Farley, and Other Dignitaries, Not Received by Bryan, Is Left at Embassy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The Russian Government has intimated to the United States that it will not receive petitions or resolutions from this country bearing on the so-called ritual murder trial at Kieff and the ill-treatment of Jews in Russia. This became known to-day when the State Department declined to accept a petition addressed to Emperor Nicholas II. on the subject of the Kieff trial which was signed by a large number of dignitaries of the Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches in this country.

The Department gave as a reason for its action that it had been made to understand by the Russian Government that such documents would not be accepted by it. The petition was accompanied by a request that it be forwarded to the Czar through American diplomatic channels. When this response was made by the department, the petition was left at the Russian Embassy, accompanied by the request that it be transmitted to the Emperor.

The petition is signed by Bishop Greer of New York, Cardinal Farley, Archbishop Prendergast of Philadelphia, Bishop Brent of Buffalo and nearly all the American Bishops of the Roman Catholic and Episcopal faiths as well as many clergymen.

The Czar was urged to affirm declarations of some of his predecessors that there was no ground for the accusation that the blood of Christians was used by Jews in ritual observances.

The petition contained a brief of historical review to show that this charge has been dismissed as absolutely groundless by historians, theologians and other investigators.

Prompted by Congress Resolution.

The action of the Russian Government in notifying the United States that such petitions would not be received evidently was born of the presentation of resolutions in Congress protesting against the ritual murder trial at Kieff. It was in line with the course pursued by Russia in the Roosevelt administration with reference to a resolution of Congress based on the Kishineff massacres, appealing for better treatment of the Jews.

President Roosevelt, through John Hay, Secretary of State, directed the American Ambassador at St. Petersburg to present the resolution to the Russian Foreign Office. The text of the resolution was telegraphed to the Ambassador. When he handed it to the Minister for Foreign Affairs, it was returned to him immediately with the information that it had to do with a matter that was of purely domestic concern to Russia.

The request made to the State Department to-day that the petition be forwarded to the Czar through American diplomatic channels caused some embarrassment to department officials. The representative of the signers of the petition who took the document to the department was kept waiting a considerable time while the officials consulted as to the character of the response to be made. Ultimately he was informed that because of the intimation from the Russian Government, the petition could not be received for forwarding to St. Petersburg.

Following is the text of the petition with the names of the signers:

Text of the Petition.

To His Imperial Majesty Nicholas II., the Czar of All the Russias:

Sire—As the representatives of various Christian denominations of the United States of America, irrespective of creed, we unite, in the name of our sacred faith in an appeal to you that the charge of ritual murder against the Jew Mendel Beiliss, now on trial at Kieff, be withdrawn, because of the untold evils to the cause of humanity which may follow from its further prosecution.

We are convinced that the blood accusation against the Jews, which has been made sporadically, is as unfounded as was the same accusation which, as history shows, was frequently directed against the early Christians. It has been subjected to the most careful investigation for centuries and no evidence warranting the slightest credence has ever been discovered, and it has been rejected as unworthy of serious consideration both by Church and by State. Bulls were issued by four Popes—Innocent IV., Paul III., Gregory X., and Clement XIV.—which formally declared this superstition to be a baseless and wicked invention. The genuineness of these pronouncements has been recently officially certified by Cardinal Merry Del Val, the Secretary of the Holy See.

Many sovereigns have in the past forbidden the attribution of religious significance to such accusations, among them the German Emperors Frederic II. (1236,) Rudolph of Hapsburg (1275,) Frederick III. (1470,) and Charles V. (1544;) the Bohemian King, Ottocar II. (1254); the Polish Kings, Boleslaw V. (1264,) Casimir III. (1334,) Casimir IV. 1453,) and Stephen Batoria (1576.)

Emperor Alexander I. of Russia issued a ukase on March 18, 1817, by which he prohibited the prosecution of so-called ritual murder cases, for the proclaimed purpose of ending the superstition that the Jews employed Christian blood for ritual purposes. This ukase was confirmed by Emperor Nicholas I. on Jan. 13, 1835.

Prince Obolensky, the former head of the Holy Synod of the Russian Empire, has recently declared:

On the strength of all historical and literary materials concerning ritual murders I can say that this accusation against the Jews is just as ill-founded as were the accusations of the same nature directed against the Christians long ago. You must remember that the use of blood is contrary to all the teachings of the Jewish religion.

Fear Acts of Violence.

For centuries numerous authoritative theological, scientific and historical writers, who have carefully studied the subject, have united in reaching the same conclusion.

Believing the continuance of the pending prosecution may give rise to acts of violence, as a result of the passions aroused by fanaticism and religious hatred stimulated thereby—consequences which would be deplorable from the standpoint of true religion, of humanity, and of civilization, and abhorrent to the spirit of Christianity—as Christians, and for the advancement of our holy cause, we pray that you may avert, this grave peril, and that you may forestall the possibility of the imposition of injustice, not only upon the individual who is now on trial, but upon the entire Jewish people, and that to that end you may confirm the ukase of your glorious ancestor, Alexander I., by which he sought for all time to destroy the hideous imputation that the Jews require Christian blood for ritual purposes.

In full confidence that this appeal will be favorably received by your Imperial Majesty, and that the motives which have prompted us in presenting it will not be misunderstood, with the utmost esteem and respect we have subscribed these presents, this 31st day of October, 1913.

INSISTS ON RITUAL THEORY.

Counsel at Kieff Trial Asserts Beiliss Regards Himself as Victim.

KIEFF, Nov. 6.—The name of Mendel Beiliss, charged with the murder of the boy Andrew Yushinsky in March, 1911, was barely mentioned in the speech of counsel for the prosecution to-day. This was remarked by those present in court, as the same thing happened when the Prosecutor delivered his opening speech on the indictment.

Toward the end of his address to the jury, however, the Prosecutor expressed his profound conviction that Beiliss was guilty. He remarked that the accused had been seen dragging Yushinsky toward the brick furnace where Beiliss was employed, and added:

"Mendel Beiliss is possibly an excellent father and a virtuous man, who lived modestly and was certainly religious. But does this preclude the possibility of the perpetration by him of a crime which, from his standpoint, was not a crime? He regards himself as an expiatory victim for his coreligionists."

Counsel then dwelt on the subject of the clay found on Yushinsky's clothing, which, he said, resembled that of the soil near the stable where, the prosecution believes, the murder was committed, and where Beiliss's wife went to live after the arrest of her husband. The stable was whitewashed before the visit of Krassovsky, the ex-detective, and was burned down three days before the arrival of the Magistrate in charge of the preliminary investigation.

The Prosecutor argued that the only medical and mental experts who had testified in the course of the trial and who were worthy of credence were those brought forward by the prosecution. He expressed special praise of Prof. Sikorsky, who, he said, "notwithstanding his illness and his knowledge of the storm which would burst upon him, did not fear to come into court and testify that the crime had been committed by fanatics, with the object of obtaining blood, and that those fanatics must be Jews."

M. Zamislovsky, counsel for the Black Hundreds, followed. He repeated the Prosecutor's arguments, but, contrary to expectation, in a tone of great moderation. His restraint is generally attributed to powerful external influence.

GERMAN SQUADRON TO SAIL.

Finest Battleships to Advertise the Fatherland in South America.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—The two largest German battleships now in commission, the 24,700-ton superdreadnoughts Kaiser and König Albert, will sail early in December for an extended cruise in West African and South American waters, accompanied by the new protected cruiser Strassburg. It is semi-officially stated that the object is to "try the vessels out on a foreign cruise lasting three or four months."

The naval correspondent of the Lokalanzeiger, who usually interprets the Admiralty view, says that Germany's finest warships will be sent across the Atlantic undoubtedly in response to the long-expressed wish of hundreds of thousands of Germans resident in South America "again to see a piece of their German Fatherland as a visible indication of her power and greatness."

The Lokalanzeiger also suggests that the vessels have an important mission in showing the fallacy of the "distorted information" in the English press relative to the merits of German naval construction. This is a euphonious way of saying that the main object of the cruise is to solicit warship orders for German dockyards from South American navies. The Kaiser has long been interested in that particular direction.

FEARS FOR RECIPROCITY.

Canada Thinks Tariff Law Repealed It—Washington Views Differ.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 6.—Official circles are considerably interested in the wording of Paragraph S of the Underwood Tariff, which repeals all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the Underwood provisions. The interpretation here is that under this wording the Reciprocity act of 1911 is repealed.

The point is of much importance in Canadian politics, as the Liberal Party has declared its readiness to stand by the reciprocity agreement, if returned to power.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The construction placed by Canadian officials upon the Underwood Tariff law as it relates to the Canadian Reciprocity act, namely that the latter is repealed, is shared by some and challenged by others in official circles in Washington.

The general view is that the Underwood act operates to repeal only the second section of the Canadian Reciprocity act, relating to the admission of wood pulp and paper from Canada into the United States. This section is in direct conflict with the provisions in the Underwood law rearranging the rates on print paper and wood pulp. The Treasury Department has already issued an official decision to the effect that the Underwood law operates to repeal this section.

The only open question here is whether the Underwood act also operates to repeal Section 1 of the reciprocity act, containing reciprocal rates which Canada and the United States were willing to allow each other, under the terms of the agreement negotiated before the reciprocity act was passed by Congress. The Treasury Department was not called upon, for practical purposes, to consider whether the first section of the reciprocity act was repealed, and refrained from passing judgment on that moot question.

Mr. Underwood does not think the Underwood law has revealed the Canadian Reciprocity act. Democrats generally think that if the Canadian Government should enact the necessary legislation to give effect to the Canadian Reciprocity act, the latter would become effective, but only as to the provisions of its first section.

The second section of the Reciprocity act relating to print paper and pulp was not reciprocal.

Bond Elected in Newfoundland.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Nov. 6.—The election of Sir Robert Bond, the Opposition leader and ex-Premier, to the Legislature was indicated to-night by early figures of the vote for the Twillingate district. Large majorities were also indicated for Sir Robert's colleagues, ex-Surveyor General Clift and Walter Jennings, the Fishermen's Union nominee. These seats had been conceded by the Government to the Opposition. The supporters of Sir Edward Morris, the Premier, have a safe lead with nineteen seats.

Minister Reinsch at Peking.

PEKING, Nov. 6.—Dr. Paul Samuel Reinsch, the new American Minister to China, arrived here to-day to take up his duties. He intends to pay his first visit to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to-morrow, and will present his credentials to President Yuan Shih-kai in a few days.

WERNER ELECTED BY NARROW MARGIN

Latest Returns Give Him 518 Plurality for Chief Judge of Court of Appeals.

WINS BY 3,500, BARNES SAYS

Figures Not Tabulated In Westchester and Wyoming Counties, Which Are Estimated.

According to the latest returns, William E. Werner, Republican candidate for Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, appears to be elected by the narrow margin of about 500 plurality, over his Democratic opponent, Judge Bartlett.

The election of the latter had been generally conceded on the face of the early returns, and William Barnes, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, had practically conceded it by about 7,000. Yesterday, however, due to more complete returns from the up-State districts, which steadily reduced the plurality formerly figured for Judge Bartlett, Mr. Barnes claimed the election of the Republican candidate by about 3,500 votes. According to his table of figures, Werner received a total of 93,209 and Bartlett 89,628, a lead of 4581 for Werner. This did not include Rockland County, where it was stated unofficially that Bartlett had received 61 plurality.

In the figures in the table, as furnished by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondents from the best obtainable returns, Werner has the bare plurality of 518. The results for Westchester County are unofficial, as the Board of Elections has made no effort to count the vote for Chief Justice and Associate Justice, and the work has been very slow, as some of the election boards in remote towns and villages in the county did not turn in their slips until yesterday. In parts of the county the vote has been close, and for this reason the board has been besieged by many of those interested to count the county ticket first. Up to yesterday afternoon not a figure had been tabulated for Court of Appeals.

From the best unofficial figures obtainable it would appear that Werner has a plurality over Bartlett of about 3,800 votes in Westchester. The estimate for Werner there on Wednesday was 4,200.

No official returns have yet been made from Wyoming County, but the estimate there is about 1,500 plurality for Werner.

These are THE TIMES's figures showing pluralities by counties:

Werner's plurality, 518.

Chairman Barnes said last night that the election of Werner would once again establish the Republican Party as the leading party in this State.

It was explained at Republican State headquarters that the mistake which at first seemed to assure Bartlett's election was due chiefly to the returns sent in from counties where Democrats and Progressives had fused against the Republicans in the Assembly elections, but where for all that there were three separate sets of candidates for the Court of Appeals. In flashing the returns the Republican County Chairman in nearly every instance merely gave the Republican majority for the Assembly, and this was wrongly accepted as applying also to the candidates for the Court of Appeals.

Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, scornfully disputed the claim of Progressive County Chairman Bird that credit for the Fusion victory in this city was due to the Progressives.

"It was not a Progressive victory," said Mr. Koenig; "it was a victory of the people. No party should claim all the credit for it. If any credit is due anywhere it is due to the Republicans, who contributed more than three-fifths of the aggregate vote cast for the Fusion candidates. The Republicans cast 210,000 votes for Mitchel. The balance, 144,000 votes, was made up by the Progressive Party, the Independence League, and the independent Democrats. McCall got 213,000, and this shows that even if the Independence League and the Progressives had not nominated Mitchel he would have been elected by Republican votes and the votes of independent Democrats, for there surely must have been at least four or five thousand such votes cast for the Fusion candidates."

STOLE FOR ELECTION BET.

Lad Confessed His Tale of a Hold-Up Was False.

When Harry Schnell returned from out of town yesterday to the wareroom of Schnell & Jackson, fur importers, at 21 West Thirtieth Street, he found costly furs thrown about the floor as if the place had been ransacked. The safe stood open, and one of its compartments had been smashed with a hatchet, which lay on the floor. Mr. Schnell's wallet with $100 was missing from the compartment.

Just then he heard faint moans which seemed to come from a trunk. It was locked, but he opened it and produced from the interior his 16-year-old shipping clerk, Joseph Cohen. The boy was dirty of face and torn of clothes. When he had submitted to a dash of cold water at the hands of his employer he told how, in the absence of the rest of the office force, he had been attacked by two men who had entered disguised as customers. They had thrown him into the trunk, which locked over him automatically when they shut it. This was his story.

But Capt. Cooney of the West Thirtieth Street Station has a sixth sense and this told him the story was improbable. After he had questioned the boy for four hours the confession came. Cohen had needed the money to pay a 4 to 1 election bet that the voters would send Aaron J. Levy down to defeat. His loss was $100, and this amount, in Mr. Schnell's wallet, was found in his pocket. Cohen lives at 746 Willoughby Avenue, Brooklyn.

ST. GEORGE'S CLUB DINNER.

Dr. Rainsford, Its Founder, Guest of Honor on 25th Anniversary.

Dr. William S. Rainsford, former rector of St. George's Church, was the guest of honor last night at the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of St. George's Club, which he founded in 1888 and for which J. P. Morgan and others built a memorial house in East Sixteenth Street, around the corner from the church. The celebration included a dinner at the Broadway Central Hotel that was attended by 350 of the 500 members of the club.

When Dr. Rainsford entered the room he was greeted with the chorus of "Peg o' My Heart." The Rev. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George and President of the club, presided as toastmaster. Other speakers were Lawson Purdy, President of the Tax Board, and William J. Schieffelin, Chairman of the Citizens' Union.

Among the guests were R. Fulton Cutting, the Rev. Dr. W. T. Crocker, William E. Curtis, the Rev. E. F. Chauncey, the Rev. William H. Garth, Dr. R. A. Hibbs, Benjamin B. Lawrence, Walcott G. Lane, William T. Little, Dr. J. W. Markoe, Henry H. Pike, Theodore Price, Norman B. Ream, H. L. Satterlee, the Right Rev. C. Scadding, D. D., Bishop of Oregon; the Rev. Theodore Sedgwick, and George Earl Warren.

W. E. Ahrens was Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, the other members of which were F. H. Walsh, A. Neumann, W. Hanna, George Hussong, and J. Tideman.

SEEKS A BIG MAN FOR POLICE HEAD

Mitchel Says That Commissionership Is the Most Important Place He Has to Fill.

FITNESS HIS ONLY TEST

New Mayor Says He Will Pick Men for Ability and Without Regard to Their Politics.

John Purroy Mitchel, the new Mayor, continued yesterday to receive congratulations from his friends on his election. He spent the day at the Custom House getting affairs in shape there to turn over to his successor. Within a day or two Mr. Mitchel will take a vacation lasting two or three weeks, so that his connection with the office of Collector of the Port of New York will not last long. The Mayor-elect, it was understood, would give careful attention to the selection of his Commissioners between now and Jan. 1.

The Police Department, he admitted, would receive his most careful consideration. He was asked if he did not consider the post of Police Commissioner the most important in his cabinet, and he replied:

"Yes. The man who fills that place must be big, strong, independent, and must have business ability."

Mr. Mitchel was asked if Robert Adamson, who was secretary to Mayor Gaynor, and later manager of the Mitchel campaign, did not measure up to that standard.

"I do not want to be drawn into a definite statement about anybody," was his reply.

But Mr. Mitchel showed that if he did not select his campaign manager for Police Commissioner, at least he would try to have him in his administration.

"You're pretty good guessers," Mr. Mitchel went on. "Adamson has certainly done a big job and he deserves great credit. But I have no human being in mind for any appointment."

"You hope to fill most of your Commissionerships before Jan. 1, do you not?" he was asked.

"I do," replied Mr. Mitchel. "It is a tremendous job to get the right sort of men. Think how long after his inauguration Mayor Gaynor had to wait to get the right sort of men for all of his places."

"In making up your slate will you recognize the claims for offices of the various political parties which supported you?" he was asked.

"If you mean by that, am I going to parcel out the jobs among them; no," the new Mayor replied. "That would not be non-partisanship. I do not assume that any political organization will not be able to present the names of efficient men, but it is my purpose to pick men according to ability and regardless of politics. Efficiency is to be my chief consideration. I will welcome suggestions and advice from all who desire to give it, however."

"From Mr. Murphy even?"

"Yes, if he wants to give any," Mr. Mitchel said with a broad smile. "I repeat," he continued, "that I am against Murphy as an institution, not against Murphy the man. I am going to do all that I can to destry Murphy the institution."

"Mr. Murphy said that it was your privilege to make war on him," Mr. Mitchel was informed.

"I see no reason why Murphy the man should worry," the new Mayor said.

Mr. Mitchel volunteered the statement that there was one man he would appoint, and that was Lieut. William Kennel, who for nineteen years has been on duty at the door of the Mayor's office. Lieut. Kennel was detailed to the place as a Sergeant in the Strong administration, and he has acted as personal bodyguard to every Mayor since.

"Kennel stays," said Mr. Mitchel, and he added that he would also appoint Police Sergeant John Phelan to assist Lieut. Kennel. Sergt. Phelan was with Mr. Mitchel when he was Commissioner of Accounts, and later when he was President of the Board of Aldermen.

There was a rumor about the City Hall yesterday that Mr. Mitchel might appoint Mayor Adolph Kline Street Cleaning Commissioner. Mayor Kline is a Republican, but he has conducted the Mayor's office in a thoroughly nonpartisan manner since the death of Mayor Gaynor, and it is known that Mr. Mitchel would like to have him in his administration. Among the telegrams of congratulation which Mr. Mitchel received yesterday was one from President Wilson and one from Mrs. William J. Gaynor. This is the President's message:

The White House,
Washington, D. C., Nov. 6, 1913.
The Hon. John Purroy Mitchel, New York City:
I congratulate you with all my heart.
WOODROW WILSON.

The President's telegram was taken to mean that it intended to recognize Mr. Mitchel as the real head of the Democratic Party in New York. The President, it was said, was much gratified by Tammany's defeat, and would lend his aid to any plan looking to the reorganization of the party. The telegram from Mrs. Gaynor read:

Brooklyn, Nov. 6, 1913.
John Purroy Mitchel, New York:
Congratulations on your success. You have a difficult task before you. I wish you godspeed.
MRS. W. J. GAYNOR.

Mr. Mitchel sent this reply:

New York, Nov. 6, 1913.
Mrs. William J. Gaynor, Brooklyn, N. Y.:
Please accept my sincere thanks for your kind telegram of congratulations. I cannot tell you how deeply I appreciate your most generous expression of good wishes.
JOHN PURROY MITCHEL.

Mr. Mitchel also received a cablegram from Miltownmalby, County Clare, Ireland, which read: "Congratulations to John Mitchel's grandson," and which was signed, "Miltownmalby, Clare, Irishmen."

TO CREMATE HJARDEMAAL.

Huntington Suicide Asked It in Last Letter to a Friend.

The body of Dr. Herman E. Hjardemaal, who committed suicide in his Summer home on New Street, Huntington, L. I., presumably because he was worried over anonymous letters sent to women patients warning them to keep away, will be cremated to-day at Fresh Pond Crematory, Fresh Pond, L. I., in accordance with a wish he expressed in a letter to Peter Atkin, a friend, of Hart Street, Brooklyn. He left this letter on his bed before going to the bathroom, where he took morphine and turned on the gas.

It developed yesterday that Mrs. Hjardemaal, the doctor's wife, unknowingly foiled his first plan for ending his life. After motoring with her to Huntington on Monday and leaving her there while he went away in his automobile, he hurried to the home of Atkin in Brooklyn. He presumed his wife, deserted, would return home by train, and it is believed that he intended to kill himself in his Brooklyn home. He asked Mrs. Atkin to go to meet Mrs. Hjardemaal when she left the train. Then he hurried home. But his wife, it now appears, went home from Huntington in an automobile she hired, and she was there when he arrived. She admitted when she went to Huntington on Wednesday night to identify her husband's body, and talked to Coroner Gibson, that she reproved her husband for leaving her in Huntington, and that he then left the house not to return.

ARGUE FOR WRIGHT PATENTS

Inventors of Ailerons Charge Curtiss Firm with Infringement.

Praise was accorded yesterday to the Wright brothers by Frederick P. Fish at the hearing in the Circuit Court of Appeals of the appeal of the Herring-Curtiss Company against the decision of Judge Hazel of the patent suit brought by the Wright Company. In that the Wright Company said that the Wright brothers were the inventors of the aileron, that it, the movable tip of the planes of an aeroplane, and that all other flying machine manufacturers had copied their ideas.

Wilbur Wright and Glenn H. Curtiss were interested spectators at the hearing yesterday. It is certain that, however the Circuit Court of Appeals may decide, the case will go to the Supreme Court as it involves the control of the art of flying in this country as well as an accounting by the Herring-Curtiss Company, if they are unsuccessful, for all the large profits made from the manufacture and exhibition of aeroplanes.

In his speech for the Wright Company Mr. Fish contended that Wilbur Wright was the first man to discard the idea that men could fly by imitating the movements of a bird, and that it was he who solved the problem of lateral balance by the invention of the movable tips to the planes. Curtiss, he asserted, had simply copied the Wright device, making a slight change in its position.

Replying for the Herring-Curtiss Company, E. R. Newell contended that the Wright brothers were not the first inventors of flying machines and that they had merely applied the principles used by their predecessors. Decision was reserved.

WOMEN RULE GRAND JURY.

Elect Their Own Secretary Against Candidate of Male Minority.

REDWOOD CITY, Cal., Nov. 6.—Women will direct affairs of the San Mateo County grand jury, organized here yesterday with eight men and eleven women members. The jury was drawn from a venire of seventeen women and thirteen men. Judge George H. Buck made the selections, holding that women may serve on juries, although the Attorney General of the State has given him an opinion to the contrary.

The women proved the strength of their position by electing one of their number as secretary, although the men nominated a candidate of their own for the position.

BAY STATE'S VOTE PLEASES JOHNSON

Progressives' Success Against Republicans, Says Californian, Was on Straight Lines.

BETTER TEST THAN JERSEY

Colby, He Asserts, Staked His Fortunes on Roosevelt and His Own Assumed Progressivism.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Gov. Hiram W. Johnson of California, fresh from his activities in Eastern campaigns, was guest of honor at a dinner given by the Chicago Progressive Club to-night. Of the Massachusetts election he said in a prostprandial speech:

"The theatre of action, from the national standpoint, was Massachusetts. Here was neither complication nor pretense. Bird, the Progressive candidate for Governor, was militantly progressive. Gardner, the Republican candidate, represented the embittered opposition to progressivism.

"Side by side with reactionaries and the apologists of last year there fought, in behalf of Gardner, those nearly progressive and the entire Presidential lightning-rod contingent. In dulcet tones, Senators Cummins, Borah, Norris, and others pleaded for the old Republican Party, portrayed its past, and, in the name of its glorious traditions and the division of offices that might be made in the future, tearfully begged the Progressives to return to their old allegiance.

"Every specious argument was used; every conceivable power and influence were invoked for Gardner and against Bird. The result is startling. To-day, for the first time in history, the Republican Party is the third party in Massachusetts. The Progressive Party is the only one with strength intact, and is the second party there.

"Only in Massachusetts was the contest clean cut. In New Jersey, the Republican candidate staked his fortunes on his advocacy of Roosevelt and his own assumed progressivism. The issue there was obscure. In Massachusetts there was no misunderstanding. The question was, 'Which party shall survive, the Republican or the Progressive?' Massachusetts answered in no uncertain tones."

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—All the defeated candidates on the Progressive State ticket and those elected to the Legislature and Governor's Council are expected to be on the platform at a public mass meeting of the party to be held at Tremont Temple Saturday night. The Progressive State Committee in announcing the meeting to-night said it was "enthusiastic over the results of the election" and was already making preparations to strengthen its organization "to carry the party on to victory in 1914."

MOST AMENDMENTS PASS.

No. 3 Providing for More Judges in Kings, the Only One In Doubt.

Returns from 100 election districts distributed over the five boroughs of this city and from twelve up-State counties indicate that all the constitutional amendments voted for this year with the possible exception of Amendment No. 3, have been carried. Amendment No. 3 provides for two additional County Judges in Kings.

Amendment No. 1, according to Robert S. Binkerd, Secretary of the City Club, who has been collating the returns, has bene carried. This provides for excess condemnation of property taken for public improvements.

Walsh Day at Holy Cross.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 6.—Holy Cross College is proud of the election of an alumnus as governor, in the person of David I. Walsh. In celebration of the event President Dinand declared to-day a full holiday for students and faculty. Next Monday night there will be a jubilation meeting at the college and the governor-elect will be present.

BOSTON ORCHESTRA OPENS SEASON HERE

Great Crowd at Carnegie Hall at Its First Series of the Winter.

NO SOLO ON PROGRAMME

Dr. Karl Muck Remains Conductor, but Many New Faces Among the Players.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra made its first visit to New York yesterday, beginning its twenty-eighth season here with a concert in Carnegie Hall. It comes more firmly intrenched than ever in the admiration of New York music-lovers. The hall was completely filled last evening, and there is said to be not a single seat to be had for any of the nine concerts that are to follow during the season. Nor has the orchestra ever more fully deserved this admiration and esteem, for it has never played more superbly than it did at this concert or more deeply absorbed the attention and roused the delight of its listeners. Dr. Karl Muck returns as its conductor, and there are a number of new faces to be seen among the players. But the quality of its performance has not changed; it is a quality of perfection in tone, in balance, in pliability and flexibility under the conductor's hands, in sheer beauty in every particular.

There was no solo performer at this concert. The programme began with Beethoven's seventh symphony, of which there was no new revelation and no new "reading." It was Beethoven's music as understood by the highest intelligence, sympathy, and devotion, played as Beethoven conceived it, with consummate skill and an entire command of all his requirements; and this is even better than a "reading." It was followed by Brahms's "Tragic Overture," a piece that rarely appears upon orchestra programmes. It is music of a certain outward austerity; profound in feeling, and mirroring, as one of its critics has said, the grandeur, the loftiness, the deep earnestness, of tragic character. It is not necessary to connect it with any particular drama, as some have insisted upon doing; for the music stands for itself and is complete by itself, and speaks with an eloquence that Brahms has not often surpassed. The performance gave the fullest utterance to all its eloquence, in its rich and dark orchestral color, an example of how justly and completely Brahms's orchestration interprets the essential quality of his musical inspiration, how perfectly fitted it is to such an interpretation. The playing by the orchestra penetrated to the very essence of the work.

There was a more popular kind of brilliancy in Liszt's sonorous and melodious symphonic poem "Les Préludes," the only really familiar one among his compositions in this form; and the programme was ended with Wagner's overture to "The Flying Dutchman." The audience was stirred to great enthusiasm all through the concert. After the symphony Dr. Muck made his men rise to share the applause.

MR. WITHERSPOON SINGS.

An Interesting Programme of Unfamiliar Songs in Aeolian Hall.

Not many givers of song recitals present a more unusual or more interesting programme than Mr. Herbert Witherspoon devised for his song recital yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall. He had, indeed, exhibited no little ingenuity in searching among the lesser known songs of French and German composers and in acquiring old French, Irish, and English traditional songs. The noble air from Bach's cantata "Wachet, Vetet", Hayden's pathetic setting of "She Never Told Her Love", Mozart's arch "Warnung"—though this is hardly well adapted for a ponderous bass voice—and the moist bibulous song from Grétry's opera of "Anacréon" are not familiar to concert goers; nor are the songs of Schumann, Loewe, and Brahms, still less the songs in French by Massé, Florida, Glazunow, and Georges.

Mr. Witherspoon sang in admirable voice and with an obvious care for clearness of enunciation and diction, a care that was largely rewarded. He showed that his operatic activities have worked little injury to his lyric art. He also expended much pains in delineating and embodying in his interpretation the characteristic expression of each song. Mr. Witherspoon adopted in certain cases a strongly dramatic manner, sometimes perhaps passing beyond the limits of taste in song singing: as in Schumann's "Der Spielmann," for it is not meet that beauty of tone be sacrificed to dramatic effect even in such a song. But the singer found few occasions to do this. On the other hand the excellence of his sustained singing in songs like Haydn's "She Never Told Her Love," Schubert's "Nachstück," and Schumann's "Die Laute," showed how carefully he has cultivated the purely lyric side of his art. Mr. Witherspoon gave pleasure to a large audience. His accompaniments were excellently played by Mr. Hans Morgenstern.

COLUMBIA'S GRADUATES.

16,965 Alumnae Are Alive Now, University Records Show.

A list of all living graduates which has been drawn up at Columbia University in the last few months shows that 16,965 former students of the institution are still alive. This list is complete up to the Class of 1913, which is not included. Robert M. Olyphant of the Class of 1842 is the oldest of the living graduates. He is Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad and lives at 160 West Fiftyninth Street. Three other graduates whose deaths are not recorded are older than Mr. Olyphant, but the university assumes that as no trace of them can be found they are dead.

The Rev. Edward McGee is the sole member of the Class of 1844 who is alive, and his address is unknown. S. K. Staunton of 152 West Thirty-eighth Street is the sole representative of the Class of 1845. Mayor Harrison Aids Donahoe.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Mayor Carter Harrison, several city officials, members of the bar, and others testified in behalf of Daniel Donahoe to-day in his trial on a charge of conspiracy to defame Clarence S. Funk. Mayor Harrison said he had known Donahoe twenty-five years, and that the attorney's reputation as a man and a lawyer was good. Numerous character witnesses also were on hand to speak for Detective Stiefel, who is on trial with Donahoe. Gov. Dunne and United States Senator Lewis have been asked to testify.

RICHES TO HOTEL PORTER.

Plaza Employe Hears His Father Has Left Him a Fortune.

Peter Joseph Green, an assistant porter at the Hotel Plaza, received a letter yesterday from his brother, James J. Green, Jr., of Killinorpin, Roscommon County, Ireland, saying that their father had died at Killinorpin ten days ago, leaving a fortune of $143,000 for the two brothers to divide between them.

Peter J. Green, who is 43 years old, came to this country twenty-one years ago, and has worked in hotels here since then. He was employed at the Windsor Hotel when it was burned, and on that occasion he was credited with saving several lives. When Green left home twenty-one years ago his father was a prosperous sheep farmer in Roscommon County. Green did not realize how his father had prospered until the news of his death arrived. The elder Green's fortune, it was learned by his son yesterday, was built up in recent years, when he entered the business of supplying big hotels in Ireland and England with mutton of the finest quality.

HALLERAN SUIT NEAR TRIAL.

Effort to Involve Maurice Connolly Met with No Success.

Mrs. Halleran's suit for separation from Aloysius G. Halleran, which involved some annoyance to Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens, is set for trial before Justice Aspinall in a special term of the Queens County Supreme Court Monday of next week.

Mrs. Halleran is a sister of Mrs. Connolly, and following her separation from her husband, whom she charged with cruelty, she went to live in the Connolly family. Thereupon her husband brought an action for $50,000 damages against Borough President Connolly, alleging that he had alienated the affections of Mrs. Halleran.

During the recent campaign which resulted in Borough President Connolly's re-election, only one attempt was made by an opposition campaign speaker to bring Mr. Connolly's domestic affairs into the campaign, and the speaker was hissed from the platform.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU BILL.

Federal Measure Drafted to Aid Employers and Workers.

It was reported here in labor circles yesterday that the Democratic members of the House Committee of Labor at Washington intended shortly to introduce a bill providing for the establishment of a National Government Employment Bureau. The proposed measure will, it is said, be based upon the systems now in use abroad, notably in Germany and England. It will authorize the use of the Post Office buildings in every city as a labor employment bureau for employers and workers, under the authority of the Secretary of Labor.

A draft of a bill is said to have been drawn up by a number of persons prominent in social work and Secretary of Labor Wilson and Assistant Secretary Post are believed to be in favor of such a measure.

RICH SILKS FROM ABROAD IN THESE MEN'S SCARFS at $2

It is an international gathering, from the great silk centers of Europe—silks that were woven, largely by hand, on the looms of Spitalfields, near London; silks from Lyons and silks from Vienna.

Fashioned into Scarfs such as the well dressed men of New York like to wear.

A gathering so abundant in its range of choice that to attempt to specify would be futile.

Enough to say that among the intricate Persian effects, the foliage designs and Arabesques, the clean-cut stripes and quiet figures, no man need be put to it to choose the little knot of color that peeps above his waistcoat.

Smart, distinctive—$2 each.

FOOD EXPERT WILEY DOGGED BY SLEUTHS

Tells at Aldine Club Dinner How They Sought Trace of a Mythical Fortune.

BROKE INTO HIS QUARTERS

Smiles as he Says "They Tried to Get Something On Me" and "I'd Like to Meet W. J. Burns."

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, ex-Chief Chemist of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, at the dinner of the Advertising Men's League at the Aldine Club last night accused private detectives of having picked the lock of his room and ransacked his private papers during his absence on a trip. Dr. Wiley connected the name of William J. Burns with the statement, and said that he had been informed that the ransacking was the work of Burns's men.

The accusation came as part of a speech that Dr. Wiley made and caused a sensation in the club, although he made it in a most matter of fact way and immediately passed on to another topic.

The dinner was one of a regular Winter series given by the Advertising Men's League. Robert Adamson, secretary of the late Mayor Gaynor, was the guest of honor, and in opening his speech on the subject of the part the newspapers played in winning the Fusion victory said that he had come at a moment's notice as a substitute for Detective William J. Burns.

When Dr. Wiley, the last speaker, arose, he said in a whimsical way that he had also been invited to come as a substitute for Detective Burns. It was then that he launched into the statement connecting the name of Burns with the ransacking of his room and desk.

"I was told," said Dr. Wiley, "that I was needed to substitute at a moment's notice for William J. Burns, the eminent detective. He was called away suddenly, I understand, to Washington. I am sorry for this, for I should like to have met Detective Burns. I wish he were here, for I understand that he or some of his sleuths have been sleuthing me.

"It may not have been his men that did the job, but I do know this: About two months ago I went away on a trip and locked up my room. When I returned I found that the lock had been picked, that my desk had been forced, and my private papers ransacked. They were scattered broadcast on the floor. I have been told that it was the work of Burns's men.

"The reason for this is not far to seek. They have been telling stories about my having made a fortune out of my work, and I suppose somebody paid these detectives to see if they could get anything on me. They were welcome to make the attempt. I only wish they had told me in advance, so that I could have been at home to receive them, and saved them the trouble by opening everything up wide for them to see."

The doctor's words caused excited whispering among the diners, but, merely adding that he had not before seen fit to give this story out. Dr. Wiley passed on to discussing other matters. He was down on the programme to speak on any subject that occurred to him, President Ingersoll had said in introducing him, and Dr. Wiley discussed the matters with which he has been most intimately connected.

Dr. Wiley is now connected with the editorial staff of "Good Housekeeping." He writes on the subject of pure foods, and also censors advertisements before they are printed. He is living in Washington, D. C., and although he did not say so, his listeners understood that the sleuthing he referred to occurred there.

PRESS WON FOR FUSION.

Victory Due to Newspapers' Presentation of Facts, Says Adamson.

Robert Adamson, manager of the Fusion campaign and Secretary to Mayor Kline and the late Mayor Gaynor, said last night in a talk on "The Power of the Press" at a dinner of the Advertising Men's League at the Aldine Club, that the Fusion campaign was a moral fight rather than a political one, and that it was won through the news columns of the New York newspapers.

W. H. Ingersoll, President of the League, introduced Mr. Adamson as the conductor of the most successful advertising campaign New York City had ever known. Mr. Adamson said:

"I feel presumptuous in talking on this subject to a club of advertising men who are said to be able to tell the returns down to a vote or down to a dollar from every line printed in a newspaper.

"The last campaign, in my mind, was not a political one so much as a moral one. We were trying to do in the world of politics the work which you are carrying on against fake advertising or the work which your guest, Dr. Wiley, is carrying on against adulterated food. Our object was to establish honesty in politics.

"We felt that we were opposed by an organization which has no place in the modern world, especially not in a world which has been stirred and moved at this one has in recent years by a great progressive movement in political life. Our campaign was purely and simply an advertising campaign with the purpose of showing the people of this city, of bringing home to them, what the two candidates and the two opposing political forces stood for.

"It was a pretty difficult matter, as those who followed the early days of the campaign know, to get that advertising campaign started. For the first three or four weeks we made little progress. The impression had been formed at that stage of the campaign that our candidate was not the real choice of the party that he represented. Then there was the impression which we had to fight that he was too radical, that he was unsafe, that he would tear things up, and, if elected, start a reign of terror in the City Hall. There also was an attempt to spread the belief that the other candidate was the representative of sanity, safety and common sense. And so for several weeks we found it hard to get our campaign launched.

How the Press Helped.

"Here is where the power of the press came in. Judge McCall was not the issue, but his connection with Tammany Hall was the issue. And when it was once fully brought home to the people of this city how that power worked and how Judge McCall was connected with it, it had an immense effect on public opinion, as the election showed.

"I read the papers carefully throughout the campaign, and I cannot see how they can be called unfair to either side. They printed fully the statements from either side and let the public decide on which side truth was. That was the service that turned the balance in our favor. Our Treasurer's statement will be printed in a few days, and I believe it will show that we spent but $1 to every $5 spent by our opponents. But the news columns of the papers were battling for us, not in any biased way, but by the day-by-day presentation of facts.

"The press has no power except when it is on the right side. It can no more write you down or write me down if we are on the right side than it can write down the Palisades or write out the Hudson River. The people have an instinct for the truth. They cannot be fooled by misrepresentations. If an attempt is made to suppress the truths, the facts omitted are often more eloquent than what is said.

"In this campaign there was probably much that was exaggerated, much that was unjust, but I believe that the public discarded all that and made its decision after weighing fairly all sides.

Gaynor as a Writer.

"The late Mayor Gaynor was a great believer in the press as an agency for influencing public opinion. No one was a greater champion than he was of government by ideas. He used the press to expound his ideas and educate the public up to them. He took more pains, I think, with that than with any other part of his administration. He believed that no policy could be carried out unless public sympahy was with it.

"His letters, in my opinion, should be used as a text by all the editors and writers in the country. Many thought of his letters as casual productions. But, on the contrary, he wrote and rewrote nearly every line and weighed with an artist's care every word in them. It was a liberal education to see him shaping his words and aiming them to accomplish a definite purpose. Every letter he wrote was carefully prepared to effect some specific object.

"I have frequently speculated, when I watched that wonderful man, what profession he would have pursued if he had followed his natural inclination. Writer, jurist, administrator, he was great in all three, but I believe that he would rather have been an editor than anything else, if he had been able to make his choice. He served an apprenticeship as straight and severe as any man who ever undertook literary work.

"Had he lived and retired, I believe that he would have spent the latter part of his life as a newspaper editor. The life appealed to him. There is nothing, I think, that he would have enjoyed so much."

Mr. Adamson went on to say that if he was ever connected with another political campaign he would favor dropping such well-known campaign features as banners, buttons, red-fire and decorations, which, in his opinion, never changed a single vote.

Tilts at Dr. Williams.

Aside from the address by Mr. Adamson, the meeting was devoted to speeches on the subject of newspaper advertising. Manley Gillam, formerly a newspaper editor in this city, and now owner of the Gillam Advertising Agency, took to task Dr. Talcott Williams, director of the Pulitzer School of Journalism.

"Dr. Williams," he said, "told me that a class of twenty-nine at his school, after discussing the subject for three hours, came to the conclusion that the publisher of a newspaper should not be held responsible for what is printed in his advertising columns. Well, if they had discussed the matter another hour, they might have got the right light on the subject.

"Suppose Dr. Williams brought to my house a man whom he knew nothing about, but who afterward turned out to be a burglar, and robbed me. Well, he might be excused on the ground that he did not know the man was a bad man. But suppose he brought to my house a man whom he knew to be a questionable character. Suppose that man robbed me. What excuse would there be for Dr. Williams?

"Suppose that I were taking a paper published by Dr. Williams, and I believed what he printed in it because I believed in him. Now, if he published in that paper matter that he knew to be wrong, or that a little investigation would show to be wrong or misleading, should he not be held responsible for it? What excuse is there for his bringing into my house things that might mislead me, to my cost or to my undoing?"

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, ex-chief chemist of the Department of Agriculture, complimented the Advertising Men's League on the work it had done for clean advertising.

"I remember another occasion," he said, "when I spoke in this city before the Sphinx Club to an audience composed largely of advertisers. They were my hosts, and I was a little rude in my treatment of them, perhaps. What I did was to take a paper and go through the advertisements. I showed to a great many in the audience how false were many of the statements which they were making in the newspapers."

William Freeman gave a history of newspaper advertising during the last twenty years, and said it had improved greatly and that the day would soon come when all publishers would be forced to print honest advertising only.

WANT MURDERESS SPARED.

Suffragists to Ask for Commutation of Mrs. Wakefield's Sentence.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 6.—That the women of Hartford, and especially the suffragists, will agitate for a commutation of the death sentence of Mrs. Bessie J. Wakefield, who was recently sentenced to be hanged on March 4 next for the murder of her husband, became apparent to-day.

Mrs. Thomas N. Hepburn, President of the Connecticut Women's Suffrage Association, in an interview said that the association would present a petition to the Board of Pardons. "I am opposed to capital punishment, and I don't believe that Mrs. Wakefield should be hanged," said Mrs. Hepburn. Miss Emily Pierson, State organizer, voiced similar sentiments and said that suffragists are opposed to capital punishment because it is a relic of a barbarous age.

Mrs. Wakefield was removed this morning to the State prison at Wethersfield from the county jail in New Haven.

WILL SHORTEN 'PROM WEEK'

Yale Faculty to Confine Functions to Monday and Tuesday.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 6.—"Prom week," the big social event of the year at Yale, will be considerably curtailed this year as compared with former years, under orders issued to-day by Dean F. S. Jones of the college and Director R. H. Chittenden of the Sheffield Scientific School to the committee in charge of the affair.

The functions will begin on Monday of "Prom week" in February and end at 4 o'clock on the following Wednesday morning. There will be no Saturday night entertainment, as heretofore, and no more dawn teas or other entertainments.

This action was taken, it is explained to-day, because of the conviction that the affair had become too long drawn out.

NEW HAVEN DEFENDS ISSUE

Clarence Venner Would Intervene if Bulkeley Withdraws Petition.

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—That the State Public Service Commission acted within its powers in authorizing the issue by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad of $67,552,000 convertible bonds and 675,520 shares of stock and that its decision was not open to review, was the answer filed by the New Haven Company to-day to the petition brought by Morgan G. Bulkeley in appealing from the commission's decree.

Later in the day Clarence H. Venner of New York, holder of 100 shares of New Haven stock, filed a petition, asking permission to intervene in the Bulkeley action.

Counsel for Mr. Venner refused to disclose the purposes of the petition. It was stated that the paper was filed as the result of reports that Mr. Bulkeley intended to withdraw his original petition.

RESENT TAILORS' INVASION.

But Residents of "Southerners' Row" Fail in Injunction Attempt.

Old-time residents of "Southerners' Row," the block on Twenty-eighth Street, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues, appealed yesterday earnestly, but unsuccessfully, to Supreme Court Justice Newburger for an injunction restraining Jacob Simon and Isaac Lavisow from opening a tailor shop in the block. When neighbors first saw the tailor sign hung out at 342 West Twenty-eighth Street, they became highly indignant, and complained to the owner, Mrs. Henrietta Tenu.

Mrs. Tenu said that she had rented the premises for residential purposes, and that they must have been sublet to the tailors. She was no more in favor of this tenancy than her friends on the block, and she pointed out that while she had inherited the property from Adrian Tenu, it was under provision that none of the property should be used for commercial purposes. The law firm of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn was engaged and the case brought before Justice Newburger. Residents of the block came to court and testified that their street had always been devoted to extremely quiet homes, and that the coming of business was the death knell of their peace.

Both Dr. John D. Quackenbos of 321 West Twenty-fourth Street and Dr. Jerome S. Ferguson, who lives on the opposite side of the street, testified that if the tailors' shop came into the neighborhood their practice would be injured, because none of their patients would think of coming through a street inhabited by tailors.

Justice Newburger, however, turned a deaf ear to all their pleas.

BREAK GROUND FOR LEWISOHN STADIUM

3,000 City College Students Cheer Start of Work for Great $200,000 Structure.

CELEBRATION IN GREAT HALL

Finley Tells of Appropriations and Gifts — Stadium Will Accommodate Nearly 10,000.

The ground was broken yesterday afternoon for the new $200,000 stadium for the College of the City of New York, the gift of Adolph Lewisohn. Three thousand students cheered themselves hoarse when George McAneny, President-elect of the Board of Aldermen, dug a small hole in the soil and Mr. Lewishohn shoveled the dirt into a neat pile on one side, while Dr. John H. Finley, the retiring President of the college; Arnold W. Brunner, the architect of the stadium; Jacob A. Zimmermann, the contractor and all the trustees and faculty present smilingly applauded.

The ceremony of breaking the ground followed the formal exercises which began at noon in the great hall of the college. The entire student body gathered in the auditorium to celebrate the day and President Finley presided. In front of the platform was a plaster of paris model of the completed stadium which will cover the two blocks bounded by West 136th and West 138th Streets and Amsterdam and Convent Avenues.

After an address in which he thanked Mr. Lewisohn for his generosity, Dr. Finley announced that the Board of Estimate had voted all the money he had asked for—$700,000—for the salaries of the teaching staff. He also announced that James E. Boarer, professor of mathematics, and John A. MacDougal, professor of drawing, were to retire after a continuous service of thirty years in the college faculty. The students cheered the two professors, who were forced to rise and bow their acknowledgment.

Dr. Finley then introduced Col. Charles E. Lydecker, who was appointed a trustee of the City College by Mayor Kline last week. Col. Lydecker made a brief address in which he referred to the coming departure of Dr. Finley and spoke of the progress the college had made during his presidency. Dr. Finley later announced that the class of '72 had donated $10,000 to the college, the interest on which was to be used to obtain noted lecturers, both men and women. He also announced another appropriation by the Board of Estimate for $100,000 for the improvement of the ground at Convent Avenue and 140th and 141st Streets for the erection of a college library, to be known as the Hillside Library, provided the college authorities can raise $150,000 for the construction of the building itself. The students cheered again when Dr. Finley added that James Steers of the class of '68, the first to be graduated from the college, had started the fund with a gift of $5,000.

After these announcements, the assemblage adjourned to the site of the stadium, where Mr. Brunner was the first speaker. He praised Mr. Lewisohn's generosity, but said that its usefulness would be limited unless the students took advantage of their opportunities to become strong, healthy and honorable men. Mr. McAneny was then introduced.

"Since I have four more years to do the city's work," said Mr. McAneny, "I can promise Dr. Finley that his splendid visions will be realized and that the next administration will carry out the same policy respecting the City College as the one adopted by the present administration."

Then followed the actual breaking of the ground The stadium has been given to the city by Mr. Lewisohn with the understanding that the Board of Trustees of the college shall endeavor to devise ways and means, and, if necessary, obtain legislation for that purpose, by which revenues may be derived from the stadium to meet the current expenses incurred for its maintenance and upkeep. About $100,000 is needed to improve the field.

The plans of Mr. Brunner call for a simple, classic structure with little, if any, ornamentation. The grade of the land running from Amsterdam to Convent Avenue gives a natural rock foundation for the stadium proper which will be built of reinforced concrete with steel supports and framework.

The playing field will contain a baseball diamond in the southern end, a football gridiron in the centre, surrounded by a one-fifth of a mile cinder track, and a 450-foot straightaway course running parallel with Convent Avenue. Underneath the seats in the northern end of the structure, the rock will be excavated to provide shower baths and lockers for the athletes and the offices of the administration forces.

The stadium will be built at the westerly end of the block. On either side, midway between the avenues, there will be pavilions 25 feet square, from which the stadium will sweep in curves toward Amsterdam Avenue, forming the general structure in which there will be two tiers of seats accommodating approximately 6,000 persons with room for 3,500 standees. The distance between the two pavilions will be 400 feet and the playing field will have a depth of 250 feet. The stands will have an average height of 40 feet.

There will be entrances from the Amsterdam Avenue side at 136th and 138th Streets, the doorways opening upon a commodious lobby narrowing down to 80-foot halls. These halls will lead to a large aisle which will serve to distribute the people to the various sections of seats. Enclosing this aisle and facing the field, will be a row of columns supporting the roof of the stadium.

The land was formerly under the jurisdiction of the Park Department and there was some opposition when Dr. Finley first suggested that it be used as the site for the stadium. After the announcement of the proposed gift by Mr. Lewisohn, the Sinking Fund Commission voted unanimously to donate the tract of land to the college. When completed it is expected that the stadium will be the equal of any in the United Sates.

In recognition of the exceptional service rendered to the city by Mr. Lewisohn, the Board of Estimate recently passed a resolution providing the erection of a bronze tablet to be set in the wall of the stadium inscribed as follows:

Erected and Presented to
The College of the City of New York
By Adolph Lewisohn
in the Year 1914.

If there are no unavoidable delays in the work of construction it is expected that the stadium will be ready for use by the beginning of the next collegiate year.

LYON REJOICED TOO SOON.

Later Returns Showed Long Island Assembly Candidate Was Defeated.

John Lyon of Rockville Centre, who has been congratulating himself since Tuesday night on having been elected Assemblyman from Nassau County, was surprised yesterday when the County Board of Canvassers discovered that he had been defeated by Le Roy J. Weed, his opponent.

Lyon, a Democrat, was supposed to have been elected by a plurality of 120. The canvassers discovered that he had really been defeated by 133. Weed, the successful man, is a Progressive and lives in Garden City.

Auto Kills Boy Roller Skater.

Fourteen-year-old Nathan Rosenberg of 58 East Ninety-ninth Street was roller skating around the circle at Fifth Avenue and 110th Street early last evening when he was struck by a touring car belonging to the Arthur Meyer Music Company of 145 West Forty-fifth Street. There were six men in the car at the time and they lifted the unconscious boy into the tonneau. But his skull had been fractured and he died on the way to Mount Sinai Hospital. No arrests were made.

OFFICIALS OPPOSE CARS FOR SMOKERS

Frank Hedley Says Chicago Has Found Them Impracticable on Surface Lines.

DR. PEASE AN OBJECTOR

He Fears Smoking on Surface Cars Would Annoy Those Waiting on Platforms of Elevated Stations.

The operating officials of the surface and elevated lines of Manhattan and Brooklyn opposed yesterday the granting of facilities to smokers in cars on their lines. The hearing on the petition of 72,000 smokers obtained by the United Cigar Stores Company had been adjourned until yesterday morning by the Public Service Commission to give the railroad officials an opportunity to express their views, and no one but officials were examined.

Frank Hedley, General Manager of the New York Railways Company and the Interborough, was the first to be called to testify. He told of the special smoking cars run by the Chicago Railways Company, with which he was formerly connected, and said that the experiment had been found to be unsatisfactory. Fires were sometimes set going in vehicles passing underneath the elevated structure by careless smokers, and cigars and cigarettes, which were thrown away still alight, were also a cause of danger. The Kings County Elevated Line, in Brooklyn, Mr. Hedley said, had had a similar experience to the Chicago Company.

Asked about the open cars on the Third Avenue Elevated Line, Mr. Hedley said that observation had shown that about 60 per cent. of the passengers were smokers, but, though he was a good smoker himself, he was against smoking cars. In particular he cited practical reasons against their installation, based on the difficulty of providing sufficient housing accommodation and of increasing the fire-fighting equipment.

Mr. Hedley reminded the commission that the street railway companies were always seeking out new ways to satisfy the public, and urged that the question of smoking cars might be left safely to them. Thus the New York Railways Company was about to add 176 of the new stepless cars to its service, and these would have an improved system of ventilation. If it were found feasible, smoking might be permitted in a part of these cars.

As Mr. Hedley said that smokers might travel on the upper deck of the one double-decked car now running, Dr. George C. Pease of the Non-Smokers' Protective League of America broke in to ask whether their tobacco fumes might not prove objectionable to the persons standing on the platforms of elevated stations.

"Not any more than they would to persons on the twenty-fifth floor of a skyscraper," said Mr. Hedley sharply.

One objection Mr. Hedley raised to the running of open cars on the elevated railways created amusement. He did not wish to use them, he said, because the public was sure to christen them "hog cars," as it had done already in Chicago and Brooklyn.

John J. Dempsey, Superintendent of the Brooklyn elevated lines, followed Mr. Hedley and gave testimony on much the same lines. He urged that owing to inadequate terminal facilities it was impracticable to set aside special cars for the use of smokers permanently, and it might be difficult to clean properly cars in which smokers had traveled before they were put again in the ordinary service. He had found, he added, no difficulty in enforcing the rule against smoking on the cars.

William Sieber, Superintendent of the B. R. T. surface lines, did not approve of the suggestion made by George Gordon Battle for the petitioners that every fifth car should be devoted to smokers. Like Mr. Dempsey, he laid stress on the inadequacy of the terminals, and thought the innovation would reduce the equipment available for the general public. The hearing was closed and the question will now be decided by the Public Service Commission in committee.

ARRESTED FOR VIGILANCE.

But Magistrate Wouldn't Hold Zealous Election Watcher.

When THE NEW YORK TIMES, in its issue of Wednesday morning, said that James S. Thompson of 825 West 178th Street had been arrested for trying to vote at 91 Willett Street, by Charles Lees of the Honest Ballot Association, an ufortunate error was made, for, as a matter of fact, Mr. Thompson was a watcher doing yeoman service for the Honest Ballot Association, and his arrest was caused by the Democratic Inspector at the polling place on the charge that his zealous challenging was impeding the voting.

Magistrate McQuade would not listen to the charge and Mr. Thompson was released in time to return to his vigil beside the ballot box.

MRS. MURRAY'S ESTATE.

Widow of Former Mayor of New York Left Gifts to Charity.

The will of Mrs. Mary A. Murray, who died on Oct. 22, leaving an estate of more than $50,000, was filed for probate yesterday in the Surrogates' Court. After apportioning her jewelry and household furniture among her nephews and nieces, Mrs. Murray left her entire residuary estate to charity. Mrs. Murray was the widow of James T. Murray, a cotton merchant, and the granddaughter of Walter Bowne, who served two terms as Mayor of New York.

Mrs. Murray divided her household furniture and personal effects between Walter and William B. Bowne, her nephews; Emma B. Beebe, Helen B. Sutton, Alice B. Pope, and Frances B. Freeman, her nieces, and Mabel and Louise Freeman, her grand-nieces.

The residue of the estate was divided as follows: One-tenth to the Women's Hospital of the State of New York, one-tenth to the Presbyterian Hospital, one-tenth to the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children; one-fifth to the New York City Mission and Tract Society, and one-tenth each to St. John's Guild, the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church, the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, and the Working Girls' Vacation Society. Mrs. Murray was a member of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. Walter Bowne, her nephew, was made sole executor.

Richard K. Fox Employe Sentenced.

Adolph Chudoba, former financial agent of Richard K. Fox, publisher of The Police Gazette, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Swann in General Sessions to not less than two years and six months nor more than four years and ten months in Sing Sing, after having pleaded guilty to grand larceny in the second degree on one of three indictments filed against him. According to Fox, the shortages traced to two of three of his employes totaled $80,000.

Equitable space, with all its advantages, is reasonable to rent

IN the ordinary course of events, the location of the Equitable Building, its accessibility and its fame, its last-minute conveniences and equipment, would be employed to justify high rents. But the Equitable Building is as far removed from the ordinary course of events in its rentals as its architecture is removed from the two-story building traditions of the past. That is why Equitable rents are reasonable despite every reason for their being otherwise.

Leases now being made from May 1, 1915. The building, however, is due to be completed 2 or 3 months ahead of this date.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, NOV. 7, 1913.

BANKS OWNED BY THE PEOPLE.

The amendment to the money bill adopted by a vote of 7 to 5 in the Senate Committee yesterday provides that the regional reserve banks, though controlled by the Government, shall be owned by the people. Subscriptions to capital stock will be open to the public, and if after sixty days any part remains unsubscribed, the member banks may take it. This is a way of meeting the rather strenuous objection of the country banks to compulsory subscriptions equal to 20 per cent. of their capital. The public, we imagine, would rather eagerly avail itself of this opportunity. The bill permits 5 per cent. cumulative dividends, and after that one-half goes to surplus up to 20 per cent. of the paid-in capital and one-half is divided between the Government and the subscribing member banks, 60 per cent. to the Government and 40 to the banks. There can be little doubt that the share capital of the reserve banks would be all subscribed by the public.

If the shares should be very generally distributed among the people, and should continue to be held by them in small lots—and we take it that is the theory of some of the supporters of this amendment—the act would be further amended before it had been long in force. It would be amended to provide that the reserve banks should do business not merely with member banks, but with the public, with individuals, precisely as banks of discount do now. This amendment would surely come, because it will often happen that the reserve bank discount rate to member banks would be lower than the rate charged to individual borrowers by the member banks themselves. If the official discount rate were, say, 4 per cent., and the rate charged to individual borrowers 5 or 6 per cent., and in some parts of the country it would be higher, what would happen can be readily foreseen. If the people owned the banks, they would say that their banks must give them the benefit of the lower rate, and not force them to go to the bankers' banks. It could not very well be done, but the pressure upon Congress to order it done would be irresistible.

It is not at all likely, however, that the shares of the reserve banks would long remain in the hands of small subscribers. If the system succeeded, if it were solidly established, shares would go to a premium, and ultimately would pass into the hands of the class of investors who are now the owners of State and National Bank shares. The banks that have viewed with apprehension a demand for an immediate subscription to reserve bank shares equal to 10 per cent. of their own capital will be comforted by this amendment. And if the reserve banks are owned by their own shareholders, which would soon be the case, they would naturally have little fear that the effect of the act would be to create great rival banks competing with them for business in their own field.

This is one of the lengthening series of amendments which are making the bill more acceptable to bankers. The two changes now remaining which must be made before the bill will be either acceptable or sound relate to the composition of the Federal Reserve Board and to the character of the note issues. All valid objection to a Federal Reserve Board made up of members appointed by the President would be removed if the bill were made to provide that members of the Board should be men of large business experience. The composition of the Board of Directors of the Bank of England is the model. There are now six bankers on that Board, not joint-stock bankers but private bankers, and the rest are merchants or members of acceptance houses doing a great business in the domestic or foreign trade. Such men are as competent for reserve board service as bankers would be, and there is the additional advantage that they would represent the business of the country, that is, the interest payers, rather than the bankers, the interest collectors. That is the short and sure way to exclude political influence from the management of the new banking system. And that it should be altogether removed is too plain to require further argument. There is as yet no move to amend the provision relating to note issues, notwithstanding the perfectly clear demonstration of the unsoundness of the provision which makes them an obligation of the Government.

The amendment reducing the number of reserve banks from twelve to four or five is a change of vital necessity, but an element of great insecurity is introduced by the addendum that the number may be increased from time to time by the Federal Board. If the Federal Board were to be made up as we have indicated above, there might be little danger in conferring this discretion; otherwise there would be a constant temptation to establish new reserve banks for political reasons. It is a danger to be averted.

WHY NOT TELL THE TRUTH?

If the State Department would issue each day, while the present widespread and very dangerous excitement over our relations with Mexico lasts, a simple and coherent statement of the status of affairs, much needless anxiety would be dispelled and the circulation of a great deal of falsehood would be checked. There is not the slightest indication that our relations with HUERTA's Government have changed in the last seventy-two hours, but the rumors printed in that brief space of time have comprehended every possible disaster, including armed intervention and the open espousal of the cause of CARRANZA.

In regard to Mexico President WILSON has already cast aside most of the methods of old-fashioned diplomacy. Why should he not go a step further and discard its ancient tradition of absolute secrecy? Everybody knows now that a communication of some sort was lately sent to HUERTA. Most of the excitement is based on the belief that that was an ultimatum and that war may follow. If the people knew the truth they would not be misled by rumors. There is no sign of war, but the Administration is keeping up a needless and unprofitable show of mystery.

SOCIALIST GAINS AND LOSSES.

RUSSELL, the Socialist candidate for Mayor, received 32,109 votes. In 1912 he received in Greater New York 26,282 for Governor of the State, and in the State received 56,917. There is no doubt that the comparisons show a great growth of the Socialist vote, but it remains doubtful whether this reflects a gain for Socialism, strictly speaking.

The Socialist vote has become a sort of cave into which may retreat those dissatisfied with things as they are, and despairing of help by other parties than Socialism. If there were any dissatisfied voters who disliked to vote for either MITCHEL or MCCALL, and yet who were resolved to vote, they could safely vote for RUSSELL, without the least fear of doing any harm to themselves or any measurable good to him or his party.

The ratio of 32,109 to 622,676, the total vote for Mayor, indicates that even at this year's rate of growth New York is not in danger of Socialist control.

This deduction is strengthened by the misfortunes which overtook Socialist candidates in other cities. A vote for the rejection of Socialism after trial means more than the growth of the Socialist vote where there is no chance of its letting the Socialists in. If Fusion means the establishment of good government, the RUSSELL vote of this year is likely to be high-water mark for him and his party.

OUR YOUTHFUL NEXT MAYOR.

Thirty-four years is young to be Mayor of New York. But it would be easy to name younger men who have carried greater responsibilities, and this is distinctively an age of young men. Besides, most people agree with CICERO in liking a young man with something of old age about him, and liking old men with something of youth about them. The mere age of the man tells little about his ability. There are many marvels of vitality and capacity in advanced years; in fact, there are more of them than there are of young men in high station and of great accomplishment. Mere years are not the test of either maturity or utility. The test is rather preparedness than age, and it must be admitted that Mayor MITCHEL will take office with great preparedness. His experience has been exceptional, and his campaign attests that he has an old head on young shoulders. The years which lie before him give him a promise of a rare career, and it is hard to say where his service of the people may not lead him.

His youth has exceptional significance in his membership of a party which has theories about the ages of societies as well as of individuals. The Progressive theory is that social organizations grow effete as well as men, and that one type of mind pushes another off the world's stage, just as the young men drive out the old. We are living, the men of the new doctrines say, in revolutionary times, and are evolving a new governing class to redress wrongs done by those who must perish because of their inability to adapt themselves to the new environment expressed in the theories of government represented by themselves. Mr. MITCHEL has made mistakes as well as successes in his life, and he has had to submerge them to reach his present station. The question of the moment is, Will he use his mistakes as warnings? It is to his credit that in the first moment of his triumph he took the view that a system of bad government was slain, rather than that any particular individual was chosen with policies of his own or of his party.

THE AMERICAN MURDER RATE.

In the matter of homicides the United States is worse than Italy. Dr. FREDERICK L. HOFFMANN, in a report published yesterday in The Spectator, says that, whereas the average homicide rate of Italy for the five years ended with 1910 was 3.9 per 100,000 of population, the average rate of 5.9 prevailed in the registration area of the United States; that is, for every 100 homicides in this country there were only 66 in Italy. If the rate in this country were as low as that in Copenhagen, there would have been but 59 killings and murders here instead of the 778 which actually occurred during 1910. The deaths from like causes in New York leaped to 827 in 1912.

Philadelphia is still a city of brotherly love, it seems, for there the homicide rate was only 1.4 per 100,000, as compared with the rate of 64.3 in Memphis, Tenn. The Southern cities stand highest in this bad eminence, averaging 20.2 killings per 100,000 throughout their extent. The rate for the total population of the continental United States is 6.6, as compared with 3.6 in Paris and only 1.01 in London, and the total of violent deaths in the United States during 1911 because of quarrels, drunkenness, jealousy, murderous assault, and so on, amounted to 6,200, rising to above 9,000 in 1912.

Doubtless racial differences in a country populated with immigrants from all foreign nations, and the clashes between whites and blacks in the South, have much to do with the excessive homicide rate in this country. Nevertheless, the growing contempt for the sanctity of human life is alarming.

AFTER MURPHY.

"Tammany is not destroyed," Mr. MURPHY asserts after his drubbing; "we will come back stronger than ever." There is no prospect of Tammany's coming back stronger than ever. But will it not "come back"? Tammany, or some machine like Tammany, and MURPHY, or some boss like MURPHY, will eventually gain control again, unless the splendid opportunity that now presents itself to do away with the multitude of elective offices in this State is availed of to the full.

Men are few whose interests are unselfish, who can devote themselves closely in the private station to the public interest. Yet our elective system requires that private men shall look after the offices. There are in this State 333 elective offices and more than 500 incumbents of them to be placed in them within each four-year period. Enthusiastic organizations of amateur politicians may, when the public is agitated to revolt against the bosses, compete in a way with the seasoned captains of tens and of fifties under Mr. MURPHY's selfish leadership. But they cannot make their living in this business, which requires unremitting vigilance and industry. Under the present elective system the bosses gradually regain control.

An anti-Tammany machine could be built up successfully if there were only a few levers to throw instead of many. If the government in most of its offices were made appointive instead of elective, the Governor might become the authorized boss of the State, as WOODROW WILSON became boss of New Jersey. The Governor and the Mayors of the cities, appointing most other officials in the executive and judicial departments, would simplify the election machinery so that each voter need concern himself only with ascertaining the fitness of candidates for the headships of his city and State, and for the Legislature at Albany. The machinery of nomination would be correspondingly simplified. The Murphys would be permanently out of a job.

Since the Republic was founded the short-ballot system has been in force in the national elections. The great machinery of the Federal Government has been run more efficiently and successfully than that of any State or City Government. The cause of the breakdown of municipal machinery in the United States, pointed out by Mr. BRYCE, is the long ballot. The reason why the States have become weak and the Federal Government strong lies in the same cause.

Mr. MURPHY's Legislature failed to pass a resolution for a constitutional convention. A reform Legislature has been elected. Its members, if they would smash the Tammany machine, would do well to draft short-ballot bills amending the Constitution, pass them if possible, and, with them, pass a resolution for a constitutional convention to be held in 1915. Then the State's organic law may be overhauled more thoroughly, with the intent of making the State and City Governments genuinely representative.

CAPT. SCOTT'S DIARY.

The diary of Capt. SCOTT sets forth the details of one of the world's greatest tragedies, the hopeless battle with fate of a man who had accomplished a great purpose by the exercise of almost superhuman energy and endurance only to find that his victory had been anticipated by another; of a man who represented the highest development of the race in his era, and died after months of hopeless struggle amid the frozen wastes, at peace, as he said in his last letter to his wife, with the world and himself and with his last thought for the education of his son. The story is not new except in its pathetic details. The bravery of SCOTT and his ill-fated companions, and their heroic conquest of the south pole, had long been known. But the details in the published diaries round out a story which will not be forgotten while the memory of man endures. A story like this, of heroic devotion to an ideal, and bold combat with the most terrific forces of nature, strengthens our faith in man in a day when really great achievements are rare. SCOTT reached the pole by the route he had chosen, though AMUNDSEN had previously reached it by a shorter and less perilous way, and had inevitably nullified much of the value of the noble English explorer's journey if it had not dimmed his glory.

In the diary the world has evidence for the first time of the terrible disappointment which fell upon SCOTT and his companions when they discovered the signs of AMUNDSEN's visit and knew that their great labor had been in vain. Strong and brave as they were, that shock was too severe to be resisted. "All the day-dreams must go" is one of the sad entries in the explorer's diary. Even on starting northward from the goal of their ambition he wondered if they could accomplish the tramp, over the desolate wastes, of 800 miles. Their illusion had been dispelled and the hope that had kept their spirits buoyant on the dangerous journey southward had vanished. But the memory of their achievement will never be dimmed by the knowledge that the Norwegian beat them in the quest of the south pole. The names of SCOTT and his companions will ever rank with those of the greatest of the world's explorers.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Lesson for the Politicians.

An incident of the recent election that caused no excitement, and therefore has not received the attention it deserves, was the election up in Westchester County of V. EVERIT MACY as Superintendent of the Poor. This is an office that there, as in most other places, has hitherto been treated as a minor, but rather toothsome, "plum," to be thrown to a party worker, zealous and efficient enough to deserve a public salary as payment for partisan exertions, but not of sufficient importance or influence to make worth while the giving to him one of the jobs attractive to more ambitious politicians.

If to the mind of any slate-making "leader" in Westchester it ever occurred that a Superintendent of the Poor could do more or better than honestly distribute the county's alms among its paupers, that thought has been carefully concealed. Very evidently, too, the sort of honesty expected of him has usually been easily compatible with "taking care" of still humbler servitors of the party in power by choosing them as subordinate purveyors of largess, or even with spending the money appropriated, with some view to making capital for future elections. That the Superintendent might make a scientific study of the pauperism in his county—that instead of merely "relieving the poor" he might try to discover just what had brought them to such desperate straits and build a fence at the head of the precipice down which they had fallen instead of sending an ambulance to pick them up at its foot—these are things that have been held too "academic" for practical politics.

Yet Mr. MACY, a man known by those who know anything about such matters as competent and eager to work along the new lines, got, on a ticket in other respects weak, a nomination for the place!

Of course, he was instantly and savagely attacked by the county organs of the opposing party, and with such arguments! What did a rich man want of a place like that? Who could expect him to do any real work? Would it be believed that he had expressed dissatisfaction with the established methods of dealing with the poor? And so it went, these foolish papers fondly imagining that the voters of the county were as unintelligent as themselves and still cherished the musty old illusion that any man in their own party was fitted to hold any office, and any man out of it unfitted.

The voters, having learned a thing or two in recent years, calmly ignored the partisan appeals and elected Mr. MACY to the position which, there are many and good reasons for believing, he will fill with benefit to the county and honor to himself.

Why Transfers Had to be Made.

Mayor KLINE's praise of the work done by the New York policemen on Election Day is enthusiastic, but it seems to have been well deserved. According to all reports, they preserved order more than fairly well, showed few or no signs of sharing the bitter animosities of the campaign, and performed intelligently and impartially the duties imposed upon them by the law.

The Mayor is evidently inclined to ascribe the merit of this performance at least in part to the fact that on the eve of election all the Captains, as well as all the patrolmen, had been transferred from the precincts where they knew and were known by many people to precincts where they were strangers to all.

When the purpose to do this was first announced, it seemed to some of us, and presumably to not a few, a most serious reflection on the honesty of the police—an evidence, lamentably clear, that confidence in their power or inclination to resist temptation was lacking in their superiors. And truly there is more than plausibility in the theory that a really good policeman would be efficient anywhere in proportion to his familiarity with conditions and personalities there.

On reflection, however, one can see that while that theory, as a rule, may be true, the transfers could still have been justified without any necessary reflection upon the character of the force as a whole. This is for the reason that the duties of policemen on Election Day are everywhere exactly the same, and their performance is made both simpler and easier where no appeals to them in the name of acquaintance or friendship can be made. That was not less advantageous to the good policeman than to the bad one, the former being spared the time-wasting trouble of refusing to allow himself to be swerved from propriety, while the other escaped temptation.

The wholesale transfers, therefore, if a reflection at all, were rather on us voters than upon the men in uniform. At any rate, that is a permissible as well as charitable interpretation of it, and charitable interpretations, fortunately, are quite as apt to be true as uncharitable ones.

Both Should Hang or Neither.

That the thought of sending a woman to the gallows should excite general repugnance is natural, and natural is it, too, that this feeling should be made the stronger by the fact that the woman just condemned to this hideous death in Connecticut is young, not ill-looking, and obviously, when her crime was committed, much under the influence of a mind at once more vigorous and more vicious than her own. That she knew the difference between right and wrong when she took part in the deliberate planning of her husband's murder and in the cruel execution of that plan is beyond question, however, and it is the sickliest form of sentimentality, in these days, to demand leniency for her on the ground of sex.

Last, if at all, and not first, to make this claim should be other women who are members of a Political Equality League. They above all are under obligation to show willingness to accept full responsibility with the full equality they demand, and, were they consistent, with their plea to Gov. BALDWIN for Mrs. WAKEFIELD's life, they would put in one for that of her male accomplice.

For of arguments against inflicting capital punishment upon anybody for any offense there is no lack. These arguments have been held sufficient and convincing by the lawmakers of several countries, and by several States in this country, and indubitably the general tendency of civilization is toward the abolition of a punishment that is more and more coming to be considered useless as well as horrible. But not one of these arguments is more cogent with respect to women than to men, and only by making confessions of inferiority which the members of Political Equality Leagues certainly do not and will not make could they reasonably expect to gain a hearing.

Gov. BALDWIN refuses to interfere with the course of the law. He should not, since it was for a wholly different purpose that he was intrusted with the pardoning power, and he knows it.

NO BOLIVIAN ATROCITIES.

Consul General Says Vague Charges Will Be Investigated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue of THE TIMES appears a cablegram from London which states that an English employe of the Madeira-Mamoré Railway (whose name is not mentioned) makes serious accusations of "atrocities committed in the rubber regions of the North of Bolivia, similar to those of Peru in the Putumayo," and announcing the projected publication of a book on the subject. This cablegram mentions only four instances, without names, places or details. One of the charges refers to an occurrence—more than a quarter of a century ago—with savages of the "Cachoeira Tres Irmaos" in the lower Madeira River; another an alleged fact in the "Jack Parana" territories, not in Bolivian dominion, and therefore beyond jurisdiction of its laws and authorities. The other assertions are vague and general.

It is not my intention to shield or excuse criminal abuses that may have occurred in Bolivia as in other countries, but it is incumbent on me to deny that such facts would be tolerated, much less shielded, by my government. I would call attention to the special laws for the protection of laborers and savages of these regions, and assure you that a thorough and strict investigation of the above-mentioned accusations will be made and the guilty persons, if any, duly punished.

ADOLFO BALLIVIAN,
Consul General of Bolivia.

SHORT BALLOT REFORM.

Evil of Present System Illustrated in Bronx County.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent election should teach several lessons that the citizenship of our State and the newly-elected Legislature would do well to master. First of these is the need of the short ballot. The present ballot, with its numerous elective offices, has given rise to what R. S. Childs aptly calls "peanut politics." Nowhere was this better exemplified than in Bronx County. Despite the huge pluralities cast in the Bronx for all the most important Fusion candidates, which is a true measure of the anti-Tammany sentiment in that county, still the newly-elected county officials, with the one exception of the county judgeship, are all Tammany men. The new county has become a Tammany stronghold, although the people intended to repudiate that organization.

The explanation of this lies in the fact that our electorate cannot and should not be bothered with choosing such officials as Register, County Clerk, Surrogate, &c., when they do not select such other officials as Police and Health Commissioners, &c. The citizenship has neither the time nor the inclination to look into the qualifications of the candidates for these inconspicuous, though important, offices, and so the majority of people vote ignorantly for these officials. It would be much better that these men should be appointed; or, still better, that their positions should be filled through the merit system.

Some will contend that the result in the Bronx was due to the presence of many factions in the field. Although I partly concede this, it is, nevertheless, true that with a like number of factions or tickets in the field, Mathewson, the Fusion candidate for Borough President, was elected by a large plurality. The explanation is that his position is conspicuous enough to warrant the interest and attention of the voters.

HYMAN L. ROTH.

Edward Morris's Gift.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent death of Edward Morris, the great meat packer of Chicago, recalls to my mind an interesting benefaction of his which I have not seen mentioned in connection with notices of his death.

While in Stratford-on-Avon several years ago I visited, upon the invitation of Miss Marie Corelli, a very interesting sixteenth century half-timber house located on the high, or main, street of the town. This house was known as the home of the mother of John Harvard. It was built in 1596 by Thomas Rogers, and here in 1605 his daughter Katherine was married to Richard Harvard, a prosperous butcher. They were the parents of John Harvard, the young minister who came to New England in 1637, and at his death, a year later, in Charlestown, Mass., left his entire library and half of his estate to the infant college at Cambridge, which was thereafter called by his name.

The Harvard house, previously known as the Ancient House, had lately been exquisitely restored under the personal direction of Miss Corelli with funds for that purpose furnished by Mr. Morris.

RIGHTS OF PEDESTRIANS.

Not Respected by Drivers Even at Street Crossings.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is not quite clear from the remarks of your correspondent, Mr. Orrel A. Parker, just what he understands to be the rights of the pedestrian on the city streets. The fact is, the pedestrian has exactly the same right as the vehicle to use the roadway.

In Barker vs. Savage, 45 N. Y. 196 and 54 N. Y. 245, the Court of Appeals said: "Neither footman nor teams have any right of way superior to the other. They each have the right in common, and equally with the other." In Moebus vs. Hermman, 108 N. Y. 349, the court said: "A person on foot has a right to cross the street where he pleases."

The law is therefore clear. Whether it is a good law or not is another question. Probably it is not, and Mr. Parker's suggestion that it be changed so that a pedestrian shall cross the street, except at crossings, at his own peril, would seem, in view of all the conditions, justifiable if not wise. But is his apparent assumption that most accidents to pedestrians occur off the crossings warranted? I believe that observation and the records will show that at least two-thirds of such accidents occur on the established crossings. The fact is that the drivers of vehicles, especially those of horse-drawn vehicles, have almost no regard whatever for the rights of the pedestrian, even on the crosswalks, and he ventures upon them at his own peril. His safety depends wholly upon his keeping his eyes open, and his ability to dodge the teams, whose drivers neither check their speed nor deviate from their direct course to avoid an accident.

Pedestrians will be fully satisfied if they are protected in their legal rights on the cross-walks only. They have no such protection now out of sight of the traffic squad.

S. W.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read the letter of Mr. Orrel A. Parker with regard to street accidents, wherein he suggests regulations as follows: Prohibit roller skating on the streets. Prohibit games in the streets. Except at crossings pedestrians should venture upon the roadway only at their own risk.

The first form of roller skating to prohibit, if any, is that of automobiles for pleasure solely, which is in no way different from the ordinary roller skating except that the wheels are larger and more dangerous to the person with whom they come in contact.

As to the games in the streets, the general good derived by the children who play there outweighs any inconvenience and annoyance to vehicle drivers.

As to the third suggestion, I believe that such a rule of law would prove unconstitutional, inasmuch as the pedestrian has equal rights on the street with the driver of a vehicle. The mere fact that a person happens to be in a vehicle does not give him paramount right in the street, providing both are using the street for street purposes. The law of the street is motion.

It would be absurd to require a person who is standing in the middle of a block to walk way up to the end of the block, then walk across the street, and then to a place opposite where he started, instead of going straight across, especially as some blocks are from six hundred to one thousand feet long. This would also encourage the automobilist to speed between crossings more than is done at present. Why should the pedestrian surrender his right to cross the street, merely for the purpose of giving the automobilists the privilege of being reckless?

MORE MANUAL WORKERS.

Booker Washington's Advice Recommended to "White Folks."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The appeal of Booker T. Washington to his fellow Afro-Americans to become mechanics, brickmakers, farmers, cattle raisers—in short, to improve themselves into the best kind of common folk instead of seeking the impossible through "education," should not only receive a hearty "Amen!" with material help thrown in, but Dr. Washington should be asked why he restricts his advice to negroes only.

Surely the impossible, and worse yet, the extremely undesirable, have been attempted with the white race in this country these many years. No one honestly supposes that what is commonly called "education" can be gotten, or is gotten, into the heads of any large percentage of pupils even with our pretentious curriculum. In this city the Hawes Committee officially and with painful accuracy reports "graduation from 8B is no proof that the pupil knows anything thoroughly." Page 251, Eleventh School Report, says "many Principals in order to win favor report favorably on new devices (in teaching) regardless of facts." This is to pretend they are doing what they know they are not doing at all.

A Superintendent recently wrote that a certain deceased Principal had run the risk of censure by not promoting unfit pupils. It was a wondrous confession. Why should Booker Washington's advice be kept only for negroes? Does he want them to own the country? That is the way to go about it, anyhow, for any race that wants it. More producers less consumers, and the race that does this gets the prize. Wake up, white folks, and see what schools are doing to your children.

A Non-Sectarian Cancer Hospital.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The demolition of buildings for the Seventh Avenue widening brings to light a charity not much given to seeking publicity. It is a free cancer hospital at 5-7 Perry Street, where women victims of that frightful scourge are tended and where the only qualification for entrance is that the victim's financial distress shall equal or exceed her physical distress.

The devoted Servants of Calvary, for such is the title chosen by the women who serve the place, must leave the home consecrated by some twenty years of work akin to Father Damien's at Molokai, for progress has taken their only home. The money the city pays for the property is being used to buy ten lots in the Mount Hope district in the Bronx; they need money to build on it, and have not a dollar except by contributions.

Their clientele is non-sectarian, for cancer is strictly impartial; they have about equal numbers of Catholics, Protestants, and Jews under treatment and on their waiting lists. Now is the acceptable time to help, and he gives twice who gives quickly.

Smooth Negro Hair.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Among other strange items of progress in the negro race, here in New York, at least, the growth of the straight hair cult is not the least noticeable. Quite a large number of the younger element, especially the women, have managed to do away with the knotty and kinky hair so noticeable in their race.

Perhaps others have noticed it—perhaps it seems undesirable to some. I wonder how it is done? What is the cost? I have a negro friend, a city employe, whom I would like to help in the matter.

FEWER MEN TO ELECT.

Voters Could Control Them and Supplant the Bosses.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You publish a letter from Mrs. Blatch asking for some suggestion of the principles on which the advocates of the short ballot wish to proceed. Many advocates of this reform would refer all inquiries to the example set by the Federal Constitution. After the most painstaking study this instrument was drawn up by some of the best political minds our country has had—Washington, Franklin, Hamilton, and Madison being among them. Their work resulted in the shortest possible ballot. For the entire judicial, executive, and administrative departments of the Federal Government (that is, all the machinery for this great Federal empire except the Legislature in Congress) we elect only one person. The President appoints all the other officials. We elect not a single one of them.

Conceding the usual division of the functions of government into three—legislative, judicial, and executive—which of these shall be filled by elective and which by appointive officers?

Legislation may be defined as the expression of the matured will of a majority of the citizens in such form as to make it enforceable against the minority. A Legislature is the State on a smaller scale, representing theoretically the best sentiment of the people. These representatives must be elected. A sad botch we usually make of it, but in more senses than one our representatives represent us.

The second function of government is, however, an entirely different thing. Judges are not to be controlled by the will of the people as such. They are to be controlled by the general principles laid down in law, and this law must be interpreted in its application to specific cases with great wisdom, penetration, and learning, and in ascertaining the truth of the specific case the Judge must show patience, courage, and wisdom again. Men with the qualifications which a Judge should have do not readily submit themselves to the ordeal of a popular election. If they can be persuaded to do so the populace cannot possibly determine whether they really have these qualifications or not. Popular elections cannot select the best Judges. The advocates of the short ballot would in most cases ask that all State Judges be appointed by the Governor—instead of being selected for us by leaders of the party machine—with possibly some requirement that the Governor's appointments be confirmed by some other body.

As to the executive department, corresponding to the President, his Cabinet, or heads of departments, and all their numerous subordinates, here again the short ballot advocate would ask that appointment replace election. Next year we shall elect a Governor, but we shall tie his hands by not permitting him to appoint enough of the subordinate State officers to make it possible for him to be held responsible if the public business is not properly attended to. You and I shall be asked to vote that Smith or Brown shall be State Engineer, without having the least idea what an engineer must do, or whether the candidate can work examples in plane trigonometry. We shall be asked to vote for a Controller, without knowing whether the candidates who are offered for our choice have ever read a single book on finance or handled a ten-thousand-dollar business proposition. Is not this silly? Is there any other word to describe it? The only qualities that a Governor needs are honesty, courage, and that sort of wisdom of which the populace can judge. If we elect only one administrative officer for the State we shall take the trouble to let public opinion be left in the selection of this one. Given such a Governor, he can select officers for the work they are to do as a man selects a physician for his family or the President of a corporation selects an engineer for his company. Then our work can be attended to without scandal or inefficiency.

All short-ballot advocates do not agree as to the details of the proposal, but they all agree on the principle that voters should not be required to go through the solemn farce of electing people about whom they know nothing to offices the duties of which are as unknown to them as the geography of Central Africa.

TRAIN SUCCEEDS NOTT.

Whitman Names Him in Place of Assistant Who Becomes a Judge.

Charles S. Whitman yesterday appointed Arthur C. Train an Assistant District Attorney to succeed Charles C. Nott, Jr., who was elected to the General Sessions Bench. Mr. Nott tendered his resignation on Wednesday, to take effect on Nov. 15, when he will leave for Williamstown, Mass., for a vacation at the home of his father, Charles C. Nott, former Chief Judge of the United States Court of Claims.

Mr. Train, who is well known as a prosecutor and writer, held his first public position under District Attorney Philbin. He was retained in office by William Travers Jerome, and served for six years, trying many important cases. In 1907 he resigned to take up private practice. In 1908 he was appointed an Assistant Deputy Attorney General to prosecute election frauds, and obtained many convictions.

In 1910 Gov. Hughes designated Mr. Train a Special Deputy Attorney General to take the place of the District Attorney of Queens and to investigate the charges of widespread political corruption in that county. There, with the aid of two Grand Juries, Mr. Train obtained over 100 indictments of city officials and others for fraud. When John Purroy Mitchel, as Commissioner of Accounts, caused the removal of John A. Haffen as President of the Bronx, Mr. Train acted as his special counsel. During the last election Mr. Train acted as head of Mr. Whitman's election bureau.

Mr. Train is a well-known writer on sociological subjects, and his "Prisoner at the Bar" is regarded as an authoritative work on the practical administration of justice to criminals.

$1,000 FOR OLD TAPESTRY.

Top Price at Hamilton Sale Paid for 16th Century Brussels.

A sixteenth century Brussels tapestry brought the highest price at the Allan McLane Hamilton sale at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon, going to H. Koopman for $1,000. It was 11 feet in height by 10 feet in width, with the original border, characteristic of the period, figures, and garlands of fruit and flowers. The scene showed a victorious Roman General with his officers, while before him knelt priests and bearded men offering him a human head. The Brooklyn Museum made a number of purchases of beautiful old carved temple rammas, tinted and gilded, of different sizes, paying $75 for five of them.

A suit of cap-à-pie armor, Italian, of the sixteenth century, steel without ornamentation, from the Brough collection, brought $215. A collection of Italian pastoral figures, of the kind used, particularly in Naples, for the groups in the Christmas celebrations, made by skilled artists, went to M. Baumeister for $82.50.

It was an unusually good collection, in figure and costume. An old spinet of three and a half octaves, of the late sixteenth century, the inside of the cover painted with fruits and flowers, went to Herbert T. Harde for $125. An eighteenth century Adams mantel mirror went to Mrs. J. M. Cook for $115. Three carved and inlaid walnut church stalls from Sicily went to the Lans Curiosity Shop for $180.

The total returns for the sale were $5,376, and for the afternoon $4,316.

Mortimer L. Schiff Announces Gift at Meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

SAID TO BE JACOB H. SCHIFF'S

But Banker Declines to Commit Himself as to Benefactor of Business Students.

Mortimer L. Schiff announced at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday that $500,000 had been offered to found a College of Commerce by a man who was not ready to have his name revealed. Few of the members present had heard of the gift, and the announcement was received with much enthusiasm. There was much speculation throughout the rest of the meeting as to the unknown sponsor for the proposed college, but no name was uttered. Mr. Schiff said afterward that not even his associates on the special committee appointed to inquire into the merits of a College of Commerce had been told who had offered the endowment.

After news of the gift appeared the name of Jacob H. Schiff was mentioned. Mr. Schiff refused to discuss the matter, other than to say that his son had not told him about it before the meeting.

The $500,000 gift was announced during the presentation of a report of the Committee on Commercial Education, headed by Mortimer L. Schiff, which has spent many months looking into the advantages of a college in which chief emphasis might be put on commercial subjects. The committee inquired into the advisability of placing the new institution in this city, and, after consulting with eminent educators, including Dr. John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education; David F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture; Dean Joseph F. Johnson of the New York University School of Commerce, and others, it was decided to recommend to the Chamber of Commerce that steps be taken for its establishment. The committee's report was accepted by the chamber at yesterday's meeting, and work on the proposed institution is expected to begin soon.

In addition to the great individual pledge of funds, four subscriptions of $50,000 each have been obtained by the special committee. The estimate was advanced in the report that the cost of a suitable building would be in the neighborhood of $500,000, and the unknown doner stipulated that his money should be used for its erection. He made the condition, Mr. Schiff stated, that the $200,000 other pledges be used to install a commercial and civic museum in the new building, and that the City of New York enter into a contract with the Chamber of Commerce providing for the annual support of both the college and the museum by the city. To offset the responsibility and expense thus put upon the city, the committee suggested that the college be put under the joint administration of the College of the City of New York and the Chamber of Commerce.

The committee informed the chamber that their plans had gone far enough to choose a tentative home for the College of Commerce.

"The building in which the college should be housed," said the report, "should provide adequate space for the installation of a museum of commerce, on the lines of the well-known Deutsches Museum in Munich, and also for a civic museum, which should, as one of its purposes, serve as a laboratory for young men who are preparing for public business. The old site of the City College at Lexington Avenue and Twenty-third Street is now available and may not continue so, as the city may determine to utilize it for other purposes. Those who have been consulted are of the opinion that the present building is not suitable for the purposes of a College of Commerce, and that if a college is to be established on that site a new building should be erected."

The committee suggested that immediate steps be taken to obtain the coöperation of the city authorities. It was pointed out that this country was far behind Europe, and particularly Germany, in providing adequate facilities for commercial education, and that the basis for courses should be made practical and not theoretical, with particular weight upon continuity and evening work for students.

"By an institution on the collegiate plan," the report said, along this line, "the committee understands one that is similar to a college of arts and sciences in that it would have substantially the same entrance requirements, would afford the same mental discipline and culture training and would lead to a baccalaureate degree, but provision should, in this instance, be made that practical experience and special knowledge might be permitted to take the place of certain counts in the entrance examinations and an incentive be thus furnished to young men who have not been able to complete a high school course.

"It seems particularly appropriate that such an institution for higher commercial training should be maintained by the municipality and that instruction should thus be made available to all classes. Whether this instruction should be made absolutely free, or whether some moderate charge should be made, is a question which can hereafter be determined. Business is becoming a profession, and it seems fitting that the leaders in business in the greatest business centre of the country should aid in establishing in this city a College of Commerce and Administration second to none in the world."

The committee suggested that the College of Commerce should provide primarily for a four year course, with facilities for the completion of training in three years. Requirements for entrance should be made similar, the report said, to those now in force at the City College, except that particular stress should be laid on commercial subjects as taught in the High School of Commerce. Special students should also be admitted, and measures taken to secure employment for graduates.

The Chamber of Commerce has been considering a College of Commerce for more than two years. The original committee named to take charge of the project began work in November, 1911, with George P. Brett as Chairman. Mr. Brett went abroad and studied the situation in foreign schools thoroughly, but was not able to carry to completion the task. He was succeeded by the late Theodore F. Miller, who died last May, and Mr. Schiff was then appointed to the place. Some of the other members of the committee are Frank A. Vanderlip, Thomas W. Lamont, Alexander C. Humphries, Edward A. C. Smith, and Clark Williams.

DANIEL J. O'REILLY, LAWYER, DIES AT 44

TWICE COUNSEL FOR THAW

As Assistant District Attorney He Prosecuted Nan Patterson and Dr. Samuel J. Kennedy.

Daniel J. O'Reilly, former Assistant District Attorney, counsel for Harry K. Thaw in his two trials, and who appeared in a number of celebrated cases in the criminal courts of this city, died yesterday at his home, 19 West 130th Street. Since his release from Blackwell's Island, where he served a term as a receiver of stolen goods, Mr. O'Reilly's health had been constantly failing. His sentence and disbarment really broke down his health.

At his bedside when death came were his wife, his brothers, Jefferson, Joseph, and Charles; his sister, Miss Mary O'Reilly, and his four children, William, aged 19; Eleanor, 15; Daniel J., 7., and James, 3 years old.

Daniel J. O'Reilly was once one of the best-known lawyers in this city. He served as an Assistant District Attorney under Asa Bird Gardiner, and was on the counsel for Harry K. Thaw during his two trials for the killing of Stanford White.

Mr. O'Reilly was born in this city in 1869 and his early education was obtained in the public schools. His father was Daniel J. O'Reilly, who served for years as a Police Magistrate, and was one of the well-known figures in the political life of the city. Mr. O'Reilly was graduated from Columbia University, and was admitted to the law in 1892. He was appointed Assistant District Attorney and obtained the first trial conviction of Dr. Samuel J. Kennedy, the Staten Island dentist, who was charged with the murder of Dolly Reynolds. He appeared also for the State in the prosecution of the Olga Nethersole "Sapho" case and in the prosecution of Nan Patterson for the murder of Caesar Young. Mr. O'Reilly was also lawyer for Capt. Hains.

As counsel for Thaw, O'Reilly did splendid work in the defense of his client and had the distinction of being the only member of counsel for Thaw in his first trial retained by him in his second attempt to win his freedom. At the conclusion of the Thaw case Mr. O'Reilly became the personal counsel for Evelyn Nesbit Thaw.

On May 29, 1909, he appeared in the City Court for examination in regard to a judgment obtained against him by a milliner for hats sold to his wife. He said then that he had no means to pay the bill for $1,300. Although Harry Thaw, he said, had paid him $30,000 for his services Thaw still owed him $25,000. He had no jewelry, he said, and he had never owned a watch. The Hains trial in which he was counsel for the defense, he said, had netted him less than $1,000.

Mr. O'Reilly's downfall came when on April 14, 1911, he was indicted, charged with having received stolen goods from Frank Plass, a jeweler. Aaron Bancroft, an aged broker, was knocked down in the Produce Exchange Building and robbed of $85,000 worth of securities. O'Reilly was the negotiator for the thieves in the return of the securities. Frank Plass, who was arrested as one of those implicated, turned informer, and told of his and the lawyer's connection with the theft of the securities.

He told of receiving the securities and then going to Boston with two other men, who were indicted. They tried to dispose of the bonds and were still trying when they met O'Reilly in Rector's. Plass told of O'Reilly saying, "All right, I will get rid of this stock for you."

How he attempted to get rid of it, rides in taxicabs while negotiations were under way, and a meeting between Plass and O'Reilly in the Day and Night Bank, the passing to the lawyer of marked bills, were all told at the trial. In June O'Reilly was convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary.

The case was appealed and in December of the next year the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court upheld the conviction and confirmed the sentence. He was disbarred from the practice of the law in the same month as his conviction. The disbarred lawyer took his sentence hard, and it was reported that his health had broken.

Mr. O'Reilly married Miss Marie F. Meakim, daughter of a Police Captain.

SIR WILLIAM H. PREECE DIES

Noted Civil Engineer Who Introduced the Telephone in England.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Sir William Henry Preece, former Engineer-in-Chief and Electrician of the British Post Office, died here to-day. Sir William was one of the highest authorities on telegraphy and telephoning. He introduced the telephone into England, brought into use here the electric block system of railroad signaling, introduced the domestic electric bells into the country, and was one of the first to file a patent for the duplex system of telegraphy.

He was born in Wales on Feb. 15, 1834, and was educated at King's College, London. For half a century he was engaged in the practical work of telegraphy and in more recent years telephony also. Of these years of service twenty-seven were spent in the Post Office, the preceding sixteen having been sent as an employe of the Electric Telegraph Company, which existed prior to 1870, in which year the Crown took over the telegraph control of the country.

In 1852 Sir William, then Mr. Preece, entered the office of the late Edwin Clark, who was then chief engineer of the company. From 1854 to 1856 he acted as assistant to Latimer Clark, and in the latter year he was made superintendent of the southern district. During the early part of his career Sir William took out patents of a duplex system. In 1860 he was appointed by the London and Southwestern Railroad as superintendent of the electrical system. He entered the Post Office service in 1870 as Division Engineer for the South of England.

In 1877 Sir William visited the United States in company of Sir Henry Fischer. The result of their investigations was the introduction of "sound reading" into this country. He also brought over the system of quadruplex telegraphy—by which four messages can be sent on one wire at one time. In 1884 he again crossed the Atlantic and this time he returned to introduce the multiplex system by which six messages can be sent over a wire. In 1884 Sir William began experimenting with wireless telegraphy. He worked out an electromagnetic system which was for a long time—and before the Marconi system in England—in practical operation between Lavernock, near Cardiff, and Flatholm, an island in the Bristol Channel, a distance of three and a half miles.

Sir William was for some years President of the Institution of Civil Engineers. He was joint author with Sir James Sivewright of a text book of telegraphy with Dr. Maier of The Telephone, and with Mr. Stubbs of a manual of telephony.

Marconi's Tribute to Preece.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—William Marconi telegraphed the following tribute to the memory of Sir William Preece:

"I deeply regret the death of Sir William Preece, who was the first person in England to take an interest in my early experiments and to lecture upon them. It is due to his influence that I received considerable encouragement from the British Post Office."

The dignity of food

Few of the world's popular hostelries ever condescend to discuss food.

There is a prejudice among them that it is undignified to descend into the kitchen.

So, all that the world knows of most hotels is shrouded in the mysterious word cuisine.

Personally, we have in mind to exploit Claridge cuisine by elucidating all its ramifications from beginning to end.

We shall trace the checkered career of a chicken from roost to roast, from farm to Claridge.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MEETS IN CHICAGO

Favors Granting Some Demands to Players—No Interleague Series.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—The American League in its brief annual meeting to-day, voted unanimously against the proposal to substitute a general interleague series for the world's series as now played, discussed informally the demands of the Players' Federation, and pronounced several of them "acceptable," and appointed a committee to represent it in a small convention to consider revision of the rules.

The meeting disposed of a number of routine matters, including the reelection of Charles W. Somers, President of the Cleveland Club, as vice president. A new Board of Directors, consisting of the President of the clubs at St. Louis, Detroit, Washington and Philadelphia was elected, these four succeeding the other four Presidents.

No trades were announced and most of the men present said they had not talked trade during the session, or after it. Manager Birmingham declared his team would remain intact, thus disposing of a reported attempt by the Chicago Club to get one of the Cleveland outfielders. Robert McRoy said Cady would probably remain with Boston, though the club has one superfluous catcher.

The league will suggest the shortening of the playing season by starting it on April 14 and ending on Oct. 7. The dates, however, depend on the National League agreeing to them. The date for the schedule meeting was not announced.

Not a dissenting voice was heard when President Johnson proposed that the league go on record as favoring the world's series between the two big league pennant winners. The plan to have a general campaign was brought up recently by August Herrman, Chairman of the National Commission, and would have provided that every team in one circuit play every team in the other.

It was specified that the talk on the players' demands was "strictly informal." The league received no official list of demands from President Fultz of the federation, but a series of reforms the players had drawn up had been sent to every club owner by the National Commission, and these were gone over in an open discussion. The proposed abandonment of the reserve rule, which defenders of organized ball say is vital to its existence, naturally found no champions at the meeting, but indications were that the players will be granted some of their demands.

President Johnson, Vice Presirent Somers, and Manager Mack of the Philadelphia Club were appointed to meet with three National League representatives and managers and umpires of both leagues to go over the rules. Few of the rules are apt to be changed, but some minor alterations may be made. The meeting probably will be held in December.

Charles Williams, Treasurer of the Chicago Nationals, to-day arranged a six-game series for the Cubs with the Philadelphia Athletics at Jacksonville and Tampa during the Spring training trip and a six-game series with the St. Louis Americans at Tampa and St. Petersburg, Fla.

BASEBALL'S NEWEST JOKE.

"Gov. Tener of Pennsylvania to be President of National League."

The biggest joke of the Winter baseball season to date is the report which emanated from Cincinnati yesterday to the effect that everything had been arranged for the election of Gov. John K. Tener of Pennsylvania to the Presidency of the National League at the annual meeting here next month. Garry Herrmann played his little part in the jest by saying Tener could have the position if he wanted it, adding that President Baker of the Philadelphia Club and Barney Dreyfuss have had the matter in charge. The denial issued by Gov. Tener last night was hardly necessary, as few close followers of the game could understand how a man of Gov. Tener's position could accept the office. His term as Governor of Pennsylvania is only half completed, he could not handle both offices at the same time, and it is doubtful if he would consider the National League Presidency if he were free to accept it. The petty quarreling and continual bickering of the National League club owners have made the place anything but enviable.

Meanwhile Tom Lynch refuses either to become disturbed over his chances for re-election or to do any campaigning. He says he is willing to stand or fall on his record of four years in office, and all baseball followers excepting a few National League club owners regard Lynch's rule as highly successful. The only apparent feeling against him is because of his refusal to let others run the league for him. The same campaign against him has been waged before, but he has won each time, and it is likely that the National League magnates will return him to office for another year when they get together here next month.

Charles W. Murphy, owner of the Chicago National League team, sailed from New York yesterday for a sojourn of two months in Europe. Murphy declined to enter into any lengthy discussion on baseball while in this city, except to spike the report that Heinie Zimmerman of the Bronx was to be traded to New York or Brooklyn. The whole New York team, including McGraw, could not tempt Murphy to make a trade involving the Bronx slugger, Mr. Murphy announced, without cracking a smile. Those who heard the remark were not so successful in repressing the laughs. The Chicago Club owner declined to make any comment on the coming election in the National League, declaring that he did not care to discuss league politics. The club will be represented at the coming meeting by Harry Ackerman, a stockholder.

Johnny Lush, the former St. Louis pitcher, who has been with Toronto of the International League for some years, was sold yesterday to the New Orleans Club of the Southern Association.

EDDIE PLANK HONORED.

Gettysburg Friends Banquet and Praise Athletics' Pitcher.

GETTYSBURG, Penn., Nov. 6.—Two hundred of Eddie Plank's home folks gathered here to-night to honor the veteran pitcher of the Athletics in an elaborate banquet. Guests of honor were Manager Connie Mack, Eddie Collins, and Harry Davis of the Philadelphia American League Club, while baseball enthusiasts from all the nearby towns joined in the event.

Most of those who participated in the affair were school-day friends of Plank, and many came from distant towns to pay tribute to their baseball idol. As a special token a diamond scarf pin was presented to Plank by his Gettysburg friends. The presentation was made by Judge S. McSwope. Connie Mack, Collins, and Davis responded to toasts, while many of Plank's college and school friends joined in praising him, among them being Dr. W. A. Granville, President of Gettysburg College, Plank's alma mater.

The decorations included the world's championship pennant and the pennants of the local college where Plank was discovered as a baseball star.

Harris Hall Soccer Victory.

The Townsend Harris Hall soccer team defeated the Columbia second team in a well-played game at South Field yesterday afternoon by the score of 1 to 0. The goal was scored by Perrotti early in the first half. The work of Curran at goal for the Townsend boys was the feature of the game.

AIR AFFECTS PITCHERS.

Also Hard Ground Causes Ball to Bound Badly in Giants' Game.

By JOHN J. McGRAW, Manager New York Giants.

Special to The New York Times.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Nov. 6.—We are now in a climate that puts the red blood to coursing through the veins. To-day we played here before a representative crowd of mining men, ranchers, and soldiers. They ripped the town wide open for us as soon as we came in, meeting the party at the train with the Ninth Cavalry Band, which is stationed here with the troopers to keep the Mexicans in check. We defeated the White Sox to-day, 14 to 5.

The game yesterday might have looked to be a joke after a glimpse at the box score, but Eastern fans should have taken a peek at the field on which we played.

The people at El Paso, and a lot of them are my personal friends, did every thing they could to get the field in good playing condition, but they could not, of course, get rid of the sand, and that was the trouble. That was the real reason why Mathewson and Hearne were hit as they were, and the same went for Scott.

Also there was another angle. El Paso is quite a distance in the air, and the latter is of a rather thin quality. Consequently, there is only a slight resistance to the ball as it travels toward the plate, and curve pitching is practically impossible for the Eastern twirler at the start. He has to get the hang of it before he gets the ball to travel right. The eyesight of the batters has not been impaired in the meantime, and the combination means a lot of hits.

The sand, of course, was the worst handicap. The fielders could never get a start on the ball, and when they once were set for it, it was likely to fall fifty feet behind them, or in front, due to the "high sky."

The weather in both places has, however, made up for any other shortcomings, and we are now heading for the sunset State.

All the men on both teams were in uniform again to-day and probably will be, as there are no physical ailments in the crowd. The game to-day was farcical, but it was not the players' fault at that. The Sox were lost in this kind of air and as the field, unlike that at El Paso, was hard as rock in many places, there was no telling where the ball would travel. Also curve pitching was practically impossible, and Leverenz was certainly nicked for plenty of hits. Rath, Chase, Evans, Magee, and Devlin made home runs.

We play at Bisbee to-morrow morning and leave for California early in the afternoon. The score by innings:

New York	3	0	3	0	0	0	5	3	..	14	17	11

CORNELL IN FINE FORM.

Coaches Seem Satisfied That Eleven Is Rounding Into Condition.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 6.—The Cornell 'Varsity team worked in fine form in secret practice this afternoon in the last hard workout before the game with Michigan on Saturday. The team was driven at top speed through a brief scrimmage and the coaches were satisfied that the eleven was in proper condition to give Michigan a hard battle. The Wolverines are expected to reach Ithaca to-morrow, and 400 rooters from Ann Arbor are due on a special train on Saturday.

In spite of the absence of O'Hearn from the line-up, which it was feared to-day might continue for the rest of the season, the Cornell eleven is now in fairly good shape to meet Michigan. Coach Ray Van Orman, the end coach, has spent the entire week working with Rees, who is to play left end, and Meheffey at right end, and he feels sure that while neither will come up to O'Hearn's standard they will nevertheless prove a match for Michigan.

Williamson and Mallory both got into the game at right tackle, and Line Coach Reed will probably recommend to Dr. Sharpe that both be given an opportunity to play against Michigan. Guyer is a fixture at left tackle. Karl McCutcheon, the husky guard, who has been out of the game two weeks because of injuries, rejoined the squad to-day, and in case of necessity he will be sent into part of the game Saturday.

The team was given a chance at defense against the Michigan plays today and succeeded in breaking them up. Many forward passes were tried by the 'Varsity and several were successful. Dr. Sharpe will probably uncover a number of new plays against Michigan, and it is believed that Cornell's attack will be more varied than it has been before this year.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 6.—The University of Michigan football squad, two dozen strong, left to-night for Ithaca, N. Y., where Cornell will be played on Saturday. The Wolverines expect to reach Geneva, N. Y., to-morrow, and to remain there until Saturday noon, going to Ithaca just before time to start the game.

The men are in good condition, with the possible exception of Lichtner, who last night injured his leg slightly in practice. Torbet, who was kept out of the Syracuse-Michigan game last Saturday because of a weak shoulder, has fully recovered and is expected to play full back against Cornell.

Stevens Team Shows Up Well.

The Stevens Tech eleven displayed a considerable amount of ginger in the scrimmage yesterday afternoon. The scrubs fought desperately to hold down 'Varsity, but the speedy work of the latter was not to be withstood. The coaches expressed satisfaction at the increased dash and vim which seems to be contagious. Several of the alumni helped to drill the men and in addition, Dr. Newtown, the football man, well known in the East as a successful coach, devoted his time to drilling the team on offensive work.

LAW SELECTED AS PRINCETON'S PUNTER

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 6.—The Tigers began two days of light final priming for the Harvard game on Saturday by taking an hour of signal drill this afternoon with some work at forming interference at the kick-off. This programme will continue to-morrow.

The coaches again laid stress upon the kicking game, and Law came in for a stiff workout at punting. He had good success getting them off for fifty yards and had no trouble in delivering the ball with a snap from his foot. Law is the selection for right half back on Saturday over Borden, who loomed up as a possibility this week because he could show some ability at carrying the ball in addition to punting when he was drafted to the 'Varsity, but his kicking has failed to come up to the standard set by Law and the coaches are forced to leave Law in the backfield.

All the Princeton players are in good condition. Trainer Fitzpatrick announced after the practice, and unless some accident happens there will be no regular absent from the line-up which starts the game with Harvard. Several of the players have been working with bruises and slight injuries, chiefly scratches, but all are recovering in good shape.

In addition to the regulars the substitutes are being kept up to the same physical notch and will be ready to jump into the fray on a moment's notice. These men include the players who have been substituting for the 'Varsity whenever it has been necessary. Lamberton, Larsen, Heyniger, Longstreth, Glie, Love, Haviland, J. S. Baker, Emmons Borden, F. Trenkmann, Payne, and Brown are the chief cares.

The condition of the field is being watched almost as zealously as that of the men, because the Tigers from their experience with Dartmouth have learned to abhor a wet field. It is being covered with straw each evening after the practice and cleaned before the workout the next afternoon.

The coaches announced to-day that they had decided not to use numbers on the Princeton football players in the game with Harvard on Saturday, notwithstanding their decision yesterday to use them. The idea was worked out thoroughly this afternoon with the 'Varsity and the result was unsatisfactory, resulting in the abrupt decision not to use numerals.

CAPT. STORER TO PLAY.

Harvard's Last Scrimmage for Princeton Game To-morrow.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 6.—The Harvard football team finished its practice for the Princeton game this afternoon with a drill against the second team, which again put on the Tiger plays, and then with a more or less hard scrimmage against the first substitutes, in which the regulars beat the second string men by a 15 to 3 score.

Capt. Storer did not get into the scrimmage, he still being slightly lame, but he is in good shape otherwise, and there is hardly a chance that he will not play at Princeton and be at his best.

In the scrimmage particular attention was paid to the kicking, Hardwick doing the punting for the regulars and Mahan for the substitutes, while Bradlee worked with the 'Varsity offense. Hardwick got away some very fine kicks, several of which carried for more than 50 yards and were accurate. The 'Varsity scores came on three field goals and a touchdown. Brickley did all the scoring, making a drop-kick goal from the 40-yard line and goals from placement from the 30 and 39 yard lines. His drop kick would have scored from midfield. The touchdown was made possible when the substitutes fumbled the ball on their two-yard line, the regulars recovering and immediately punching their way through. Mahan also did some good booting behind the substitutes' line, and at the end of the play got a field goal, this after a fair catch had been made on one of Hardwick's punts sent out to the 'Varsity's 30-yard line.

Harvard to-day showed the results of hard drill in its plays, and expects to put them on more smoothly than in any game this year. The men also had a lot of work in solving the forward pass plays that the Tigers are expected to use in abundance Saturday.

There is no doubt that Mahan will be in shape for Saturday's game, but Trumbull, although he was out on the field to-day and will be taken to Princeton, is not likely to get a chance. Swigert, the quarter back of the second team, of which he is Captain, was taken up to the 'Varsity this afternoon. He is a good man, and will be needed should anything happen to Logan.

There was a mass meeting of students at the Harvard Union to-night, President Lowell and several of the coaches addressing the boys. The 'Varsity squad will start for New York to-morrow at 1 o'clock P. M., and are ready for the Tigers except for signal drill, that will be held in their hotel to-morrow night.

Tigers to Race Columbia.

Columbia and Princeton harriers will meet on the Van Cortlandt Park course this afternoon in their annual cross-country run. Columbia's team is familiar with the course and hopes to give the Tigers a hard contest. The defeat of the Blue and White harriers on Saturday does not give much promise for them to-day, but they will try and make their experience over the course count for other deficiencies. The Columbia team will be made up of Capt. E. B. Slade, '14; M. Gertx, '16; M. Simon, '16; R. H. Mackay, '14; H. G. Loesch, '15; F. Whelan, '14; E. Zvirin, '14, and W. H. Glimm, '15.

Entries from twenty preparatory schools have been received for the interscholastic cross-country race to be held on South Field next week. Both Schenectady and Morris High, the winners of the last two races, will be represented by strong squads, and will enter the run as favorites.

ARMY AND NAVY TICKETS.

Applications from Supposed Speculators to be Rejected.

The New York Baseball Club announced yesterday that every requisition for tickets for the Army-Navy game at the Polo Grounds on Nov. 29 which is made on a special order from the Army or Navy will be filled. These tickets will be distributed prior to those which are to be purchased by the general public. The club officials are receiving mail orders for the general sale of tickets at $3 each. These orders have been placed on file in the order of their receipt. The tickets will be distributed on the same principle which is followed by the colleges and the committee in charge of this distribution will be Everard Thompson of Yale and J. R. Murray of Princeton.

Any orders which savor of coming from speculators will be rejected. From the present indications the New York club will probably not have more than 1,000 seats for public sale. The applications will be filled in the order of their receipt. After that supply has been exhausted, the New York club will receive mail or personal applications based on the possibility that the Army and Navy will not use the full quota which they have requested and will return some to the New York club.

In re-arranging the seating at the Polo Grounds, 100 additional boxes will be built and will be sold for $50 each. Each box will seat four persons.

Seats for the Dartmouth-Carlisle game at the Polo Grounds, on Nov. 15, are also being received by the New York club. The price will be $2 each. The boxes will be $10 each. Dartmouth will occupy the south side of the field. All the seats on the north side of the field will be sold, first come, first served, but the Dartmouth section will be reserved. At the Dartmouth-Carlisle game the score board will indicate the play of the Yale-Princeton game at New Haven.

Army Scrimmages with Scrub.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 6.—The Army regulars scrimmaged for nearly an hour today with a strong scrub eleven. The second team employed a lot of new inventions designed to baffle the 'Varsity, but nothing puzzling occurred for the regulars showed a much improved defensive game and broke through the scrubs forwards, smearing the play repeatedly. The Army's first string of backs started in to-day's workout, and with Prichard at quarter back and Hodgson, Ford and Benedict making up the balance of the backfield, the regulars hung a score on the scrubs, Hodgson slashing his way through tackle for a touchdown early in the rough work. Doe kicked the goal. After a few plays the regular backs were withdrawn, but a much longer workout was given the forwards.

Capt. Benny Hoge's brother, W. M. Hoge, was used at one of the ends for a while and played well. The work of Markoe and Merrilat in breaking up the scrubs' forward pass formations was excellent. With McEwan still on the side lines, Waddell and Weems were pitted against each other at the pivotal positions. Kerr was used for awhile in Huston's place at guard, and Mullins and Mahoney alternated in driving the scrubs at quarter back.

The Army will take another hard scrimmage to-morrow in further preparation for Albright on Saturday.

Columbia Sophs Win Meet.

Columbia University sophomores completed their victory over the freshmen yesterday afternoon on the track by a final score of 40 to 22. The second-year men won a big lead in points in the first part of the meet, which was held last Monday, and although the freshmen led in yesterday's events, they could not cut down the sophomore advantage. The final score was 51 to 39 in favor of the Class of 1916. The summaries:

Meyer Not Going to Australia.

Alvah T. Meyer of the Irish-American A. C., who has been heralded as a prospective member of the American team of athletes which is to invade Australia, said yesterday that he had no intention of making the trip, but that he would take up a position with a brokerage firm in Boston, in which city he intended doing his future running. Meyer will be a decided loss to local athletics, in which he is the leading sprinter. His most recent wins were accomplished in the metropolitan championships, in which he showed some of the best running of his career in the century and furlong dashes.

Good Bouts at Brown's.

Some of the fastest boxing ever witnessed in Brown's Gymnasium was seen last night in the semi-final and final sessions, when each bout went the ten rounds scheduled with the contests close throughout in each case. In the main attraction, which brought together Cy Smith of Hoboken and Jimmy Fusane, a hurricane exhibition resulted. After the first session, in which Fusane proved a bit to the good, Smith came back and made even rounds of the next two. The fourth and fifth went to the Hoboken lad, with the next even. Smith scored in the seventh and eighth, and Fusane had the proverbial shade in the last two rounds, making the go a draw.

Mike Rosen beat Charlie Young in ten rounds, but the latter assimilated punishment as though he liked it, and gained the good will of the spectators by his gameness. Charlie Cutler defeated Bobby Grant in six rounds.

Murphy and Bloom Draw.

Tommy Murphy encountered a tartar in Phil Bloom, the Williamsburg lightweight, last night in the main event of ten rounds at the Postman Athletic Club, Brooklyn, and emerged from the bout only on even terms. The Williamsburg boxer, who has recently entered the ranks of star bout boxers, showed himself to be a clever and aggressive performer, but lacked a stout punch. He outclassed the former Harlem idol at long range and got over many clean and well directed punches, but failed to dent Murphy's countenance and only opened a cut on his left ear.

CARNEY TAKES LEAD IN BILLIARD MATCH

Challenger for Title Finishes Second Night's Play 14 Points Ahead of De Oro.

Joseph Carney of San Francisco, the challenger for the three-cushion professional billiard title, completely outplayed Alfred De Oro, the champion, last night at Doyle's Academy in the second of three matches of 50 points each. Carney not only wiped out his arrears of 13 points on the previous night's play, but finished 14 caroms ahead of the champion, the total score for the two nights' play being Carney, 100; De Oro, 86. The challenger's superiority on the night's play was evident from their respective scores. Carney scored 63 points in 86 innings, and De Oro's total was 36, or a trifle less than half the number of his opponent.

While Carney did not display the grace and finish of the champion he executed many difficult shots, and appeared more at ease than his opponent. The latter resorted to the safety shot repeatedly, while the challenger played an open game and took a number of apparently reckless chances. It was the latter that helped him to accumulate his string of 100 buttons. His best play was in the eleventh inning, when by splendid manipulation he made seven difficult caroms in succession. In the tenth inning he had totalled four, which gave him confidence and enabled him to lead his opponent. De Oro was off his game somewhat, his best single contribution being seven.

The champion began the evening's scoring with a run of two, both points being the result of four cushions. Carney replied with an equal number, one of which was a half follow which travelled the length of the table twice before scoring. De Oro scored twice in his third visit to the table, and missed another tally by a very close margin. The challenger meanwhile scored consistently for four innings, but then fell down and a spell of scoreless innings followed. After four consecutive misses De Oro added a brace of points to his score on difficult angle shots.

Carney found the corners to his liking, and he kept the ivories at different ends of the table until he had added four buttons to his string. It was a pretty compilation, made along the most approved three-cushion lines. This display sank into insignificance when compared to his next effort. This netted the Western player seven points, and brought him to within three points of his opponent. His best executed shott of the cluster was a slow ball with the reverse English on the top rail. An unfortunate kiss stopped Carney's further progress. In his first twelve innings Carney scored 17 points, or an average of nearly 1½. Three singles in succession kept the champion to the fore, but the challenger kept pegging away, and when in difficulties played safety shots. At the end of the twentieth inning Carney had cut the champion's lead down to a single point, scoring 22 points to 10 by his opponent.

The title holder, after failing to score for six innings, got into action again in the twenty-first essay, and by pretty manipulation of the ivories scored three times, missing the fourth shot through a kiss. Another point was added to the champion's score in the twenty-second on a double bank shot. Carney kept close to his opponent, adding one point in the twenty-first and two more in the twenty-fourth. De Oro's playing up to this stage was in striking contrast to that of the preceding evening, when he scored with great rapidity and judgment. From the twenty-third to the thirtieth inning De Oro failed to score, and during this time Carney drew up on even terms at 64, after a run of 2.

In the thirtieth inning the champion scored a point, giving him the lead once more, but he failed to hold the advantage as Carney placed two points to his credit in his half of the inning and for the first time during the match went into the lead. The Western player lost no time in adding to his score and at the end of the thirty-fourth inning he had scored thirty-four points. During the same time De Oro scored only sixteen points.

After another long spell of nursing Carney won well merited applause with a three-cushion bank shot, which started him on another run which added four to his string and gave him a lead of seven points. Once in front Carney abandoned his safety tactics and De Oro improved his position with five points in two innings, one of which was due to a lucky double kiss.

Carney found his stroke again in the forty-sixth inning and put together a cleverly executed run of three, and when the fiftieth inning was reached the Pacific Coast expert had scored 44 points to 24 by De Oro, giving him a lead of six points on the champion. Both men played faster billiards, the ivories running better, and little effort being made by the contestants to play for safety. Carney reached his fiftieth point for the evening's play with a run of three which put him nine points ahead of the champion. Two innings later the challenger pulled off a splendid five-cushion bank shot, which enabled him to tally another point in his next effort. Safety play followed and seven full innings were played without any addition to the scores.

Carney was the first to get started again, and two consecutive singles rewarded his efforts. Three innings later the same player added 3 points to his score. After nineteen consecutive unsuccessful efforts to score De Oro found an opening and placed two buttons to his credit, bringing him to within 10 points of the challenger. Toward the end of the evening's play both men fell far behind their averages. The close came by slow stages, the players evidently feeling the strain. Carney kept up his good work and ran out his 100 points in eighty-six innings. The score:

DENVER'S OPEN CHALLENGE.

Nathan Straus Will Race Against Any Trotter in Manhattan.

Light harness sport on the Speedway Drive promises to be unusually brisk for the next few weeks. Many new horses, fresh from the Grand Circuit campaign, have already shown their speed, and others are expected to join the racing brigade within a few days. These are in splendid racing condition, and will force the present leaders for the cups to greater speed to retain their lead in their respective classes.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles will ship a trotter from Washington to compete in matches on the Speedway. Gen. Miles, who is an enthusiastic trotting horseman, will drive his own horse, which has a record of 2:07. It is not improbable that a match will be arranged between Gen. Miles's newcomer and Nathan Straus's gray trotter Denver. It was expected that the latter would create a new half-mile trotting record for the Speedway last Sunday, but his owner did not attempt to extend the former Grand Circuit star. Mr. Straus, however, does not offer any excuses, but offers to race Denver against any trotter on Manhattan Island, and names but one condition—that the man who accepts must enter the best trotter he has. Mr. Straus sends the following letter to THE TIMES:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I did not beat the record for the half mile on the Speedway last Sunday, but I have no excuses. There is a book of a hundred excuses published for the use of drivers who have lost a race. I will not make use of any of them.

I still have confidence that Denver is the fastest trotter on the Speedway, and I will be glad to race any trotter on Manhattan Island (Tim Sullivan or myself to drive) on any day except Saturday, the date to be named a couple of days in advance, to give people an opportunity of going to see the race. I will drive either against amateurs or professionals—it makes no difference. The only condition I make is that the man who accepts must enter the best trotter he has.

NO NUMBERS FOR YALE.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 6.—Yale has taken a stand against numbering football players. The officials at the university feel that labeling the undergraduates savors too much of hippodroming. Yale athletes have been numbered for many years in all track events, however.

To-day's scrimmaging dropped the curtain on actual play until the Brown game on Saturday, and confirms the belief that the coaches found the players last Sunday wearied by the Colgate battering and decided to make the work almost nominal this week. Fifteen minutes' scrimmaging yesterday and the same to-day comprised the total amount of the week's work. To-morrow only a short signal rehearsal will be held.

During the scrimmaging to-day Robinson replaced Cooney and Washburn took Avery's place when the latter cut his hand. Avery will return to the game to-morrow. Robinson has finally found his gait and will be one of the formidable substitutes for guard. He played two years on the University of Minnesota eleven, but until recently he has failed to grasp the fundamentals of Eastern football. He has stuck gamely to his task, however, and is a possibility for the final games.

All work this afternoon was entirely secret, and to-night an hour's signal drill on the floor of the baseball cage was equally private. An innovation has been made by the coaches in taking some of the players daily to the Quinnipiac Club for lunch, where some of the features planned for the campaign are discussed.

Another of the valuable backs of the eleven is believed to be lost to the team in the person of Johnny Castles, who was thought to be only slightly injured yesterday. His knee was wrenched, and it is unlikely that he will get into the final games.

To-day's coaching staff included Burr Chamberlin, Carl Flanders, Joe Swan, Walter Camp, and "Clint" Roraback.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 6.—With bonfires, oratory and singing, Brown students and alumni gave a send-off at a mass meeting to-night to the members of the football squad which will go to New Haven to play Yale on Saturday. Coaches Robinson and Pryor and Trainer Huggins said that the Brown team has the best chance to win since 1910, when the wearers of the Brown and White beat Yale by a score of 21 to 0.

Other Billiard Results.

George H. Sutton who is exhibiting his skill with the cue at Keeney's Academy in Brooklyn, last night defeated Claude R. Lewis by the score of 250 to 84.

Some good playing was witnessed in the two games of the amateur handicap three-cushion carrom tournament at the Morningside Billiard Academy last night. In the first contest H. Silberstein defeated E. Dumahaut by the score of 16 to 12 in forty-five innings. Both contestants were playing at sixteen points. The winner made a high run of three. C. Johnson, playing at the scratch mark, defeated C. Barnett, who plays at eighteen points, in the second game, by the score of 20 to 4 in thirty-four innings.

Willie Hoppe defeated two opponents at Thum's Academy yesterday. In the afternoon he defeated Harry P. Cline by the score of 250 to 37 in three innings. In the second inning he tallied 155 points. In the evening the champion engaged in a 400-point game with Ledyard Blake and won, 400 to 73, in ten innings.

Tie Unbroken in Cycle Race.

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—An hour of sprinting to-night failed to break up the tie among the six leading teams in the six-day bicycle race at the Arena. At 10 o'clock they had made 824 miles 4 laps. The Ryan-Corry and Coburn-Carman combinations were one lap behind, while the Kopky-Keefe dropped another lap and were two behind the leaders.

BROWN GOLF LEADER AT SLEEPY HOLLOW

Former Hudson River Champion Wins Qualifying and Handicap Prizes.

Charles H. Brown of St. Andrew's, former Hudson River champion, was the principal winner in the qualifying round and handicap of the Sleepy Hollow Country Club yesterday. Conditions provided for an 18-hole medal play handicap coincident with the testing circuit of the Fall tournament. Brown's 86 won the gold medal, and his allowance of 6 gave him a net score of 80, good enough to win the handicap.

Brown made it evident from the beginning that he was out to do something, and reached the turn in 42, doing nothing worse than taking an occasional extra shot on the greens. He required 44 returning.

Sleepy Hollow members also competed for their club championship, the conditions being that the member of the club having the best score in the qualifying round should become the champion. A. H. Johnson was the winner of the title. The scores:

Charles H. Brown, St. Andrew's, 86; A. H. Johnson, Sleepy Hollow, 87; James A. Stillman, Sleepy Hollow, 91; C. H. Comstock, Columbia, 91; W. S. KOLEHMAINEN UNDER FIRE.

Champion Runner Haled Before Registration Committee of District.

The announcement that Hannes Kolehmainen, the wonderful Finnish runner, and the most recently made American athletic champion, had been requested to appear before the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union next Wednesday night, was received yesterday by those in the inner circles of track and field sport as the forerunner of an athletic scandal which promises to involve many of the registered men of the district.

While Jacob W. Stumpf, Chairman of the committee, would not state just what the purpose was in calling the Finn, it was learned that the members desired to make inquiry as to his means of livelihood and question similar to those which were asked upon the occasion of the investigation of the Tipperary prizes last Spring.

At that time it was stated that the Finn practically told the committeemen through his friends that such a question was one which should not be asked on such an occasion, as it was one which was not then an issue. Since then, Kolehmainen was suspended for a minor offense, hehaving failed to render an expense account incurred through his competition in some sports of the Paterson, N. J., Elks, of which he was easily cleared.

The Finn's friends assert that his footracing superiority is the real reason for his enemies trying to get him, and promise sensational developments when the inquiry is held. In his defense, although not knowing just what will be charged against him, Kolehmainen's friends state that his "worst offence" is that he has always been a willing competitor in championship events, which he has invariably won, to the chagrin of those who tried by devious means to keep him out in order that someone else might win.

Prior to his receipt of the committee's notice that he appear before them, it was known that the little Finn had intended sailing for home with his brother, Willie, the professional champion, who intends to take part in the Edinburgh "marathon" on New Year's Day.

Pawling and Lill Announce Their Candidacy for Presidency.

That opposition will develop against George W. Pawling of Philadelphia in his candidacy for President of the Amateur Athletic Union, the election for which takes place at the Waldorf-Astoria, Monday, Nov. 17, became known yesterday with the announcement that Alfred J. Lill, Jr., of Boston would also be nominated for the leading office in the gift of the delegates to the world's greatest governing body.

Lill and Pawling are respectively first and second Vice President of the union. Last year Pawling had been seriously considered for President, many of the Western delegates supporting the Philadelphian. This movement was sidetracked, however, and Gustavus T. Kirby unanimously named for a second term, according to the two-term scheme which had prevailed up to that time.

During and after the 1912 election it was believed among the delegates from all over the United States that Pawling would be the man for the position in the coming election, and his unopposed tenancy of the place appeared assured until the candidate from Boston appeared on the scene.

It is stated that the platform of Lill will consist of wiping out all registration and entry fees to competitions by athletes. While the registration fee system has been assailed in some quarters it is said that, as it is the only means of garnering the money required to continue the work of the national association, its abolition would be absolutely fatal to the union's welfare and athletics in general.

Chalmers
The Master "Six"

The Gibralter Back of the Chalmers

You wouldn't invest $2,000 in a bank unless you knew it was sound. No more should you invest in a car backed by an irresponsible company.

Suppose the company goes out of business suddenly; has no representative anywhere. Where are you going to get parts when you need them; where are you going to get service when you require it?

Suppose you buy a Chalmers car of us. At once you have back of you our own $500,000 organization doing the largest retail automobile business in the world; carrying always in stock $60,000 worth of Chalmers parts; with a service department unequalled anywhere. There isn't a need that could arise—not a service you could require that we could not supply instantly.

Back of us stands the Rock of Gibraltar, the $7,000,000 Chalmers Company, growing stronger every year. It's a good thing to have back of your car such service and such stability.

See the Master "Six" and go for a test ride in it. We shall be glad to demonstrate the abilities of this "Six."

Y. M. C. A. $4,000,000 IS GETTING CLOSER

G. W. Perkins Says at Association Dinner the 600 Starters of Fund Will Give Inspiration.

ALL DINE TOGETHER MONDAY

Notable Persons at Tables and in the Boxes for International Committee's Spread at Waldorf.

George W. Perkins made a strong appeal for assistance to carry out successfully the plan of the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations to raise $4,000,000 in this city in a whirlwind campaign of fifteen days at the thirty-second annual dinner of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association at the Waldorf last night.

Mr. Perkins said the formal opening of the campaign would be next Monday night, when six hundred men and women who have pledged themselves to help in the canvass would attend a dinner at the Hotel Astor. He said that the list of names and the sums already pledged, which would be made public at that time, would be scarcely less inspiring to the good citizens of the city than the results of the recent election.

There were 450 guests at the dinner last night, and the boxes in the two galleries were well filled. Alfred E. Marlin, Chairman of the International Committee, presided, and at the guest table, at which were seated Finley J. Shepard, Dr. John P. Munn, Gifford Pinchot, Anson Phelps Stokes, J. P. Bates, Richard C. Morse, Gen. Charles Miller, William Sloane, C. J. Livinggood, A. H. Curtis, Arthur S. Johnson, John Sherman Hoyt, H. B. F. Macfarland, William Fellowes Morgan, Frank K. Sanders, Dr. Lucien C. Warner, and the Rev. C. E. Jefferson.

In the boxes were Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, who was Miss Helen Gould; Mrs. J. E. L. Davis, Mrs. C. T. Terry, Mrs. O. F. Zollikoffer, Mrs. W. B. Miller, Mrs. J. S. Tichenor, Mrs. H. E. Downey, Miss M. Helen Hicks, Mrs. Herman Stutzer, and Mrs. James M. Speers.

Mr. Perkins was the last speaker of the evening, and as Chairman of the $4,000,000 Campaign Committee took that for his subject. He said that the campaign had really been under way for some time, and that of the $4,000,000 to be raised, three-quarters of it would be given to the Young Women's Christian Association for boarding houses, social halls, and buildings in various sections of the city where girls could live and receive their friends, while the other million was to be given to the Young Men's Association.

"This money will be an extension fund," said Mr. Perkins, "and of the two associations the Young Women's needs more financial support than the Young Men's. Let me state that no matter how we feel in business downtown you can make no better investment or one that will bring greater results in human uplift than by giving to this campaign.

"The list of names and the amounts already pledged to be announced next Monday will be an inspiration second only in importance to the inspiration of the election results.

"You know I am right. You know that all over the country people have thought that New Yordk was lost and gone forever, without civic pride, and always after the almighty dollar, but the results of the election, which must be of great satisfaction to every good citizen, show that New York has at last done something worth while. And in the raising of this $4,000,000 New York will do something that is worth while too."

Mr. Perkins said that he became interested in the Y. M. C. A. eight years before he was born because his father was one of its supporters, and that he and business men in general were struck by the great efficiency of the Association's work.

John F. Moore, in speaking of the work done by the railroad associations, illustrated his talk with lantern slides entitled "The Lay Over of Charles Klein," Klein being an engineer in service out West. The picture showed how Klein could be amused, fed, instructed, receive religious education and sleep in the Railroad Associations while waiting to return on his run, and ended with a testimonial from Klein giving his appreciation of what the Association had done for him. Mr. Moore said that there were 249 railroad branches throughout the United States which were visited by 50,000 employes daily.

George Sherwood Eddy's subject was "Work in Foreign Lands," and he announced that the demands for Y. M. C. A. buildings and instruction had become so insistent in Japan, China, and India that the authorities in many cases had given the land, and that on Jan. 1 180 secretaries would be sent into nineteen foreign countries to carry on the work.

Charles S. Ward said that $51,000,000 had been raised by the Y. M. C. A. in the last eight years, and that the idea of the whirlwind campaigns had originated with the association. The other speakers were Dr. George J. Fisher, Albert E. Roberts, C. C. Robinson, Charles H. Towson, and John S. Tichenor. The International Committee maintains a force of 91 executive, traveling and office secretaries in this country, and 176 secretaries in foreign lands, each one of whom has received special training before being sent out. This year the expenditures of the committee will approximate $390,000.

Among those present were James G. Cannon, Richard M. Colgate, Marcellus Hartley Dodge, D. Hunter McAlpin, E. M. McBrier, Noah C. Rogers, Frederick B. Pratt, George D. Pratt, Rear Admiral A. S. Barker, U. S. N.; James Talcott, Robert Fulton Cutting, Cleveland H. Dodge, J. Edgar Leaycraft, Charles M. Pratt, Robert Cluett, John C. Havemeyer, J. W. Jenks, George C. Boldt, Jr., B. Ogden Chisholm, Philo C. Dix, Charles Lord Perkins, Oliver C. Morse, Prof. O. S. Morgan, Edward Van Alstyne, George A. Post, Frank D. Wilsey, J. Haines Lippincott, William H. Porter, Dr. Norman B. Tooker, Orrin R. Judd, William Knowles Cooper, James D. Husted, Murray W. Ferris, Russell Colgate, and W. E. Breckenridge.

Y. W. C. A. PAGEANT TO-NIGHT.

Miss Wilson and Her Fiance to be Box Spectators.

The Y. W. C. A. pageant, "The Ministering of the Gift," will be presented to-night in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, by the 1,500 members of the association. All the boxes were sold several days ago. The pageant tells in nine episodes the work of the organization.

Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson and her fiancé, Francis W. Sayre, will be the guests of Mrs. Dave H. Morris, who has taken a box. Miss Wilson is one of the most ardent workers the association has.

Miss Sarah C. Wells, General Secretary of the Central Branch, Y. W. C. A., will publish to-day a six-page newspaper devoted to the general interests of the association. It will be called The Central Branch Special.

One of the most conspicuous features of the pageant will be the torch-bearing episode presented by the young women of the Harlem Branch, in which seventy girls in symbolic costumes, theoretically, will be sent to the ends of the earth to carry the association spirit to all nations.

Plate Glass Under Insurance Law.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 6.—Attorney General Carmody has advised Secretary of State May that a company intending for one of its purposes to keep in good order and repair during the current year for a stipulated consideration the plateglass or other glass of such persons as it contracts with must incorporate under the insurance law. The question arose over the offering for filing with Secretary May of the certificate of incorporation of the Meserole Glass Company, Inc. Mr. Carmody holds that "to keep glass in repair seems to necessarily include insurance against breakage."

CUSTOMS CASE UP 19 YEARS

Importers' Protest, Filed in 1894, May Be Settled Soon, However.

After resting in the archives of the Custom House and the files of the Board of General Appraisers for nineteen years, a protest made by Kurtz, Stuboeck & Co. in 1894 is about to reach final argument before the United States Court of Customs Appeals. The official record in the case shows that the entry was originally liquidated in February, 1894, duty being assessed on the merchandise in question at 30 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 460, Tariff act of 1890, as manufactures of straw. The importers protested against the Collector's liquidation, claiming that the merchandise was circular disks of straw continuously woven and intended solely for the ornamentation of women's hats. Free entry was claimed under Paragraph 518.

Nothing more was heard of the case until January, 1902, when the Board of Appraisers sustained the protest. At the reliquidation the importers claimed that the Collector had failed to include some of the goods, with the result that a second appeal was made to the board. Another long and unexplained delay then occurred, and the board made no decision until July 7, this year. The official papers in the case had not been forwarded from the Custom House to the board until May 2, 1912. The board's decision was favorable to the protestants.

Henry E. Childers, assistant Government attorney, filed a brief with the Customs Court on Wednesday asking a reversal of the board's finding. Mr. Childers expects to argue the case before the court at the present session, but said yesterday that he was unable to explain the unusual delay to which the case had been subjected. Under normal conditions protests may be carried before the board and the court to final adjudication in about one year.

FLAGLER TRUST GROWS.

Oil Stock Set Aside for Divorced Wife Nearly Doubled in Value.

Supreme Court Justice Pendleton handed down a decision this week directing Andrew Freedman, as Trustee of a fund for Mrs. Ida M. Flagler, to retain Standard Oil securities incorporated in the fund until further decision of the court. The fund was established by Henry M. Flagler, later divorced by a Florida court, on the ground of his first wife's insanity, for her support.

Trustee Freedman's report showed an increase in the trust fund, since its establishment in 1904, due to an appreciation in the value of Standard Oil securities. The trust fund originally consisted of 2,600 shares of Standard Oil stock, which was exchanged at the time of the company's dissolution under the Sherman act for the stock of its subsidiaries.

Mr. Freedman's report showed that in 1908, the trust fund amounted to $2,532,478, and that it was worth $4,309,226 at the time of the accounting, in the present year. During the past fiscal year Mr. Freedman's report showed that the trust had increased $462,226 in value, and had earned income amounting to $295,840.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR BUTTS

Jailed Lawyer's Creditors Fear His Assets Will Disappear.

In the Federal District Court yesterday Elihu Root, Jr., was appointed receiver for Thomas W. Butts, a lawyer of 51 Chambers Street, who is now in Ludlow Street Jail as the result of an action brought by the executors of the estate of Thomas W. Wandell to recover $25,200 which it is alleged Mr. Butts wrongfully converted to his own uses. Mr. Butts, who was for years associated with Townsend Wandell in the law business, was arrested on Nov. 1 on complaint of Francis L. Wandell, a brother of Townsend Wandell, and Josephine Wandell Gill, a sister.

The petition in bankruptcy, following the filing of which Mr. Root was named as trustee, was made by Francis Hays Hanford and Bridget McGuire, creditors, who asserted that they were informed by Albert R. Palmer of Palmer & Series, attorneys for the Wandell estate, that Mr. Butts had become involved financially by the conversion of money of various clients to his own use, and that they feared that unless a receiver was appointed immediately all of the assets would be disposed of. The petitioners alleged that the liabilities already had reached $100,000, while the assets probably would not be much in excess of $25,000.

AMERICANA ON SALE.

Anderson Company Disposes of the Van Vleck and Culver Collections.

A two days' sale of books, including selections from the collections of C. W. Van Vleck and Henry B. Culver, both of this city, was ended at the Anderson Company's auction rooms yesterday. Gabriel Weis paid $290 for a set of the Joseph Jefferson autograph edition of the complete works of Washington Irving, and $330 for a set of the author's autograph edition of the Writings of Bret Harte, signed by him in September, 1896; a set of the limited royal edition of writings of Mark Twain was sold on order for $67.50. A first edition of Horace Walpole's "Historic Doubts of the Life and Reign of King Richard the Third," printed in London in 1768, was bought by C. Gerhardt & Co., for $25. Mr. Weis paid $55 for a set of the edition de luxe of the complete writings of H. W. Longfellow, and $63.50 for a similar set of the works of James R. Lowell. Henry Malkan gave $40 for a set of La Salle edition of the Works of Francis Parkman.

BUSINESS NOTES.

HOLD WOOD BOYCOTT VIOLATES THE LAW

U. S. Judges Assail Agreement Under Which Carpenters Refuse to Handle Non-Union Trim.

INVOLVES CATHEDRAL WORK

Firm with Contract to Supply St. John the Divine Asks Court to Continue Injunction Against Union.

Judge Mayer and Judge Ward handed down yesterday in the Federal District Court decisions in two parallel cases, in which they held that the agreement under which the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America has been working with the two employers' associations, the Manufacturing Woodworkers' Association and the Master Carpenters' Association, was illegal. It was held that it infringes both the Sherman Anti-Trust Law of the Federal Government and the General Business Law of this State and consequently, it was pointed out last night, those participating in such a bargain were open to prosecution.

Walter Gordon Merritt, counsel for the Anti-Boycott Association, who appeared for the complainants in these cases, said last night that few people realized the conditions under which the carpentry trade had been carried on in the Island of Manhattan. The Master Carpenters' Association had had a hard and fast agreement with the men's union not to use in any of their buildings any but union-made trim, he said.

The Manufacturing Woodworkers' Association, which was composed of the actual manufacturers of the woodwork, Mr. Merritt said, kept a close watch on the Master Carpenters to see that they did not use any non-union material, and if they detected any violation of the agreement reported it to the men's union. The result was that the manufacturers were making use of the men to ensure their own monopoly, he assorted.

In the case before Judge Ward, Irving & Cassen of Boston, manufacturers of artistic wood trim, applied for a continuation of the temporary injunction already granted to them to restrain the Brotherhood of Carpenters from declaring strikes against the use of their woodwork. The Boston firm had the contract for some of the interior fittings of the new Cathedral of St. John the Divine and also for one of the new halls at West Point Military Academy. Judge Ward granted this injunction.

In the other case before Judge Mayer the Paine Lumber Company and other Western firms sought an injunction on much the same grounds as the complaint in the other case against the Manufacturing Woodworkers' Association, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and a number of individuals and firms, who were alleged to have refused to handle non-union materials.

Although for technical reasons Judge Mayer refused to grant the relief asked, Mr. Merritt said last night that he considered the decision a great victory for the cause of free labor. In an exhaustive opinion Judge Mayer said that he agreed with the finding of Judge Ward in his case that one of the purposes of the United Brotherhood was to compel the unionization of all manufacturing carpenter shops and to restrain competition between open and union shops, and that this was to be accomplished principally by an agreement to refuse to work on any job where non-union trim was used.

Judge Mayer also agreed with Judge Ward that this combination resulted in directly restraining competition between manufacturers and operated to restrain interstate commerce in violation of the Sherman Federal law and the State business law. Moreover, Judge Mayer held that the agreement between the Carpenters' Brotherhood and the Manufacturers' Association, was in violation of the same two Federal and State statutes.

Judge Mayer then went on to consider whether after he had reached these conclusions he should grant the releif sought. He found that he could not grant an injunction, because that might be sought legally only at the instance of the United States or the State of New York. There remained the possibility of proceeding against the respondents under the State penal code.

The Court pointed out that to conspire to commit an act injurious to trade was a misdemeanor, but that before a private litigant could recover he must show either that he had suffered special injury or that the conspiracy was directed against him. So the Court concluded that the policy of the law-making power was to leave the criminal prosecution of such offences as these to the responsible public officials, and that it was not contemplated that when an injunction would control a large body of men or a large class of manufacturers, it should be granted at the suit of a private individual. So the application for injunction was denied.

This decision, Mr. Merritt said last night, seemed to him almost to amount to an invitation to the proper Federal and State officers to take up a question, with which it was legally impossible for an individual litigant to cope.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Like New Garment Rates.

Satisfaction is expressed by importers of wearing apparel trimmed with lace or embroidery over the elimination in the new tariff of the provisions of the old law, which required a higher duty on garments trimmed with laces or embroideries made on lever or "go-through" machines. The change, in addition to giving entry to trimmed wearing apparel at a duty 10 per cent. below the former rate, will do away with considerable customs litigation. It usually happened under the old law that trimmings on imported apparel contributed only a small part of its actual value, but, regardless of this, the 70 per cent. rate was assessed on the slightest suspicion that lace or embroidery trimmings had been made on the machines mentioned. Among customs officials there is a feeling that while the Government will doubtless lose much revenue under the new law, Paragraph 358, (which specially provides for garments trimmed with lace or embroidery,) will simplify and expedite the examination of apparel of this kind.

Selling Accounts Receivable.

The attention of the members of the National Association of Credit Men has been called to the growing practice among business firms of secretly selling accounts receivable, or pledging them. New companies are constantly springing up, it is said, older firms are increasing their capital and all are bringing pressure to bear on business men for the privilege of advancing cash on their open accounts. The system is proving to be productive of fraud, both against the creditors and the financial companies. Some recent failures disclosed that all accounts receivable had been disposed of under this system. Fraud was even practiced on the financial companies by the duplication of leases under the installment plan, by bogus shipments and in several other ways. It is said to be necessary for the sake of good credit to have this practice checked or regulated. To this end it has been suggested that legislation be enacted requiring the sale or pledging of receivable accounts to be made matters of public record, the same as chattel mortgages.

Cole Bill Does Not Fully Protect.

Commission men are calling the attention of their clients to the fact that the Cole law, which provides for the licensing and bonding of commission merchants and which became effective several months ago, does not protect them, in case of failure of a commission firm, beyond the amount of the bond, or $3,000. It is said that many farmers have the idea that the State stands back of the bonded commission house, through this law, and guarantees them full payment on the produce they sell through bonded houses. The opposite of this belief was brought to light through the recent failure of a local commission house and the efforts of the creditors to collect their money. It is said that reputable houses in the trade are injured by being classed with less stable firms under the Cole law, and that there is a strong possibility of action being taken at the next session of the Legislature to have the measure repealed or changed.

Prison Goods Embargo Won't Help.

The bill that Representative Austin of Tennessee recently introduced in Congress to prohibit inter-State shipment of products from any factory or mine which employs convict labor was viewed with indifference here yesterday by manufacturers of men's clothing. "From a selfish viewpoint," said one of them, "it might be a good thing if the bill were passed. We might then sell more goods and get better prices, but how could the prisoners be employed if the sale of prison products were curtailed to any extent? There is not a great deal of this competition with the clothing trade, and, where competition does exist, it is limited to the cheaper grades of garments. The passage of such a law would be of no great benefit to clothing manufacturers generally."

Fur-Trimmed Neckwear Featured.

Neckwear trimmed with skunk, ermine, and other fur leads the present demand here. Effects in tiger fur are also much in demand, but scarce. Shadow laces are used extensively. Practically no flowers or small buttons are used for trimmings. High de Medici models are most in demand, either ruffled, plaited or gathered. Many of the local manufacturers are sold up through the holiday season, and, with few exceptions, are not taking extra business. One manufacturer reported a record demand for this merchandise yesterday, and said that buyers were taking fashionable goods regardless of price.

Chinese Silk Prices Off.

A further decline in raw silk prices at Canton, to meet prevailing quotations at Yokohama, was the feature of the last week's business in that commodity. Better buying followed the decline, however. No price change of importance occurred at Yokohama, and sales for the week totaled 4,800 bales. At Shanghai and Milan the markets were reported steady. Reelers were slightly firmer in their views in the latter market, due largely to the scarcity of cocoons. Trading was steady on practically all grades of silk at New York. Not a few local contracts called for delivery over the turn of the year.

Soft Coal Prices Easier.

Sellers are seeking buyers in the soft coal trade to a greater extent than for some time, according to The Coal Trade Journal, and it is becoming difficult for them to get prices that were current earlier in the Fall. Ordinary Central Pennsylvania and West Virginia coals are offered at reductions ranging from 10 to 15 cents from previous levels, but prices on the better grades have not yet shown signs of a reaction. In the anthracite market the unseasonable weather is retarding the retail demand. The wholesale situation is still easy on everything except stove coal, the demand for which greatly exceeds the supply.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

Local wholesalers say that seamless stockings will ultimately dominate the hosiery field in grades selling at 25 cents, and under, because of the lower production cost of these goods and the greater comfort they afford the wearer. As a result of the demand for fashioned goods, women's stockings, knit seamless on a circular machine but with a false seam sewed up the back, are now found on the market in certain parts of the country.

A good demand is reported locally for English mohair goods in plain and crepe effects for Spring delivery. Brocaded crepes are also active.

Buyers in the local silk market are expecting lower prices on goods for delivery in February, March, and April. Sellers, however, are unwilling to make price concessions in view of the sustained high cost of raw silk.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

American sheetings will soon meet serious competition in Smyrna, according to the Consul General in that country, as a factory for manufacturing cotton goods is now in construction there. The controlling concern is called the Ottoman Stock Company of Cotton Manufacturers of Smyrna, and has a capital of $264,000.

An average potato crop is reported this year in Great Britain, with producers selling at $14.60 a ton, free on rail. Exports of potatoes from Great Britain last year were valued at about $6,968,687. Considering the shortage in Germany, the value of this year's exports is expected to exceed those figures.

At a meeting of the Fruit Growers' Cooperative Association of Australasia, recently held at Sydney, it was decided to install a complete pulping plant to handle medium-grade tomatoes and stone fruits. This decision was due to the numerous offers that had been received for all of the pulp that could be supplied for export.

MORE RUBBER STOCK.

Rights for Stockholders on Common and Preferred at Par.

Following a meeting late yesterday afternoon of Directors of the United States Rubber Company it was announced that it had been decided to increase the preferred stock by $9,422,000, and to offer the new shares to stockholders, both common and preferred, at par. The preferred stock pays annual dividends of 8 per cent.

Each stockholder will be allowed to subscribe for one share of new stock for every ten shares already held, subscription rights extending to holders of record on Nov. 14. Payment must be made on or before Dec. 15. The preferred stock sold yesterday at 104.

The proceeds of the sale will repay the company for recent outlays for enlargements of plants and for expenditures on the plantations in Sumatra. In connection with the offer Col. Samuel P. Colt, President, says:

"For the fiscal year to Oct. 1 the business of the company both in volume and profits has been fully equal to the business for the corresponding period of 1912—the business of which year both in volume and profits exceeded that of any year in the history of the company, which fact the Directors regard as most gratifying.

"It is confidently expected that before long the extensive plantations in Sumatra will provide the company with sufficient crude rubber to meet a substantial part of its requirements at actual cost of production, and that its rapidly expanding development department will lead to important economies in the utilization of the crude material and in manufacturing methods. Moreover, with the outlays being made, the company's plants will be in condition to take care of the increased business which it is believed lower prices for crude rubber will stimulate. To meet these developments through the cooperation of stockholders by an increase in capital stock seems to the Directors a wise and conservative move at this time."

The Directors elected Nicholas F. Brady to the Executive Committee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his father, Anthony N. Brady.

Illinois Third in Mineral Wealth.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Illinois ranks third among the States in the value of its mineral productions, with iron ore rather than pig iron considered as the basis of iron production, according to statistics prepared by the United States Geological Survey. In 1912 the total value of the mineral production was $123,000,000, of which coal alone, represented more than $70,000,000. The total value of minerals in 1911 was a little more than $106,000,000.

TO INVESTIGATE THE L. & N.

Senate Votes for Anti-Trust Inquiry by the Commerce Commission.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Senator Luke Lea's resolution for an investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the relations between the Louisville and Nashville Railroad and its allied lines, to discover whether the anti-trust laws have been violated, was passed to-day by the Senate after a brief debate.

A general investigation of the affairs of the railroad will be the result. The interests of the Louisville and Nashville in various railways operating through the same territory, particularly its interests in the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, the Tennessee Midland Railway, and other auxiliary lines, were mentioned as principal objects of the investigation. Possible ownership of stock in the Louisville and Nashville by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad or the Atlantic Coast Line Company was also suggested by the resolution, which directed a general inquiry into the connection of the Louisville and Nashville by stock ownership lease or agreement with other Southern railroads.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Collar Holders and Compass Charms Held as Assessed.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday decided that collar supporters made of celluloid and set with imitation precious stones were not articles of personal adornment under the first section of Paragraph 448, Tariff act of 1909. Marshall Field & Co. imported the articles, which the Collector at Chicago returned at 85 per cent. ad valorem. The importers claimed lower duty. Judge Sullivan held that the proper classification should have been under the last part of the same paragraph as jewelry, at 60 per cent., but as that claim was not made, the protest was overruled.

A protest by A. L. Tuska, Son & Co., under the act of 1909, on small compass charms, was also overruled. Assessment was made by Collector Mitchel at 85 per cent. ad valorem as articles of personal adornment, under Paragraph 448. The importers asked to pay 35 per cent. on toys.

Vassar
Swiss Ribbed
Union Suits
For Gentlemen

If you care enough for underwear comfort to get it, next time you buy any, ask for Vassar Swiss ribbed union suits for men; examine the way they're made, compare Vassar with any other union suits.

The Swiss rib gives it an elasticity that insures snug, comfortable fit; it's an elasticity that "comes back," as well as stretches; it is an exclusive feature of Vassar union suits.

Most underwear is cut-and-sewed; Vassar Swiss rib is knit-to-shape; sleeve and ankle cuffs are knit on, not sewed on; no rough, bulky seams to annoy you. You'll see the difference if you lay a suit of Vassar beside any other.

Ask your haberdasher for it.
The best of them have it.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Close Weak—Money Easy—More Gold Engaged for Import.

Heaviness turned to weakness in the final hour of trading yesterday, and the general level of prices fell to the lowest point reached since Oct. 20, when the market was creeping upward from the low point of that month recorded a few days earlier. Weakness was most pronounced yesterday in the metal shares, and in the two railroad stocks which figure most largely in day to day speculative operations. Paramount place among the day's market influences was assumed by the steel trade news wherein lowering of prices and curtailment of output have begun to figure somewhat prominently. The possibility of a general slowing down of business, which of late has come to be regarded by an increasing number as a probability, was a matter of widespread discussion yesterday.

This naturally played a part in determining the movement of prices on the Stock Exchange, particularly in view of the fact that the day's Mexican news indicated a somewhat tense situation. At the same time in gauging the significance of the extent of the day's fall in prices it is necessary to take count of operations which were much in evidence yesterday and which seemed to reflect active selling by two or three large market operators and their immediate associates, rather than any general outside liquidation.

Apart from the metal trade news and the uneasiness which was felt over Mexican affairs there was no distinctly bad news, and some that was good. The continued, and even increased ease in money, a further movement of exchange rates in favor of this market, and the engagement of a small amount of gold in London, were all helpful from the point of view of this market. Our gold taking at this time, if the ultimate effect be regarded, must be considered in the light of the ability of the European markets to part with the metal, or rather to forego the full benefit of the new gold arrivals, for the American demand has fallen, and doubtless will continue to fall solely on the weekly supplies from South Africa. The English Bank statement again showed a strong position for this season but the Bank lost gold during the week to the extent of $3,000,000. The Bank of France gained more than that and further showed a contraction in circulation following the large expansion of the previous week, which was incidental to the end of October requirements. Discount rates in London and on the Continent were practically unchanged yesterday, but it seems plain that much discretion will have to be used in our drawing of gold from London to avoid an advance in discounts at that centre. This is matter which in the long run, will, of course, have to be decided by the relative positions of the two markets, but in its early stages a gold movement is a matter of discretion with bankers rather than a business necessity.

So long as this market can forego importing gold without actual loss it would seem to the general advantage that gold engagements be avoided or, at least, be kept down to an amount so small as to preclude their proving a disturbing element in the European money market. The chances here continue to favor comfortable conditions in the money market the rest of the year and the view that money will be decidedly easy during the early months of the coming year is gaining more and more adherents. Much interest was taken in the remarks made yesterday by one of the country's most distinguished bankers who emphasized the disappointment which the agricultural and other business interests of the country would feel over the failure of currency legislation at this time. That such disappointment would be felt is recognized in banking circles, but it is not generally felt that any such condition exists as would call urgently for immediate legislation. Very few now entertain the belief that the Currency bill can be passed at this session although close attention is being given to the outcome of the proposal in Washington to commit the Currency bill to a Democratic caucus in the Senate. If the matter goes over until the regular session it is believed by many that legislation will be postponed until some time early in the Spring.

THE TREASURY STATEMENT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The Treasury statement issued to-day gives receipts and expenditures for the present month and the fiscal year:

	Month.	Fiscal Year.
Int. revenue, ordinary	4,277,127	111,727,834

Miscellaneous	764,135	17,472,843

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Central Notes at a Discount.

It is a rare occurrence when one-year notes, properly secured, sell below their offering price. A short term note is in the nature of a temporary loan which the holder knows will be redeemed at its face value at the end of the period, and there is no occasion for him to accept less than the price he paid. The new issue of $12,000,000 one-year 5 per cent. notes offered by bankers for the New York Central a few days ago proved to be the exception. On Wednesday, the day upon which payment for the notes had to be made by subscribers, they were quoted 99⅝ bid in the open market. The explanation was that some subscribers who hoped to see an advance from the subscription price of 98½ in the brief interval between the offering and the issuance days sold their notes on Wednesday rather than take them up to hold for the return. There is comparatively little speculation of this nature, the profits on which must necessarily be very small.

Money Count Nearly Ended.

By next Tuesday it is expected that the task of counting Uncle Sam's millions in the Sub-Treasury will be completed, and the new Assistant Treasurer, Martin Vogel, will give his receipt for something more than $131,000,000. Whenever a new Assistant Treasurer takes office it is necessary for the retiring custodian to account for the cash charged against him, and to get a release before he is relieved of his bonds. The incoming officer, if he is skeptical, can demand that every dollar be counted, to see that the total checks up with the figures on the books, but Mr. Vogel saved the department a large amount of expense by agreeing to accept the count of vaults which have not been opened since they were sealed upon completion of the previous count. In this way the Government was spared the necessity of counting $80,000,000 in silver, which has been lying undisturbed since the resignation of Hamilton Fish. It was necessary to count $3,000,000 in silver dollars and about $45,000,000 in gold, a job which has kept twelve Government clerks busy for two weeks. With the money nearly all counted no discrepencies between the figures on the bags and the contents have so far been found.

No Cotton Oil Dividend.

Trading in American Cotton Oil yesterday showed that the Street was not surprised because the Directors had not voted to pay a dividend. There had been no expectation expressed that a return to shareholders would be made at this season after an interim of a year and a half, but a better estimate of earnings had been looked for than the one presented yesterday. It placed income in the past year applicable to the common stock at 3 1-3 per cent. as compared with 6½ per cent. in 1912. An explanation of the decline as given in quarters close to the management was that it resulted from a rigid policy of the Directors to conserve resources as much as possible. This was taken to mean that the company had made larger applications than usual to depreciation, renewal and extension accounts, and that it was the intention to maintain working capital on a high basis. Only 200 shares changed hands after the Directors' meeting was over, and these sold at a fractional advance over the last preceding sale.

Oil Directors Still Hesitate.

Waiting on the next move in the Mexican situation had a particular as well as general application in financial matters yesterday. Information came from Los Angeles after the close of business that the Mexican Petroleum Directors had decided upon still another postponement of dividend action, hoping that the passing of another week would show them where they were likely to stand if anything happened to the Huerta régime. They will get together again next Wednesday. In the stock market news that the Directors had failed to act on the quarterly payment caused a renewal of pressure against the stock, and a net loss of 3 points resulted. If the company finally decides to make the usual disbursement there will be some disgruntled bears on the stock.

Figuring on Steel Statement.

The cause of Steel's decline yesterday was given in commission house gossip as fear among traders that the next monthly statement of the Steel Corporation's unfilled orders will show an impressive decline. Estimates based on the reported daily rate of inflowing business in October placed the probable reduction in forward tonnage between 300,000 and 400,000 tons, against a recession of a little more than 200,000 tons in September. It seemed more probable, however, that apprehension of a poor monthly statement was only a collateral influence in bringing pressure against the stock. The Street has become confident this week that the steel trade generally is suffering a reaction of importance.

New Haven in Better Favor.

In the face of general declines, New Haven closed at 81 yesterday with a gain of one-half point. The rule recently has been for this issue to remain about stationary when the other railroad issues were advancing, and to outdistance them in declining when they were weak. The better favor in which the stock was held yesterday resulted largely from a report that Chairman Elliott and his associates on the Board of Directors had arranged to meet ex-Gov. Bulkeley of Hartford for a conference which might lead to a discontinuance of the attacks upon the new debenture issue. New Haven shareholders will breathe a good deal easier when funds to pay off the $40,000,000 of short-term notes maturing Dec. 1 are in the company's treasury.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Curb Market Improves for a Time in the Early Trading, but Closes Reactionary.

After a period of early firmness in which the oil stocks were particularly conspicuous, the outside security market became reactionary and closed with a weak tone. Anglo-American Oil rose from 23 to 23½ early in the day but closed a full point below its highest figure. Standard Oil of New Jersey, sold up from 377 to 378 but closed even with the opening price. The tobacco stocks were among the weakest issues. Transaction reported were:

London Market Closes Uncertain After Some Gains—Paris Prices Lower.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 7.—The Times in its City article this morning says:

"The market owed the Bank of England a fair amount of money, and until the sum due had been repaid the rate for daily money remained steady, but it fell away in the afternoon. Discount rates were weak. That for three months' bills declined slightly, but there were plenty of sellers in view of the weakness of New York sterling exchange.

"During the greater part of the day the tone of the stock markets was generally quite cheerful, although there was no perceptible increase in the volume of business. In the afternoon French operators were sellers of their specialties, and Canadian Pacific and American shares also came on offer, the result being that most of the department's prices closed below the highest points reached.

"In a few instances fairly substantial advances were shown at the close, notably in Mexican Railway stocks, Brazil scrip, Peninsular & Oriental deferred, and Egyptian Oil Companies' shares."

PARIS, Nov. 6.—Prices were lower on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes 86 francs 17½ centimes for the account.

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—Prices moved irregularly on the Boerse to-day, but the close was rather firm.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

On the decline in prices business on the Consolidated Stock Exchange expanded heavily, the sales totaling 61,085 shares, the largest aggregate in two weeks. Mexican intervention fears again played a prominent part in unsettling the market. Early in the day evidence showed of technical weakness due to the elimination of the underlying short interest on Wednesday's sharp advance. Bearing upon the break in United States Steel there was a renewal of talk regarding unfavorable trade conditions. Prices generally closed at or close to their lowest.

FURTHER RULINGS ON INCOME TAX

Deduction at Source Not Necessary on Bank Interest—Many Bonds Are Exempt.

STATUS OF MARRIED MEN

Does a Bridegroom Win $4,000 Exemption for Entire Year? — And Who Must Pay Tax on Alimony?

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Two more Treasury decisions were issued to-day responsive to interrogations regarding certain features of the new income tax collection. In one of these the department held that income tax on the interest on bank deposits and bank certificates of deposit is not to be withheld at the source.

The other decision announced that interest upon obligations of the United States or its possessions or of any State, city or other political sub-division thereof is not subject to the income tax. Under this ruling no income tax will be collected upon the interest paid on United States bonds or bonds of the City of New York.

The decision of the department, respecting interest on obligations of the Government, States and cities, was sent to all Collectors of Internal Revenue, as follows:

To Collector of Internal Revenue:

It has been called to the attention of this office that banks in certain sections are refusing to pay coupons for interest on bonds of States, counties, cities, or other political sub-divisions of the United States when such coupons are not accompanied by certificates of ownership, without deducting the normal income tax of 1 per cent., which the law and regulations of this office require shall be deducted at the source in paying the interest on bonds of corporations, joint stock companies, or associations and insurance companies.

Please inform all parties interested, giving the information wide publicity, that the income derived from the interest upon the obligations of a State, county, city, or any other political sub-division thereof, and upon the obligations of the United States or its possessions, is not subject to the income tax, and a certificate of ownership in connection with the coupons or registered interest orders for such interest will not be required.

The interest coupons should clearly show on their face whether they are issued by the United States or any political subdivision thereof. If, however, they do not clearly show this, then, of course, an ownership certificate should be required.

W. H. OSBORN, Commissioner.

The decision respecting interest on bank deposits resulted in the department sending to-day to all Collectors of Internal Revenue the following order:

Circular on Bank Deposits.

To Collectors of Internal Revenue: Banks, bankers, trust companies, and other banking institutions receiving deposits of money are not required under the Treasury regulations, (Part 2,) approved Oct. 31, 1913, to withhold at the source the nominal income tax of 1 per cent. on the interest paid, or accrued or accruing to depositors, whether on open accounts or on certificates of deposit; but all such interest, whether paid, or accrued and not paid, must be included in such tax returns by the person or persons entitled to receive such interest, whether on open account or on certificate of deposit.

W. H. OSBORN, Commissioner.

The Department is now formulating regulations governing the collection of the income tax from individuals when such tax is not required by the law to be collected at the source. In these regulations rules will be set forth dealing with the status of married men under the income tax law in response to questions that have already been raised concerning exemptions to be allowed to married or single men.

One of the questions raised in this connection is whether a single man who marries during the year is to be allowed the $3,000 exemption granted to a single man or the $4,000 exemption allowed to a married man, or whether he will have his exemption pro rated according to the period during which he was single and the time during which he was a married man in that year. While no decision has been reached on this point, there are indications that the Department may rule that a single man shall be allowed, during the year of his marriage, an exemption of $4,000 for the entire year, just as if he had been married throughout the year. This might encourage matrimony, besides simplifying the collection of the tax. If the Department were to decide to pro rate the exemption, allowing an exemption of one-twelfth of the $3,000 for each month of the year the man was single and an exemption of one-twelfth of $4,000 for each of those months during which the man was married, the task of collecting would become very complicated.

Income Tax on Alimony.

A novel question was put to the Treasury officials to-day which they refrained from answering at this time. A newspaper man entered the department with a newspaper clipping which read:

"If Nat Goodwin pays more than $3,000 a year alimony to his former wives, must he or the wives pay the income tax?"

Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, one of the House Democratic leaders, who was in the Treasury Department when this question was asked, suggested that a man paying more than $3,000 alimony to a former wife or former wives would have to pay the tax, under that provision of the law which stipulated that any payment of over $3,000 must have its tax deducted at the source.

While no official answer was given to this question, it was suggested that a simple way to solve it, without the Government losing revenue, would be for the person paying the alimony to pay the tax on his own income over $4,000 and to exempt the former wife from payment of the tax if her alimony should exceed $3,000.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—French banks are in a quandary over how the new income tax law of the United States is to be interpreted. They hold about $5,000,000 of coupons of American securities which have been cashed or discounted, and the doubt has arisen whether the French banks may not lose the amount of the 1 per cent. of income tax to be collected at the place of origin. Many inquiries have been made at the United States Embassy and Consulate General here, while some of the banks have cabled to their New York correspondents for definite information on the subject. The Société Generale alone holds $500,000 in American coupons.

FAVORS SEPARATED COUPLES.

Their Income Tax Exemption $6,000, Against $4,000 if Living Together.

A feature of the Treasury regulations regarding the income tax that has aroused much discussion concerns the position of husband and wife, whether living together, or apart. Whatever a person's income may be, $3,000 of it is exepmt from the tax; or, if the person is married and living with husband or wife, $4,000. On this point the law itself is clear. When the Treasury regulations were drawn up, however, several contingencies had to be taken into consideration.

The ruling was made that every single person or married person not living with husband or wife, was entitled to the $3,000 exemption. Where a husband and wife live together and only one of them has an income above $4,000, the one having such income is to pay the tax above $4,000.

So far the rules are plain enough and apparently in accord with the provisions of the statute, but even here they have a curious effect. This was put in a nutshell by a man who said:

"I am a married man and live with my wife. I have an intimate friend who is married and is not living with his wife. My wife and I get an exemption of $4,000, and they get an exemption of $3,000 each, or $6,000. Is that fair?"

One justification that has been brought forward for this result is that where the two live apart there are two establishments to be maintained. Another is that the taxable income of the wife living apart from her husband is quite likely to be in the nature of alimony. In that case the money she receives is taxed twice. It is part of the husband's income, and when she receives it it is part of her income. It has been argued that there is a rough justice, where the same money is taxed twice, in giving a $6,000 exemption instead of a $4,000 exemption.

The regulations on the next case covered are not quite so plain. This is the case of a husband and wife living together, each of whom has a taxable income. The regulations say that in that event "they shall make a separate return, and the $4,000 exemption allowed to a husband and wife, if living together, may be claimed and deducted by either the husband or wife, as they mutually agree (but not by both separately) or the said exemption shall be prorated between them in proportion to their net income."

On the face of it this appears to mean that in the case of a family with two incomes the exemption is still only $4,000, while many persons express the opinion that the exemption should be $4,000 for one and $3,000 for the other; that the regulations say that only one of the two shall be entitled to "the $4,000 exemption," and inadvertently fail to add that the other is entitled to the $3,000 exemption; or that the regulations should have said that "the extra exemption" of $1,000 for married persons could be claimed by only one of the two, and not by both.

The best opinion among those who have studied the regulations, however, is that they mean just what they say, and that the aggregate exemption is $4,000. This view is supported by those who have been in touch with the Treasury officials during the preparation of the regulations. It is argued that this is entirely analogous with the discrimination drawn between temperamentally discordant couples and those happily mated, where only one has the income.

It is also contended that the law has been criticised because it permits an exemption as high as $4,000 and that the authorities did not intend that the exemption should be extended in any case to an aggregate of $7,000, pointing out that otherwise it would be a simple matter for a husband desiring to increase his exemption from $4,000 to $7,000 to make over to his wife some of his sources of income, such as interest or rents.

FIXING NEW HAVEN RIGHTS.

Installment May Be Allowed on Debentures—Inspecting Trolleys.

Owing to the complications over the proposed issue of $67,000,000 of convertible 6 per cent. bonds arising from the opposition of former Gov. Bulkley of Hartford, who is seeking to have the issue enjoined, the Executive Committee of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad voted yesterday that the Directors take such action as would result in an extension of the time within which holders of subscription rights to convertible debentures of 1913 might exercise their rights and make payment of at least the first installment. The Directors will meet on Tuesday.

Chairman Elliott said in replying to inquiries relative to the presence of civil engineers on the trolley properties:

"Engineers from the Stone & Webster organization are making an examination of portions of the trolley properties in order that Mr. Elliott and the committees of the Directors now engaged in making a study of the entire trolley problem, may have some necessary detailed information.

"There is nothing in the story that Stone & Webster are to acquire any portion of the trolley properties.

SOME MOTOR ROUTES TO PRINCETON GAME

Automobile Club of America's Bureau Issues Them for To-morrow's Game.

After a thorough investigation of road conditions the Automobile Club of America's Bureau of Tours has prepared these route directions for motorists intending to drive to Princeton for the Harvard-Princeton football game to-morrow. The routes selected are the most direct ones in good condition. It will be noted that on the Newark-Elizabeth-New Brunswick route the Jersey City-Newark Boulevard is mentioned. This formerly was called the Newark Plank Road. It has been improved with an excellent block surface. The old Newark Turnpike is under construction and closed to traffic. From New York to Princeton by way of Staten Island the distance is 48.8 miles. These are the route directions:

Run down Broadway to the Staten Island ferry and cross to St. George. From the ferry entrance bear to the left up the hill and at the Borough Hall turn left and follow the trolley tracks on Central Street past the green. Turn right, leaving the trolley, into Hannah Street and, after one block to the left in Van Duzer Street follow the tracks on Richmond Road. Bear to the right and follow the tracks through Grant City. At a cafe take the left fork leaving the trolley in New Dorp. Run straight on the Amboy Road and at a tavern take the left fork. Cross the railroad and go on through Great Kills. Then bear right and at a tavern bear left and keep straight on through Huguenot. Bear left at Princes Bay; cross the railroad, bear right and then turn right, into Bentley Avenue, running straight to Tottenville. There cross the ferry to Perth Amboy. From the ferry run five blocks on Smith Street, then take the right fork into New Brunswick Avenue. Cross the railroad twice and follow the trolley tracks through Ford's Corner. Then cross the railroad again and run to Metuchen. Turn to the left over the railroad and at once turn right. Go under the railroad and then follow the trolley down hill and over a bridge, passing the Post Office in New Brunswick. Take the next right fork under the railroad, turn left into Somerset Street, and at the cemetery bear right, crossing the railroad about a mile beyond and then running straight on through Franklin Park. Take the left fork three miles beyond and three miles further on bear right to Kingston. Cross the railroad, the canal and a bridge and turn left at a hill, keeping straight on into Nassau Street, Princeton.

To go by way of Newark, Elizabeth, and New Brunswick, cross the Forty-second Street Ferry to Weehawken. From the ferry turn left and then bear right, up the hill, to the Hudson County Boulevard. At once turn right, into Third Street. Then turn left and right, crossing Bergenline Avenue. Keep on Third Street for a short time and then turn left onto the Boulevard again. Follow the main road, crossing Newark Avenue, and then turning right into Communipaw Avenue, which becomes the Plank Road. Follow this, crossing two bridges into Market Street, Newark. Then turn left into Washington Street and at a small park bear right into Clinton Avenue. Follow the trolley and turn left into Astor Street. Then follow Frelinghuysen Avenue into Newark Avenue. Bear left with the trolley into North Broad Street. At monument, bear left, and at Post Office turn right into Westfield Avenue, Elizabeth. Cross the trolley and a bridge, turn left into Cherry Street, then run over the railroad, cross the trolley again and turn right into Rahway Avenue. Two miles further on cross the railroad. Then keep on St. George Avenue, cross a bridge and trolley tracks in Rahway. Cross a bridge, then do not cross the railroad, but turn right. Take a right fork and then a left fork through the woods, and at the end of the road turn left and cross the railroad at Iselin Station. At once turn right along the railroad and at the end of the road turn left in Metuchen. Pass under the railroad and through the cross roads. Take a right fork, run under the railroad, following the trolley and cross the Raritan River, running straight on into Albany Street, New Brunswick. From this point follow the previous directions to Princeton.

Variations that some might find more convenient or interesting are to follow the Staten Island route to Perth Amboy, then cross the bridge to South Amboy. From the bridge follow the trolley to left on Broadway and Bordentown Avenue to where it takes a turn to the left. At this point keep straight on, leaving the trolley on Bordentown Avenue, which leads to Old Bridge; thence by way of Spotswood, Jamesburg, Dayton, and Monmouth Junction to Princeton.

A longer route, one that is much used by motorists wishing to avoid the heavy traffic on the direct routes to Princeton, is that by way of Newark, Springfield, Chatham, Madison, Morristown, Bernardsville, Pluckemin, Somerville, Belle Meade, and Rocky Hill. This way furnishes fine highways and beautiful views of a delightful part of New Jersey.

Speed enthusiasts who select the Staten Island route, will do well not to "hit it up" until after they have crossed the Island. The Middlesex Automobile Club of New Brunswick, N. J., has reported that there might be interference by the authorities, who at times insist on the metropolitan limit of 15 miles per hour.

BANKS PERPLEXED ON LOANS

Soon to Adjust with Brokers in View of Court Decision.

Officers of banks that make large day clearance loans to stock brokers were still undecided yesterday as to what steps would be taken to afford security for loans, which, under the present system, was swept away by the decision of the Supreme Court on Monday. This decision destroyed their supposed liens on the securities "lifted" by the brokers by means of the loans.

Several plans have been discussed, and as soon as the text of the decision is available and has been analyzed by counsel for the banks, there will be a general conference where the whole question will be thrashed out. This conference is likely to take place very soon, as one banker said yesterday that the present situation was intolerable and would not be continued by the banks.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

JAMESON & METZLER, INC., manufacturers of leather goods, of 149 Broadway, with a factory in the Bush Terminal in Brooklyn, filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $49,789, and assets of $29,437. Among the creditors are the Quebec Bank of Toronto, $26,340, money loaned; Merchants' Bank of New York City, $2,000; Winslow Bros. & Smith, $4,382; Gane Bros. & Co., $3,009, and the North American Accident Insurance Company of Chicago, $1,820. Judge Hough appointed Lewis Smith receiver, under a bond of $5,000, with authority to continue the business thirty days on request of creditors. The concern was incorporated Dec. 20, 1912, with capital stock of $150,000. Norbert Metzler is Vice President.

ROSS-BUSH COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Ross-Bush Company, contractor and builder, of 1,328 Broadway, by these creditors: W. A. Gahagan Company, Jersey City, $64; Consumers' Coal and Ice Company, Bayonne, $40, and the Building Improvement Company of New York City, $562. The company was incorporated on Feb. 1, 1909, with capital stock of $10,000.

THOMAS GORDON, cloak manufacturer, of 13 East Seventeenth Street, has filed a petition, with liabilities of $4,114 and assets of $925. Judge Hough has appointed W. C. Low receiver, with a bond of $500.

THOMAS W. BUTTS.—Judge Hough has appointed Elihu Root, Jr., receiver for Thomas W. Butts, lawyer, of 51 Chambers Street, under a bond of $3,000, on the application of two creditors, Frances Hays Hanford and Bridget McGuire. These creditors were not among those who filed the bankruptcy petition against Mr. Butts on Monday, and believe that the bankruptcy petition was filed in the interest of Mr. Butts, who is in the New York County Jail under an order of arrest in a suit brought by the executors of the estate of Townsend Wandell to recover $25,200.

IKE STEINBOOK.—Judge Hand has appointed James D. Boyd receiver for Ike Steinbook, delicatessen dealer of 100 Avenue C, under a bond of $500.

H. SANDBERG & CO.—Judge Hand has appointed Richard S. Otto receiver for H. Sandberg & Co., furriers at 463 Sixth Avenue, under a bond of $500, with authority to continue the business ten days. Mr. Otto is Actuary of the Fur Merchants' Credit Association, and he agreed to act without compensation. Liabilities, $12,000; available assets, $2,500.

SEELIGMAN & STERN.—Judge Hough has confirmed a composition of Seeligman & Stern, manufacturers of waists and dresses, with 20 cents on the dollar cash. Liabilities were $18,157.

HUDSON MANTEL & MIRROR COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Hudson Mantel & Mirror Company of 411 East Eighth Street show liabilities of $24,955 and assets of $7,335.

MARY SIGAL.—Schedules of Mary Sigal, manufacturer of paper boxes at 153 Greene Street, show liabilities of $4,269 and assets of $3,179.

JOHN D. FERRARI & CO.—Schedules of John De Ferrari & Co., wholesale confectioners at 71 Roosevelt Street, show liabilities of $5,312 and assets in accounts of $2,413, and of stock of unknown value. John De Ferrari has individual liabilities, $2,960, and assets, $2,900. Louis Cevasco has individual liabilities of $4,160 and assets of $4,000.

LAMPERT BROTHERS & DUSHKIND, (Inc.,) of 21 Washington Place have made an assignment to George Lambert. The business was incorporated Jan. 30, 1913, with capital stock of $10,000, to manufacture dress trimmings. Jacob H. Lampert is President and Michael Dushkind Treasurer.

SILVER & BERNSTEIN.—Leopold Silver and Hyman Bernstein, who compose the firm of Silver & Bernstein, wholesale and retail dealers in stationery, bags, and paper at 26 Market Street, have made an assignment to Louis M. Picker.

Stock Exchange Seat $40,000.

The sale of a Stock Exchange membership announced yesterday marked a further decline in price. The seat long held by Ira A. Kip, Jr., was sold to Henry F. Haines for $40,000, a drop of $1,000 from the price recorded in the preceding transfer. Mr. Kip, who has had offices with Flower & Co., is retiring owing to ill-health.

CHICAGO BOND SALES SLOW.

Only Three Purchasers at City "Bargain Counters" the First Day.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 6.—This city's first experiment with an "over the counter" sale of municipal bonds was not a huge success, for only three citizens walked into City Controller Traeger's office this morning to buy at par the first municipal bonds the city is selling at its own "bargain counter."

The Controller had advertised extensively $1,880,000 municipal bonds drawing 4 per cent interest and maturing in twenty years, and it was expected that the first day of the "bargain counter" sales would attract many customers to the City Hall. Those in charge of the plan declare with confidence, however, that the entire output of $1,880,000 in $1,000 bonds will be taken out by the public without the aid of bankers.

Bonds bearing serial numbers 1 to 10, were purchased by E. C. Wharf, an insurance clerk, who appeared with a certified check for $10,138.89 soon after the banks had opened for the day. The difference in excess of $10,000 was the interest which has accrued since July 1. Wharf is employed by the Illinois Life Insurance Company. He said he was not making the purchase for himself, but for out-of-town friends who did not want their names published.

Deputy Coroner Adolph Herrmann laid down $10,138.89, and walked away with ten bonds. He was the second purchaser, but declared the bonds were not his own; that he was buying them for his mother.

Late in the afternoon an additional couple of bonds found a market, the total transactions for the day thus aggregating $22,000. The sale will continue to-morrow.

Retiring from Speyer & Co.

It was reported yesterday that Hans Winterfeldt, a partner in the firm of Speyer & Co., which he represents on the Directorate of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad, would withdraw on Jan. 1 to take up his residence in London. Mr. Winterfeldt was a banker in Berlin until ten years ago, when he joined Hallgarten & Co. in New York, leaving that firm in 1908 to go with Speyer & Co. Neither James Speyer nor Mr. Winterfeldt would comment on the report.

Gold Is Coming Back.

Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. have engaged in London $500,000 in gold which will come in on the Mauretania. While it was recently announced that Lazard Frères had engaged $2,000,000 for import, this shipment is the first gold to come to this country since the ending of the import movement on Dec. 4, 1912.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

The grain markets were firm to strong yesterday. Wheat advanced from ⅝ to ⅞c., corn about the same distance, with oats trailing close after corn. Cotton was rather soft and erratic, leaving off with recessions extending from 9 to 17 points. Provisions were firm, and irregularity marked business in cotton oil.

WHEAT.

The wheat market was only moderately active, but prices were firmer, at one time showing gains of ⅝@⅞c. over the previous close, although final figures showed a partial reaction with a net gain of ½@⅝c. Shorts were the best buyers, and offerings were small. Trading recently has been on a moderate scale, and it was the general hypothesis that in such a narrow market as has recently prevailed the decline of about 2½c. per bushel experienced within the past week had about discounted the bearish factors in the situation. The primary cause of the covering movement was a show of firmness in Europe. Northwestern markets were firm, and there was a fairly good demand for cash wheat. Stocks at Minneapolis have increased 275,000 bushels during the past five days, while Duluth stocks decreased 250,000 bushels in four days. The Chicago Daily Trade Bulletin estimated the acreage of Winter wheat at 36,025,000, or an increase of 11.2 per cent. over last year. Argentine shipments for the week were estimated at 400,000 bushels, compared with 208,000 bushels last week, and 1,176,000 bushels last year.

In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at 97c., cost, insurance, and freight, New York, export basis, and 98c. free on board; No. 1 Northern Duluth, 95⅝c., free on board.

CORN.

The corn market was firmer, with final prices near the top for the day at an advance of ½@⅝c. Shorts were good buyers and offerings were small. A sharp decline in Argentina had no noticeable effect on prices and there was more or less dispute regarding the relative value of American and Argentine corn as regards the quality. Argentine shipments were estimated at 4,200,000 bushels, compared with 1,021,000 last week, and 5,619,000 last year. In the local cash market export corn was quoted at 79¼c. free on board.

OATS.

The oats market was moderately active and prices were firmer on covering prompted by the advance in wheat and corn and owing to less pressure of supplies and a little better cash demand. The local cash market was steady, standard white being quoted at 45@46c; No. 2, 46@46½c; No. 3, 44@45c; No. 4, 43@44c; ordinary clipped white, 43@45½c; fancy clipped white, 46@47c, all elevator.

COTTON.

The cotton market was lower yesterday and closed barely steady at a net decline of 9 to 17 points. Trading was not particularly active, but there was scattering liquidation, with moderate selling from local and Southern sources. Nervousness over the Mexican situation and an unfavorable view of foreign financial conditions probably contributed to the more bearish average of sentiment, although there was hardly enough Southern selling here to indicate any material change in the interior situation. Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were 1-16c higher to 1-16c lower, generally unchanged, and large offerings of cotton bills in the foreign exchange markets indicated a continued active export movement.

The market opened steady, in sympathy with Liverpool, first prices being 2 points higher to 1 point lower. Private cables reported small hedge selling, but there were reports here that the South was offering cotton more freely, and the market soon sold off to a net loss of 7 to 11 points. After the close of Liverpool the selling became less active, but rallies were limited, and, after a comparatively quiet middle session, the market weakened again, closing at the lowest point of the day.

There was an estimate by a prominent Memphis house making the crop 14,585,000 bales, including linters.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Price changes in the cottonseed oil market were narrow, with only a quiet professional trade. The near positions were relatively steadier than the late months owing to moderate covering and a little better demand for the cash article, as well as on firmness in the crude position.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

COFFEE.

Prices started 5 to 9 points lower. Trading was dull, but during the afternoon selling suddenly increased and prices broke sharply, showing net losses of 33 to 41 points for the active positions.

The cost and freight situation was weak, with Santos offered at from 12.35 to 12.80. There was a late partial rally, but the close was 25 to 31 points net lower. Sales for the day, 181,500 bags. Havre closed at a net decline of ⅛ to ¾ franc, while Hamburg was ¼ to ½ pfennig lower.

Spot coffee, 10¼c for Rio 7s.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was a little more active, and prices were firmer, prompted by firmness in the hog position, and in sympathy with corn. Shorts were inclined to cover, and it was thought that packers were moderate buyers. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 22,000; estimated for Friday, 18,000; Kansas City received 7,000, and Omaha 7,000.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Pressure has fallen generally and decidedly except in the Northwest and extreme West, but it is still low in the Northwest, and light scattering rains continuing over northern districts west of the Rocky Mountains have advanced over the Dakotas. There was no other precipitation of consequence over the country, and temperatures have generally risen except over the rain area.

The unsettled weather and low pressure over the Northwest will drift east, causing rains Friday from the upper lake region and Upper Mississippi Valley west to the mountains, with probably some snow in the latter section, and during Saturday the precipitation area will extend from the Upper Mississippi Valley east to the North Atlantic Coast, while to the west the weather will be generally fair Saturday.

In the Middle and South Atlantic and Gulf States, the Southwest, and extreme West fair weather will prevail Friday and Saturday.

It will be warmer Friday in the Atlantic States and colder in the extreme Northwest, and it will be colder Saturday in the Plains States and the Missouri and Upper Mississippi Valleys.

Winds for Friday and Saturday along the North and Middle Atlantic Coast will be moderate southerly and southwesterly; South Atlantic Coast, moderate northeasterly and easterly.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair, warmer Friday; Saturday unsettled, probably local rains in interior; moderate to brisk south to southwest winds.

New Jersey—Fair and warmer Friday; Saturday fair; moderate south winds.

New England—Fair Friday, warmer in interior; local rains Saturday or Saturday night; moderate to brisk south and southwest winds.

Western New York—Fair Friday, Saturday unsettled; probably local rains; moderate to brisk south and southwest winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair, warmer Friday; Saturday increasing cloudiness; moderate south winds.

EDUCATION NOTES.

The methods employed by the Board of Superintendents in making nominations of teachers in the public schools have not met the approval of some members of the Board of Education, and an effort is being made to bring about a change of procedure. It is the custom of the Board of Superintendents, after making nominations to designate the school to which each nominee is likely to be assigned in case he is appointed. The Principal of the school so designated if he does not approve the nomination so informs the Board of Superintendents, and it is alleged that it has happened on previous occasions that the Board of Superintendents has withdrawn the nomination of the person who was non grata to be Principal and named instead a person of whom the Principal approved. This practice, which does not appear to be governed by any law or rule of the Board of Education, is thought by members of the Board of Education to work injustice to the applicant for appointment.

Mayor Kline will have the appointment of nine members of the Board of Education to succeed that number of the present Board of Education whose terms will expire on Jan. 1, 1914. Among those whose terms will expire on Jan. 1 is President Thomas W. Churchill.

Lentilhon held a life interest and she petitioned for permission to sell her interest which also included the fee. It was granted and the buyer was Maria S. 9,640 Papers Filed in Clerk's Office

The report of County Clerk Rouff of Queens just issued for the month of October shows that it was one of the busiest in the history of the office, due to the number of deeds and mortgages received for record. The report indicates that there has been unusual activity in the real estate field.

The bulk of the purchasers were companies that are operating on an extensive scale and individuals who are to erect homes. There are also included in the list deeds recorded of those who have purchased homes already built. Builders in the county are encouraged over the outlook there.

The figures for the month show that 9,640 papers were received for record, of which there were 1,342 deeds and 874 mortgages. This is a record for the last two items, nealy equal to that of the most active Spring season.

ASK COURT TO AID MARRIED TEACHER

CALLS RULING UNJUST

Woman's Counsel Says Board of Education Will Not Allow Teachers Time Enough to Rear Children.

After hearing arguments yesterday on the application of Mrs. Bridget M. F. Peixotto for a writ of mandamus directing the Board of Education to restore her to her place as an assistant principal in the public schools, Supreme Court Justice Seabury reserved decision. Albert J. Talley, Mrs. Peixotto's attorney, in applying for the writ, said that, although his client had been dismissed from the school service on a charge of having neglected her duty, the real reason for her discharge had been that she absented herself from her duty in order to bear a child.

In support of this aspect of the case Mr. Tally read extracts from the report of the Board of Education taken at the time that Mrs. Piexotto's case was under discussion. In this there was reference to a discussion as to whether it was advisable to allow mothers to continue as public school teachers. In commenting on the case the attorney said that the Board's action was unjust in that while it allowed a teacher a year's leave of absence to recuperate from ordinary illness, it would not allow her half that time to bear a child. The only reason, he said, why an appeal had not been taken to the State Commissioner of Education in Albany was that there was no qualified officer in that place.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Charles McIntyre, for the Board of Education, said that after Mrs. Pejxotto had absented herself from duty without permission she had excused herself to the Superintendent not by stating the real cause, her motherhood, but because she was ill with an affection of the eyes and ears. In addition, he said, she had neglected her duty by remaining in school till within two months of the time when she gave birth to her child.

Mr. McIntyre urged that should Mrs. Peixotto be reinstated this action would tend to injure the discipline in the schools. He charged that many teachers are inclined to think of the public schools merely as a means by which women may gain a livelihood. The Board of Education, he said, was endeavoring to enforce a rule that teachers in applying for leave of absence must give true reasons. The granting of the writ of mandamus to Mrs. Peixotto would in this case, he argued, show the powerlessness of the Board of Education to enforce its own rules.

HARD VOYAGE FOR BREMEN.

Passengers Alarmed in Gale When Water Flooded Companionway.

Capt. Seyn of the North German Lloyd Steamship Bremen, which arrived yesterday from Bremen after thirteen days of rough passage, said that the ship had encountered heavy gales from the start. The worst was on Sunday night when the wind blew with hurricane force from the northwest and at midnight she shipped a sea which carried away two of the heavy ventilators from the forward deck and tore away a solid steel door leading from the promenade deck to the main companionway.

Some of the passengers became alarmed when the sea surged down the companionway to the lower deck, but the officers assured them that there was no danger and they went to sleep again.

Among the passengers on the Bremen were Major E. T. Paull of 243 West Forty-second Street, who was one of the United States representatives at the unveiling of the memorial on the battlefield of Leipzic, and Robert Leonhardt, a new baritone for the Metropolitan Opera House.

OPERATED ON FOR CRIME.

Judge Believes Two Moral Delinquents Are Cured.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 6.—Two prisoners who were sent from here to Chicago by Circuit Court Judge Bridgeman to undergo operations by Dr. E. H. Pratt of Evanston, Ill., for the cure of moral delinquency, returned to-day and faced the court.

"I am a man now," said George Corbet, one of the men. He stood erect; before the operation his shoulders sagged. His eyes were clear and he had the appearance of one who is sound morally and physically.

Clarence Chappell, the other man, had pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary and was known as the leader of a gang of toughs.

"I believe I am cured," he said. "I want to lead a decent life."

Judge Bridgeman announced that the two men would be pardoned and their actions carefully watched.

"I believe they have been morally regenerated," said the Judge, "and if they prove the correctness of my theory more prisoners will be sent to the operating table instead of to prison."

Mr. Childers, who is attached to the Customs Division in charge of tariff litigation, has an office in the Appraiser's Stores. He is a friend of Col. Edward M. House, President Wilson's friend, and was said yesterday to have Mr. House's backing for the office.

Mr. Childers and Col. House were associated in political campaigns in Texas, and during the Baltimore Convention last year they worked hard to insure President Wilson's nomination. Mr. Childers was a member of Mr. Mitchel's campaign committee. He studied law in Louisiana under Chief Justice Edward D. White of the Supreme Court of the United States. He is a member of the Manhattan Club.

WON'T GIVE UP EILLS.

Japanese Government Refuses Ambassador's Extradition Request.

TOKIO, Friday, Nov. 7.—The extradition to the United States of John Eills, business manager of The Japan Advertiser, has been refused by the Japanese Government.

Eills was arrested on Oct. 13 on a requisition from the American Ambassador on a charge of perjury. He was said to be wanted in Boston for the abduction of his daughter. Abduction is not an extraditable offense, and for this reason, it was asserted, the Ambassador asked for the arrest of Eills on a perjury charge.

Eills when requesting the Japanese Government not to give him up stated that he desired to acquire Japanese citizenship.

DR. BUSTARD DECLINES.

Will Not Leave Cleveland to Come to Calvary Baptist Church.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 6.—Persuaded by John D. Rockefeller and others of his parish to remain here, the Rev. Dr. W. W. Bustard of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church said to-day he could not consider an offer from the Calvary Baptist Church, one of the largest in New York City.

That congregation, it is said, had a short time ago asked him to consider an offer to take charge of the work there at a salary of $10,000 a year, considerably more than his present salary.

BARRY AT MILITARY SHOW.

General Reviews State and Regular Troops in Garden Tournament.

Major Gen. Thomas Barry, commanding the Eastern Division of the United States Army, with his staff, reviewed the State and regular troops in the military tournament at Madison Square Garden last night, and a special programme was offered in his honor.

The tournament began with a parade of all the troops, which later took part in the drills and exercises under the command of Col. Walter B. Hotchkin, Corps of Engineers, N. G. N. Y., and this was followed by a sham combat between members of the Seventy-first Regiment under Capt. Henry L. Meslin. The First Field Hospital Corps and the Third Ambulance Company, N. G. N. Y., took part in the action, and carried the "dead" and "wounded" from the field.

Next came a bayonet drill and combat by the Third Company of the United States Coast Artillery Corps, and a machine gun drill by Troop C, First Squadron, First Cavalry, N. G. N. Y. Then a provisional company from the Seventy-first Infantry went through field exercises, and the First Battalion of the Naval Militia gave a Gatling gun drill. Battery B of the Second Field Artillery, N. G. N. Y., under Major Matlock, executed a flying platoon drill, and the Twenty-second Regiment Corps of Engineers showed how to build and demolish a trestle bridge in a hurry.

New York policemen, under Lieut. McCarthy, gave a mounted drill, and the last event on the programme was an exhibition in horsemanship by the officers of the Third United States Field Artillery.

CAT WAR IN WASHINGTON.

Health Officers Kill Thousands of Them and Women Protest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Hearing that 6,132 cats had been killed by health officers during the last year because of their violation of the anti-noise ordinance, Mrs. Henry L. West, President of the Washington Cat Club, to-day announced that a special meeting of her club would be held next Tuesday to protest against the slaughter of the animals.

The Health Department's method in enforcing the anti-noise ordinance against cats is to set traps for them. When a resident of the District of Columbia is disturbed by squealing cats he telephones to the Health Office and next day a man comes around with some traps in the shape of large wooden boxes.

A more ingenious trap has been devised by experts in the Department of Animal Industry. When Thomas strolls into one of these he gets a blow on the head, while a jet of deadly gas is released, and all his nine lives are snuffed out.

THE MAUPINS UNDER KNIFE.

Lieutenant and Wife Operated Upon in Pittsfield Hospital.

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., Nov. 6.—Both Lieut. and Mrs. Jere Maupin of New York have been operated on for appendicitis in a Pittsfield hospital, and are being cared for in the same room there. Lieut. Maupin was first attacked early last week, and was taken from the Mackay cottage, where they were staying, to the hospital at midnight and was operated on immediately.

Mrs. Maupin went to the hospital with her husband, and to be near him found quarters in a residence in Pittsfield. She developed symptoms of appendicitis last Monday and was operated on in the same hospital as was her husband. Both cases were quite serious, but the patients are said to be doing well.

Lieut. and Mrs. Maupin were married abroad last Spring, and after a tour of Europe returned to New York in September, and soon after arrived in Lenox, where they opened Egleston cottage, the residence of Archibald Mackay, Mrs. Maupin's father. They were intending to remain until Thanksgiving in Lenox colony.

No Trace of Mrs. Fitzpatrick.

Up to a late hour last night no word had been received by Frank J. E. Fitzpatrick, the banker, of 220 West Ninety-eighth Street, of the whereabouts of his wife, Mrs. Alice Fitzpatrick, who disappeared on last Monday night.

Mr. Fitzpatrick has engaged private detectives to hunt for her. Last night Mr. Fitzpatrick expressed the fear that his wife had committed suicide.

Wilson to Attend Gridiron Dinner.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—President Wilson has accepted the invitation of the Gridiron Club to attend its dinner on Dec. 13. The President has attended only one dinner since he was inaugurated, and that at the Gridiron Club, which is composed of newspaper men.

GIRL BREAKS PAROLE BY GETTING MARRIED

Children's Court Commits Mrs. Sadie Owens, 15-Year-Old Bride.

APPEALS TO HER HUSBAND

But Court Officers Part the Couple—Owens Will Seek Writ for Her Release.

Because she violated her parole by running away and getting married, Mrs. Sadie Owens, 15 years old, of 24 Church Street, Jamaica, was committed to the Episcopal House of Mercy in Brooklyn by Justice Morgan L. Ryan in the Children's Court at Jamaica yesterday.

The girl's husband, Harold Owens, an employe of the Long Island Railroad, was not permitted to enter the court room when his wife was arraigned, but he waited outside for her. When she saw him the youthful bride pulled away from a court attendant and threw herself in his arms.

"Don't let them take me away from you, Harold!" she cried.

Court attachés parted the couple and took the girl to the Home of Mercy.

Owens, who is 19, says he did not apply for a writ of habeas corpus for his wife because he thought she would be freed by Justice Ryan. He will now, he says, take steps to procure her freedom by means of such a writ.

"I am well able to support my wife and I don't see why she should be taken away from me," said the youth.

Before her marriage Mrs. Owens was Sadie Ladisky, daughter of a Jamaica tailor. Her father had her arrested on a charge of being ungovernable because he said she remained away from home and was too often in the company of young Owens. In the Children's Court Justice Ryan placed her on probation on her promise to keep away from Harold.

A week later the couple eloped to Jersey City and were married. They returned to Jamaica and went to live at the home of the bridegroom's parents. Several days later Sadie's father caused the arrest of Owens on a charge of abduction. Magistrate Fitch dismissed the complaint, and told Owens he might take his wife home. Officers of the Children's Society interfered, however, and charged that Sadie had violated her probation by eloping with Owens.

MRS. N. L. MILLER DIVORCED

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 6.—Naomi L. Miller obtained a decree of divorce to-day from John R. Miller, a dealer in foreign postage stamps on East Twenty-third Street, New York, upon the grounds of desertion and failure to provide for her. The defendant was represented by a local attorney, but did not contest the suit.

The plaintiff's testimony that her husband left here on Oct. 1 last year without giving the slightest reason proved very unsatisfactory to Judge Harwood. Mrs. Miller then burst into tears and declared that her husband had told her he was tired of her and preferred the society of other women. During thirteen months prior to the filing of the suit he had only given her $7, she said.

LIVED TO SEE WISH GRANTED

Word That Husband Had Been Reelected Cheered Mrs. Lennon.

Her prayer answered when she lived to see her husband re-elected Mayor of Yonkers on Tuesday, Mrs. James T. Lennon died at their home, 80 High Street yesterday. A sufferer from cancer for more than a year. Mrs. Lennon had been at the point of death for some time. Her daily prayer was that her life might be saved until Election Day. On Tuesday night she heard the returns with her nine children gathered around her deathbed.

"I am ready now," Mrs. Lennon said faintly when the Mayor's re-election was announced, and she added: "He deserved it."

Plans New Police Inspection District

Police Commissioner Waldo announced yesterday that he intended to establish a new inspection district—the Fourteenth. This is to be in the Bronx and will include the Kingsbridge, Bronx Park, Wakefield, West Chester and City Island precincts. Capt. Frank J. Morris, now commanding the Adams Street station in Prooklyn, will take charge of the new district.

SEE BOOM FOR RICHMOND.

Merchants' Association Would Build Marginal Railroad There.

In order to study at first hand the possibilities of the industrial development of Staten Island, the Industrial Committee of the Merchants' Association made a complete circuit of the island yesterday. The party departed from the Battery at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, and proceeded to Kill van Kull, thence to Staten Island Sound, and back to New York through the Narrows. After the tour of inspection, E. E. Pratt, Manager of the Industrial Bureau of the Merchants' Association, said:

"The Industrial Committee of the Merchants' Association of New York believes that Staten Island is ready for a considerable industrial development. This section of New York City which has remained so long undeveloped, probably on account of its apparent remoteness from Manhattan, has many advantages, which are not exceeded by those of any other part of the city or the eastern seaboard of the United States.

"Staten Island offers the only location in the city for the manufacturer engaged in the heavy and rougher industries. Adequate railroad facilities will mean the immediate development of Staten Island, and the Industrial Committee of the Merchants' Association urges that immediate steps be taken looking toward the building of a marginal railroad along the western side of Staten Island."

"CIRCULAR JOE" ON TRIAL.

Entire Day Spent in Getting Jury for Perjury Case.

A panel of nearly 100 talesmen in the Criminal Term of the Supreme Court was obliged to listen for more than an hour yesterday to the reading of a list of names, and each of them was required to answer whether he knew any of the men named before he was allowed to serve on the jury. The person on trial was Joseph H. Vendig, better known as "Circular Joe," who was at one time confidential agent for the Yellow Taxicab Company. The charge was perjury, growing out of the disclosures last Summer before the Aldermanic Investigating Committee of the practice of giving free taxicab rides to city employes.

The prosecution produced a list, obtained from the company, of some 900 names and addresses, and each talesman was asked if he knew any of those named. The drawing of the jurors took the entire day, and the first witness will be heard to-day.

STOLE THE COURT'S SHIRTS.

Magistrate House Examines All Thieves for His Missing Property.

"I am looking for the sneak thief who stole every shirt I had except the one on my back," observed Magistrate House from the bench of the Yorkville Court yesterday, and thereupon he proceeded to quiz all those arraigned before him on any petty larceny charge.

"Counsel," he appealed to one lawyer, "please ask your client if he knows anything about my shirts. He is in the same business, and might know who took them."

These repeated drafts on the professional knowledge of the various prisoners were fruitless. The Magistrate is still looking for the man who called at the House house, and, disguised as the laundryman, carried off the Magisterial haberdashery.

CITY BREVITIES.

Brand Whitlock, ex-Mayor of Toledo, recently appointed Minister to Belgium, will make an address at the first meeting this season of the League for Political Education on Saturday at 11 A. M. in the Hudson Theatre, 139 West Forty-fourth Street. Norman Hapgood will speak on "The Results of the Election" at 11 A. M. Monday in the Berkeley Theatre, 19 West Forty-fourth Street.

HIS JAG AN EXPERIMENT.

Dr. Dolbert's Excuse Is That He's Studying the Effect of Alcohol.

What was conceded to be the most original excuse outside of burlesque for getting drunk was given last night by a well-dressed man who said he was George L. Dolbert, a physician of 111 East Twenty-eighth Street. Dr. Dolbert said he had rendered himself intoxicated because he was a student of the effects of alcohol and wanted to personally experience them. Magistrate Breen accepted his explanation and discharged him.

He was found at Broadway and Forty-seventh Street by Patrolman Fleming, who took him to the West Forty-seventh Street station for safe keeping. Dr. Dolbert slept most of the time he was at the station and thereby missed much of the effects of his experiment.

When arraigned in the Men's Night Court and asked what he had to say he astonished the Court by declaring:

"I admit I was intoxicated. I am a practicing physician, and I got intoxicated for the purpose of making a scientific study and to determine what are the effects of alcohol. I have been a student of alcoholism for the past twenty years, and I did this just to ascertain what the feelings are that accompany inebriation."

"I think you might have confined your experiments to the house," volunteered Magistrate Breen. "I'll discharge you now, but I'd advise you not to make any more such experiments."

By a coincidence, Dr. Delancy Carter of 1,030 Park Avenue, a well-known student of inebriety, was seated on the bench with Magistrate Breen. He was much interested in the case.

PENNSYLVANIA WOMEN UNITE

A Society of Their Own, Apart from Pennsylvania Society.

The Society of Pennsylvania Women in New York, as an outgrowth of the Pennsylvania Society, was organized last night at a dinner given at the Waldorf-Astoria by George C. Boldt, who presided. Covers were laid for thirty-two. Among those who attended were Mrs. Alexander E. Patton, President of the Women's Society; Mrs. James Henry Darlington, Mrs. James M. Beck, and Mrs. Rudolph Blankenburg, wife of the Mayor of Philadelphia, its vice presidents; Mrs. William Harrison Brown, its Secretary and Treasurer; Mrs. James Kerr, Mrs. John Markle, Mrs. Frederick H. Eaton, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, Mrs. Richard Theodore Davies, Mrs. David Bennett King, Mrs. Roger Lewis, and Mrs. Henry W. Shoemaker.

The officers of the Pennsylvania Society present included Henry P. Davison, William Harrison Brown, Frederick H. Eaton, William U. Hensel, Theodore P. Shonts, William Guggenheim, Richard Theodore Davies, Edwin S. Stuart, former Governor of Pennsylvania; Dr. James Gayley, Thomas E. Kirby, John Markle, Robert Mazet, Barr Ferree, James M. Beck, Col. Allan C. Blakewell, and Mr. Boldt, who is a member of the council of the society.

Although taking for its parent the Pennsylvania Society, the newly founded organization wishes itself classed as an entirely independent body, and not as an auxiliary. It already comprises more than a hundred members.

The society will hold its first annual dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria on Dec. 13, in conjunction with the fifteenth annual dinner of the Pennsylvania Society.

Robetzek Seems to be Elected.

Henry Robitzek, Democrat, announced yesterday that he had been elected to the Board of Aldermen from the Thirty-eighth District in the Bronx. THE NEW YORK TIMES on Wednesday morning announced his election, but on the next day, in a table, showed that Cohen, his Progressive rival, had won. This, Mr. Robitzek says, was a mistake. The vote, he said, was Robitzek, (D.,) 6,624; Cohen, (P.,) 6,596; Harris, (R.,) 5,740.

ANNEKE JANS CLAIM A LURE.

Basis of a Criminal Suit for Using the Mails to Defraud.

The time-worn story of Anneke Jans Bogardus and the shadowy claim of the heirs of that worthy and of the Edwards, Webber, and Delamater estates to a large section of lower Manhattan now in the possession of Trinity corporation came up once again yesterday, when the Federal Government began trial before Judge Learned Hand in the Federal District Court of John H. Fonda, a man of 88 years, and Elmer E. Good, a lawyer very much his junior, on the charge of having conspired to use the mails to defraud.

Fonda was the President and Good the legal adviser of the Union Association of Heirs of the Harlem, Edwards, Webber, and Delamater Estates, and the Government charges that this association was formed merely for purposes of fraud. The association's offices at the time of its incorporation in 1909 were in the Stafford Building in Buffalo, but Fonda did most of his work, the Government alleges, from an office at 253 West Thirteenth Street, in this city.

It was from this latter address, according to the indictment, that the defendant mailed hundreds of circulars to the supposed heirs of the Bogardus and other ancient estates. One of the circulars laid stress on the fact that a suit already had been started against Trinity Corporation, and that it had filed an answer. To this the alleged heirs, it was said, had filed a reply.

Those who wished to join the association were then asked to contribute from $1 to $2 a month to it for legal expenses.

The indictment charges that the defendants in actually beginning suits against Trinity Corporation did so merely as an artifice. They took care, it is alleged, that the trial of these actions should be deferred from time to time and when it was impossible to delay longer that the cases should be dismissed on the ground that the plaintiffs severally named had not appeared to substantiate their case.

Peters Out of Boston Race.

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—Congressman Andrew J. Peters has decided not to enter the contest for election as Mayor. Some time ago he announced that he would be a candidate and yesterday nomination papers in his behalf were taken out. Last night he said: "I feel that my candidacy would tend to separate, rather than unite the independent forces and I believe in that interest I should withdraw."
